PREFACE

In his learned Essay on the Principles of Translation<sup>1</sup> Alex. Fraser TYTLER formulated three general laws under each of which "are comprehended a variety of subordinate precepts." I hope, in the words of Isaac WALTON, the eminent biographer of Dr. Robert SANDERSON,<sup>2</sup> that I shall not disoblige my reader, if I here enlarge into a further character of TYTLER's laws, to wit: "I. That the Translation should give a complete transcript of the ideas of the original work"; "II. That the style and manner of writing should be of the same character with that of the original"; and "III. That the Translation should have all the ease of original composition."

How grievously I have offended against TYTLER's laws in doing into English for the first time The Secret History of the Mongols I must leave to the good judgment of my reader. Although, in the exposition of his principles, TYTLER dealt primarily with the problem of translation from such Indo-European languages as Greek and Latin, the universality of his general laws is not in the least impaired by their application to the translation of an Altaic language.

In rendering the text I have attempted to "give a complete transcript of the ideas of the original work." If there is detectable in the translation any retrenchment, howsoever insignificant, it is attributable to inadvertency, not to intention. In superadding, however, words and phrases which do not appear in the original but seem necessary for its complete understanding, I have, I confess, departed from the practice of the translators of the Holy Scriptures of which, insofar as practicable, I have taken the Authorized Version of 1611 as a model for the language and style of my translation. After their practice, in rendering, for example, the sentence Καὶ ἀκούσαντες ἐθαύμασαν, καὶ ἀφέντες αὐτὸν ἀπῆλθον in the twenty-second verse of the twenty-second chapter of The Gospel According to S. Matthew the translators italicized the words which they superadded: "When they had heard these wordes, they marveled, and left him, and went their way." This practice, to mention but one instance out of many, was followed by the great English sinologist, James LEGGE. Thus, for example, the words 曾子曰,慎終追遠 are rendered in his translation of the Lun-yü 論語, that is, the Confucian Analects:<sup>3</sup> "The philosopher Tsāng said, 'Let there be a careful attention to perform the funeral rites to parents, and let them be followed when long gone with the ceremonies of sacrifice; . . .'" More than a century before LEGGE's time, however, Elizabeth CARTER elected to set within brackets the superadded words and phrases in her monumental translation of Epictetus.<sup>4</sup> Thus, on page 126 of All the Works of Epictetus, Which are Now Extant we find the words ὅπου γὰρ τὸ χαίρειν εὐλόγως, ἐκεῖ καὶ τὸ συγχαίρειν translated in this manner: "For where there is a reasonable Cause of Rejoicing, there is likewise [a reasonable Cause] of Congratulation." Although I can readily anticipate the protestations and criticisms of those to whom the appearance of brackets in a translation is objectionable, if not disagreeable, I am of the opinion that with the function of italics otherwise conceived in modern usage, the translator who considers it a responsibility to make a distinction in his translation between what is in the original and what is superadded has little choice in the matter. Lest my use of brackets, however meticulous, be carried to a point of absurdity, I have not, as a rule, set within them the articles, definite and indefinite, the pronouns of the third person, singular and plural, the preposition of the genitive case, when such a case is implied merely by the relationship between two juxtaposed words in the original text, and diverse auxiliary verbs such as may, might, shall, will,

should, would, et cetera, when the verbal forms of the original make their use in translation mandatory.

Apprehending "that the style and manner of writing should be of the same character with that of the original" and with a view to conserving the archaic flavor of the original text, I have cast my translation, insofar as to me seemed practicable, except in the matter of orthography, into the language of the Authorized Version of the Holy Scriptures, thinking its vocabulary and style to be singularly consonant with that of the Mongolian original. Although the verse of the Mongolian text lends itself more readily to such a manner of translation than the prose with its oftentimes seemingly interminable periods, yet, as I recollect, I have not compromised faithfulness to the original through any paramount consideration for consistency either of vocabulary or style, especially in the case of vocables and acceptations alien to the language and content of the Holy Scriptures.

Mindful "that the translation should have all the ease of original composition," I have spared no pains to make it as readable as my limited talents would allow; yet, when I recall TYTLER's proposition "that he only is perfectly accomplished for the duty of translator who possesses a genius akin to that of the original author,"<sup>5</sup> I can but publicly acknowledge my deficiencies. Thinking it, however, to be an unwarranted conceit to beg the reader's indulgence for its imperfections, I venture rather to express the hope that my translation will serve to induce others to try their own hand at turning the original into English, for The Secret History of the Mongols is not only the capital monument of thirteenth-century Mongolian literature, but it is one of the great literary monuments of the world. Because of the problems it presents as an early text, a definitive translation is out of the question until generations of scholarship have been consecrated to its study.

In the transcription of Mongolian names and terms I have rigorously adhered to the generally accepted scientific manner of transcribing Middle Mongolian in the belief that this would be less confusing to my readers than were I to accommodate the transcriptions to the spelling habits of English alone. Consonant for consonant and vowel for vowel the transcription represents as faithfully as possible the sounds of the original language as they are represented in the Chinese transcription. For the guidance of the reader who is not acquainted with the values of the letters used in the transcription I have subjoined a simple "Table of Sounds."

With a view to facilitating reference to the original text in Chinese transcription, I have maintained its arbitrary, if not injudicious, division into twelve chapters—properly ten and two of continuation—with its even more arbitrary, if not more injudicious, division into 282 sections<sup>a</sup> and have set within brackets the foliation of the original, indicating the recto and verso of each folio.

In publishing The Secret History of the Mongols in two volumes, one of translation and one of commentary, I have deviated from my original plan which envisaged the publication first of the original text, next of the concordance of vocables, and finally of the translation with an exegetical commentary. In so doing, I have followed the counsel of some of my colleagues whose opinion it was that priority should be given to the publication of the translation. I have also followed their counsel in the plan to publish the commentary in a second volume. As precedents for this, they justifiably cited Arthur WALEY's The Book of Songs Translated from the Chinese<sup>7</sup> and his Supplement Containing Textual Notes<sup>8</sup> as well as William HUNG's Tu Fu: China's Greatest Poet<sup>9</sup> and his A Supplementary Volume of Notes for Tu Fu: China's Greatest Poet.<sup>10</sup> The translation, therefore, as originally conceived according to this plan, was not provided with footnotes. Yet it was soon to become apparent to those of my colleagues who had occasion to read parts of the translation without such notes that much was destined to be lost not only to the general reader, but also to the specialist, if certain remarks were not made for their immediate enlightenment. I then added the present footnotes which represent a compromise between each of the two extremes—that with none and that with as many as, in the opinion of the specialist, the translation would appear to require. With this premise, I am constrained to say that it would, indeed, be remarkable, were the indifferent reader to look upon the fruit of this compromise without some sense of dissatisfaction. I hope, however, that the reader who is interested in The Secret History as literature will be disposed to look with some favor upon the fact that I have also given in the footnotes a number of cross-references so that formulae which occur more than once, whether in prose or in verse, may be located more easily. The specialist, therefore, must await the appearance of the second volume for the detailed commentary on the translation. Irrespective of these circumstances, however, the translation which I have given must stand or fall on its own merits. No judgment need be spared while the appearance of the commentary is being awaited. While it is true that the explanation of many puzzling points both in the original and in my manner of translation will be clarified in the commentary, it is also true that no amount of commentary will justify or substantiate a misleading or inaccurate translation.

The translation has been provided with an "Introduction" and two indices, an "Index Nominum" and an "Index Verborum," as well as a "Table of Sounds" for the guidance of the reader who is not acquainted with the values of the letters which I have used to transcribe the Mongolian sounds. A subsequent volume will include a "Bibliography" of the works cited both in the "Introduction" and in the footnotes to the translation itself. It will also provide a simple outline map showing the principal geographical features—rivers, lakes, and mountains—of the ancient Mongolian homeland.

Were I to mention the names of all those who, in one way or another, have contributed directly or indirectly to this volume, they would constitute a catalogue as long, perhaps, as that of "the captains of thousands" in §202 of the text itself. I shall, therefore, only mention the names of those to whom I am chiefly indebted, letting them be representative of the names of all other colleagues and friends who have rendered me service in the course of the preparation of this volume.

To the Reverend Antoine MOSTAERT, C. I. C. M., I owe a debt of gratitude which cannot be discharged by the mere acknowledgment of the exceptionally gracious and devoted assistance which he has rendered me. On several occasions during the years 1952-1954 the eminent Belgian scholar received me at Missionhurst in Arlington, Virginia, and discussed with me for whole days at a time many of the extremely difficult problems with which the text is beset. In addition, he read the entire typescript of the draft translation and formulated in letter after letter remarks consisting of corrections, explanations, suggestions, and recommendations which, almost without exception, have been incorporated into the translation or the accompanying footnotes. As some of his remarks provide the solutions of hitherto unsolved problems, they have been translated and quoted in the footnotes. It is my intention, however, to present them, together with other remarks by the Reverend Antoine MOSTAERT, in the second volume so that they will be accessible in the original French to specialists. When I ponder the goodness, the patience, and the understanding with which the Reverend Antoine MOSTAERT has shared with me his time and knowledge, I know that to brotherly kindness he has, in truth, added charity. It is he who should have translated this text, not I. That I have succeeded in so doing, however, is owing to the help he has given me.

To Dr. William HUNG, I am indebted for substantive as well as moral encouragement. Always ready to examine with me problems in the interlinear or continuous Chinese translations, he has very materially contributed to my understanding of the Mongolian text itself. Some of his interpretations or explanations have been cited in the footnotes. Others will be cited in the second volume.

To Professor Serge ELISSÉEFF, too, I owe a debt of gratitude that is not easily discharged by its mere acknowledgment. In his capacity as Director of the Harvard-Yenching Institute he has,

it is true, made possible the physical production of the volume by including it in his publications budget. In his capacity as teacher, colleague, and friend, however, he has, through the years, first by his counsel that I begin the study of Mongolian under the late great French master, Paul PELLLOT, next by his suggestion that I offer courses in the Mongolian language and literature at Harvard University, and finally by his sustained and unflagging interest in the role of Mongolian studies in the broader field of Far Eastern and Central Asiatic studies, given me the tangible and effective support that has made it possible for me to devote myself, if not exclusively, at least preponderantly, to the study of The Secret History and the period in which it was written.

To Dr. John L. BISHOP I am indebted for his great kindness in reading the translation both in typescript and page-proof form with an eye to diction and style. By virtue of his suggestions and recommendations the translation has been made more readable from beginning to end. If there are passages which are less readable—especially the long periods—this is not attributable to any oversight on Dr. BISHOP's part, for he was swift to tell me when he found a sentence difficult or its syntax puzzling and he often counseled me that the long periods be broken up into smaller units. My only justification for leaving some of the passages in their present form is that of faithfulness—perhaps, questionable—to the original.

To Mrs. Marion S. NASH of Milton, Massachusetts I am indebted for a first draft of the material which came to constitute the present "Index Nominum" and "Index Verborum." With the draft which she had prepared for my use, I was able, by collating the names and terms in the translation with her entries, to work the indices into their final form with greater ease than would otherwise have been possible.

To Mrs. Martha E. CHORLTON of Needham, Massachusetts, who typed the final draft of each of the several parts of the volume, I am deeply indebted for the truly magnificent work she did, for she spared no pains to comply with my manifold specifications and was always willing to interrupt her household duties to complete work urgently needed.

To my printer, Mr. Victor J. FURST, President, J. H. FURST Company, Baltimore, Maryland, and to all those of his house who participated in the printing of this volume I express my gratitude for the gracious and devoted cooperation which it has been my privilege to enjoy from the time when the first sections of the translation were set up in type for the purpose of presenting a set of specimen galley proofs to the Trustees of the Harvard-Yenching Institute. With infinite patience Mr. FURST and his associates have set and reset, keeping apace with my repeated changes and revisions and maintaining throughout the high quality of craftsmanship which has been the hallmark of the house for a half century.

Finally, I wish to thank Mr. F. C. WIEDER, Jr., Assistant Manager, N. V. Boekhandel en Drukkerij Voorheen E. J. Brill, Leiden, Holland, for his gracious permission, granted in a letter dated 7 April 1956, to quote in my footnotes an occasional remark drawn from the Histoire des campagnes de Gengis Khan, Cheng-wou ts'in-tcheng lou, traduit et annoté par Paul PELLIER et Louis HAMBIS, Tome I (Leiden, 1951).

In closing this Preface, I think it not improper to say with Sir George Thomas STAUNTON, the renowned translator of the Ta-Ch'ing lü-li 大清律例, that, in making this declaration, it is far from my wish to avail myself of these respectable sanctions for the protection from censure of a work for which I must of necessity be solely responsible.<sup>11</sup>

INTRODUCTION

ch'ao pi-shih, given by the Russian divine in the introduction to his translation. "Une excellente traduction, avec une introduction relative à l'histoire du texte et un copieux commentaire" is the inimitable manner in which the late Paul PELLIOU<sup>12</sup> characterized in 1913 in his article "Le titre mongol du Yuan tch'ao pi che"<sup>13</sup> the truly monumental work by the Archimandrite Palladii.

While the translation by the Archimandrite Palladii is a translation of the abridged, consecutive Chinese translation of The Secret History of the Mongols,<sup>14</sup> not of the Mongolian original as transcribed in Chinese characters,<sup>15</sup> and while the "explanatory details"<sup>16</sup> in his introduction, in some cases, are subject to modification in the light of data set forth by William HUNG<sup>17</sup> in his article "The Transmission of the Book Known as The Secret History of the Mongols" in the Harvard Journal of Asiatic Studies<sup>18</sup> and by Antoine MOSTAERT<sup>19</sup> in his book Sur quelques passages de l'Histoire secrète des Mongols,<sup>20</sup> to mention but two recent publications of singular importance,<sup>21</sup> it is, nevertheless, a fact that with the Старинное Монгольское сказание о Чингис-ханѣ [Old Mongolian Story about Čingiskhan] the Archimandrite Palladii laid the foundation for subsequent study of The Secret History of the Mongols. Before the Mongolian text in Chinese transcription became generally accessible, the translation by the

Archimandrite Palladii was extensively utilized by such scholars as E. BRETSCHNEIDER, M. In 1903 Paul PELLIOU observed in "Notes bibliographiques" in the Bulletin de l'Ecole Française d'Extrême-Orient,<sup>27</sup> relative to the text of the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih published in the Lien-yün-i ts'ung-shu 連筠叢書,<sup>28</sup> that "c'est [518] vraisemblablement celle qu'a utilisée Palladius, qui a également connu, je crois, le texte mongol, pour sa traduction. . . .” That the Archimandrite Palladii did not have access, however, to the Mongolian text for his translation is clear from an observation by BRETSCHNEIDER, relative to the Lien-yün-i ts’ung-shu edition of the Yüan-ch’ao pi-shih, in his Notices of the Mediaeval Geography and History of Central and Western Asia:<sup>29</sup>

. . . After Palladius had published his translation, made from the Chinese text in the afore-mentioned collection, he happened to obtain a MS. copy of the Ming edition of the work, accompanied by the Mongol text (in Chinese characters), for the use of which I have to thank the learned owner. It was found, that the text Palladius had translated, was only an extract of the original work, which comprises 15 chapters, but has no title. Although many archaisms and clerical errors occur in this text, the restoration of the Mongol original presents little difficulty for men acquainted with both Chinese and Mongol; the Mongol text (represented by Chinese characters) being accompanied by the Chinese translation. . . .

HOWORTH, who referred to BRETSCHNEIDER’s observation, in his “Chinghiz khan and his Ancestors,” remarked:<sup>30</sup>

. . . To this notice I may add that my friend Mr. Wylie met with a copy of the Yüan-ch’ao-pi-shi, in China, written in the Mongol language in Chinese characters, as above mentioned. This was partially transcribed for him, but the original copy was lost during the rebellion, so that what he now has is only a fragment.

Later, BRETSCHNEIDER repeated his observation, albeit in a slightly altered form, in his Mediaeval Researches.<sup>31</sup>

That PELLIOU had come to modify his view of this matter is evident from the following observation in the introduction to his posthumously published Histoire secrète des Mongols:<sup>32</sup>

. . . Palladius signalait en outre qu’il y avait encore des manuscrits d’une transcription (et non plus d’une traduction) en caractères chinois du texte original mongol du Yuan-tch’ao pi-che. Postérieurement à sa traduction, Palladius put se procurer un de ces manuscrits qu’il donna à M. Pozdnéiev, lequel le remit à l’Université de Petrograd. A l’aide de ce manuscrit, M.

Pozdnéiev remit en mongol, transcrit en caractères russes, le premier chapitre du Yuan-tch’ao pi-che et ce travail fut publié en 1880 à Petrograd; il est introuvable.<sup>33</sup>

It should be observed, however, that BLOCHET did make the following remark:<sup>38</sup>

. . . Le premier chapitre a été remis en mongol par M. Pozdnéiev, de St. Pétersbourg, mais ce travail est devenu extrêmement rare et, dans l’attente d’une nouvelle édition, il est impossible de s’en procurer un exemplaire. M. Ivanof et M. Rosenberg ont bien voulu faire exécuter pour moi une copie, en caractères russes, de ce travail qu’il m’eût été impossible de connaître sans leur extrême obligeance. . . .

POZDNEEV<sup>39</sup> published in 1884.<sup>40</sup> In this article POZDNEEV described the Mongolian text of The Secret History of the Mongols as transcribed in Chinese characters in a manuscript copy acquired by the Archimandrite Palladii on 26 November 1872.<sup>41</sup> Thus, only six years after the publication in 1866 of his Russian translation of the abridged Chinese translation of The Secret History of the Mongols, the Archimandrite Palladii acquired the Mongolian original in Chinese transcription, which BRETSCHNEIDER and POZDNEEV almost immediately brought to the attention of Western scholarship in their respective publications.

While the classical remarks by the Archimandrite Palladii on the transmission of the Chinese translation of the Mongolian text of The Secret History of the Mongols have been supplemented and superseded in many significant respects by the findings of William HUNG in his article entitled "The Transmission of the Book Known as The Secret History of the Mongols,"<sup>42</sup> it would be fallacious to conclude that they are completely obsolete, for they must still be consulted for data inaccessible elsewhere.<sup>43</sup> Insofar as the transmission of the Mongolian text in Chinese transcription is concerned, however, there is little to be gleaned from the remarks by the Archimandrite Palladii.

In tracing the history of the transmission of The Secret History of the Mongols on Chinese soil—the text in Chinese transcription and that in Chinese translation—we must begin with references which, in the classical tradition of the West, might properly be called de Historia Secreta Mongolorum veterum scriptorum testimonia. Of these references, the first and indubitably the most important is a passage found in an entry relative to the Hua-i i-yü 華夷譯語<sup>44</sup> [Sino-Barbarian (= Mongolian) Glossary] in the Ming shih-lu 明實錄<sup>45</sup> [Veritable Records of (the) Ming (Dynasty)] 141 (ts'e 20) .3v6-4r1, under the date of 洪武十五年 . . . 春正月 . . . 丙戌 ["(The day) ping-hsü . . . of the 1st moon, in the spring, . . . of the 15th year of (the) Hung-wu (period) (20 January 1382)"]<sup>46</sup> already translated into Russian,<sup>47</sup> French,<sup>48</sup> and English,<sup>49</sup> which reads as follows (3v10):

. . . 復取元秘史參考紐切其字以諸其聲音.

. . . Moreover, taking the Yüan pi-shih for reference, they<sup>50</sup> joined or cut<sup>51</sup> its words<sup>52</sup> in order to approximate its sounds.<sup>53</sup>

Although the entry in which this reference is found was inserted retrospectively under the year 1382 by the compilers of the Ming shih-lu and although, for reasons to be given below,<sup>54</sup> it cannot be stated with absolute assurance that the date of 1382 is here as applicable to the Yüan pi-shih as it is to the Hua-i i-yü, it is, nevertheless, evident that, if, only fourteen years after the Mongols were expelled from China, the Chinese were able to use The Secret History of the Mongols for the purpose in question, between the years 1368 and 1382, they had already transcribed and translated the Mongolian original. At the moment, it is not possible to state without qualification to which of the texts then possibly in existence the words Yüan pi-shih here refer.<sup>55</sup> It is known, however, that there were copied into the Yung-lo ta-tien 永樂大典<sup>56</sup> [Encyclopaedia of (the) Yung-lo (Period)], compiled in Nanking between the years 1403 and 1408, an integral Chinese transcription of the Mongolian text, with interlinear Chinese glosses, and an abridged Chinese translation—the whole, arbitrarily divided into 282 sections,<sup>57</sup> being entitled Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih<sup>58</sup> [The Secret History of the Yüan Dynasty]. Inserted under the rhyme 元 (yüan) in chüan 卷 5179-5193 of the enormous Encyclopaedia, the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih consisted of 15 chüan. It was a copy of this text which eventually was acquired by the Archimandrite Palladii.<sup>59</sup>

The second reference, if it may properly be termed such, is in the form of a notation found at the end of a manuscript copy of the abridged Chinese translation of the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih, presumably prepared for the editors of the Yung-lo ta-tien, and of which a facsimile of the first leaf is reproduced in CH'EN Yüan 陳垣, Yüan pi-shih i-yin yung-tzu k'ao 元秘史譯音用字考<sup>60</sup> [Study of the Characters Used in the Transcription of the Sounds of the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih]. As cited by CH'EN, the notation reads:<sup>61</sup>

一部二本. 永樂二年八月內抄到.

One set; two pen. Copied and received in the 8th moon of the 2nd year of [the] Yung-lo [period] [5 September—3 October 1404].

<sup>56</sup> For the compilation and subsequent history of the Encyclopaedia, cf. HUNG, op. cit., pp. 433-434.

Aside from the fact that the date "5 September—3 October 1404" is in itself of the highest importance as a landmark in the history of the transmission of the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih, the fact that such a manuscript copy was made suggests that the Chinese translation of the text had not previously appeared in printed form and serves to establish beyond all doubt that between 1368 and 1404—36 years in all—the text had been partially, if not integrally, translated into Chinese.

The next, albeit indirect, reference to The Secret History of the Mongols is found in the entry captioned "Ta-tan" 鞑靼 ["Tatar"] in chüan 90 (ts'e 48).1r2-29r4 (25r7-28v2) of the Ta-Ming i-t'ung-chih 大明一統志,<sup>62</sup> where there is a passage in the note on the name Pu-erh-han Shan 不爾罕山 ("Mount Burqan") (27v1) of which the source could only be the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih. It reads as follows:

昔有蒼白狼遇慘白鹿[于此]山. 生子名巴塔赤罕. 後爲蒙古部. 卽元氏之祖.

Formerly there was a blue-white wolf which met a dull-white doe [at this]<sup>63</sup> mountain. He begot a son [whose] name [was] Pa-t'a-ch'ih-han (Batačiqan). [His] descendants became the Meng-ku (Mongyol) tribe. They were the ancestors of the Yüan clan.

This passage was incorporated as such under the rubric "Ch'i shan ch'uan" 其山川 ("Their Mountains and Rivers") in the I-yü 譯語<sup>64</sup> [Intelligence Report] by Min-O-shan-jen 岷峨山人,<sup>65</sup>

<sup>62</sup> The first edition of this work in 90 chüan appeared in 1461. Cf., e.g., L. Carrington GOODRICH, "Geographical Additions of the XIV and XV Centuries," Monumenta Serica, Journal of Oriental Studies 15 (1956) 203-212 (p. 206). Having had no access to that edition, however, I have cited the reference in question from the edition of 1505 (cf. GOODRICH, op. cit., p. 206).

<sup>63</sup> The obliterated words 于此 (yü tz'u) may be restored from the edition of 1535 (cf. GOODRICH, op. cit., p. 206), chüan 90 (ts'e 40) 27v4, as well as the I-yü (see note 64 below).

It is obvious that the first two lines of the passage constitute nothing but a résumé of the opening paragraph of the Chinese translation of The Secret History.<sup>69</sup> The only variant of consequence is the adjective of color qualifying the wolf, that is ts'ang-pai 蒼白 ("blue-white") instead of ts'ang-se-ti 蒼色的 ("of bluish color") as in the Chinese translation.<sup>70</sup> The adjective of color qualifying the deer, however, is identical in both cases. The transcription of Pa-t'a-ch'ih-han (Batačiqan) is identical with that in the Chinese translation.<sup>71</sup>

The first substantial reference to The Secret History of the Mongols is found in an entry under the rubric 元 (Yüan) in chüan 5 (ts'e 1). 24r5-24v2 of the Li-tai ti-wang hsing-hsi t'ung-p'u 歷代帝王姓系統譜<sup>72</sup> [General Register of the Surnames and Lineages of the Emperors and Kings of Successive Dynasties] in the Wan-hsing t'ung-p'u 萬姓統譜<sup>73</sup> [General Register of the Ten-Thousand Surnames], where we read (24r6-8):

According to the [Yüan]-<sup>74</sup> ch'ao pi-shih [The Secret History of the (Yüan) Dynasty] it is said: "The ancestor of the people of the [Yüan]-<sup>75</sup> dynasty was a man of bluish color begotten of Heaven, who coupled with a dull-white woman. In 1824 J. KLAPROTH<sup>77</sup> published on pages (172)-(196) of his Mémoires relatifs à l'Asie<sup>78</sup> a paper entitled "Examen des Extraits d'une Histoire des Khans mongols" in which, on page (191), he cited and translated this passage:

la treizième, Temoudjin, qui porta le nom de famille de Bordjighin, et qu'on regarde comme fondateur de la dynastie Youan.<sup>79</sup>

KLAPROTH's translation of Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih as "l'histoire secrète de la dynastie Youan" constitutes, I believe, the first reference to this work in a western language. Although Isaac Jacob SCHMIDT<sup>80</sup> published his Forschungen im Gebiete der älteren religiösen, politischen und literarischen Bildungsgeschichte der Völker Mittel-Asiens, vorzüglich der Mongolen und Tibeter<sup>81</sup> in the same year and presented on pages 38-39 of his work a German translation of KLAPROTH's French translation of the passage in question, for some reason, he did not specifically mention in this connection "l'histoire secrète de la dynastie Youan."<sup>82</sup>

That the compilers of the Li-tai ti-wang hsing-hsi t'ung-p'u had access directly or indirectly to the text of the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih in the Yung-lo ta-tien is obvious, for the data they furnished was extracted from the abridged Chinese translation of The Secret History of the Mongols. Since there exist translations of the pertinent sections of the abridged Chinese translation in Russian,<sup>83</sup> French,<sup>84</sup> and English,<sup>85</sup> I shall not include yet another herein. Of the modifications which the editors introduced into <sup>79</sup> In rendering 天生蒼色人 as "un homme d'une haute stature, et d'une couleur bleue," KLAPROTH unquestionably was misled by the poorly printed 天 (t'ien) ("Heaven") which resembled 大 (ta) ("big") in his text. As to his translation of 慘白女 as "une femme triste et délaissée," it is attributable to the fact that he did not know that the character 慘 (ts'an), meaning, to be sure, "sad," also means "dark (of a color)" and is frequently written 黯 (ts'an). His inaccurate rendering of 慘 (ts'an) is responsible for the forced and completely inaccurate rendering of 白 (pai) "white" as "délaissée," a meaning which is out of the question in this context. their citation, the substitution of 人 (jen) ("man") for 狼<sup>86</sup> (lang) ("wolf") and 女 (nü) ("woman") for 鹿<sup>87</sup> (lu) ("doe")—the Mongolian original in Chinese transcription having respectively činoa<sup>88</sup> ("wolf") and maral<sup>89</sup> ("doe")—is especially noteworthy. One can only speculate as to the reason which prompted the Chinese compilers of the Li-tai ti-wang hsing-hsi t'ung-p'u to do, in effect, what the Mongols themselves did under the influence of lamaism,<sup>90</sup> but it can be assumed that they did not look with favor on the tradition of animal ancestors for the Yüan, one of the dynasties of their native land.

Another, albeit less substantial, reference to The Secret History of the Mongols is found in the entry on the Hsiung-nu 匈奴<sup>91</sup> in the San-ts'ai t'u-hui 三才圖會<sup>92</sup> [Universal Illustrated Encyclopaedia], "Jen-wu" 人物 ["People"], 12 (ts'e 20). 6v1-8, where we read (6v4-6):

... 一種乃巴塔赤罕之祖。元朝秘史云蒼色狼與慘白鹿所生。二十五世生帖木真。是稱大蒙古都長。僭號皇帝。世居沙漠東北六千里。後居山陰。號驍駘。

... One tribe [of the Hsiung-nu] was the ancestor of Pa-t'a-ch'ih-han<sup>93</sup> (Batačiqan). The Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih says: "[He was one] whom a wolf of bluish color and a dull-white doe begot." The twenty-fifth generation gave birth to T'ieh-mu-chen (Temüjin). He was called the chief of the Great Mongols.<sup>94</sup> He usurped the title of Emperor. For generations [the Mongols] lived [at a distance of] 6,000 li north-east of the Sandy Desert. Later they lived on the north side of the mountains [between China and Mongolia]. They called themselves Ta-ta (Tatar).

In 1824 J. KLAPROTH published on pages (197) - (204) of his Mémoires relatifs à l'Asie an "Extrait d'une lettre de M. Schmidt, de Saint-Petersbourg, adressée à M. Klaproth, en réponse à l'Examen des Extraits d'une Histoire des Khans mongols. Avec les Remarques de M. Klaproth"<sup>95</sup> in which he cited and translated this passage in a "Remarque" on pages (203) - (204):

Remarque.—Après la publication de mon Examen de l'Histoire mongole, j'ai trouvé un autre passage chinois sur l'origine des Mongols. Dans l'encyclopédie San thsai thou hoey (de l'Homme, sec. XII; fol. 6 verso), il est dit: «Une autre race tire son origine de Batatchi khan (Tabatchi khan, dans le texte, est une faute d'orthographe).» Dans l'histoire secrète de la dynastie des Youan, on lit: «Un loup couleur bleu de ciel, l'engendra avec une biche blanche et féroce. Son descendant, à la vingt-cinquième génération, était Temoudjén, qui fut le chef de la grande tribu des Mongols, et qui prit le titre d'empereur auguste. Pendant long-tems ce peuple habitait à 600 [sic] ly, au nord du désert de Cha mo (ou Gobi); après il vint s'établir sur le versant septentrional de la chaîne des montagnes qui borde la Chine au Nord, où il portait le titre honorifique de Tha ta (Tatar).» On voit [(204)] dans ce passage que le nom de Burtè Tchino est traduit par loup couleur bleu de ciel, et celui de sa femme Goh maral par une biche blanche et féroce. En effet maral signifie une biche en mongol, et le mot chinois thsan, que j'avais traduit par délaissé, peut aussi se rendre par cruel et féroce.<sup>96</sup>

Insofar as it is presently possible to determine, the first Chinese scholar to signalize the importance of The Secret History of the Mongols for the study of Yüan history was SUN Ch'eng-tse 孫承澤<sup>97</sup> whose Yüan-ch'ao tien-ku pien-nien k'ao 元朝典故編年考<sup>98</sup> [A Chronological Study of Political Precedents of the Yüan Dynasty],<sup>99</sup> though rare and practically inaccessible, happily is extant.<sup>100</sup> The ninth chüan<sup>101</sup> of SUN's work is entitled "Pi-shih"

<sup>96</sup> It does not seem necessary to dwell on KLAPROTH's errors in his translation of this passage. As to the words 慘白鹿 (ts'an pai lu), however, which he rendered "une biche blanche et féroce" in this instance, he remarked, as we have seen (note 79 above), that the Chinese word ts'an which he translated "délaissée" in the previous citation, could also be rendered "cruel et féroce."

秘史 ["The Secret History"]. It consists of the abridged, consecutive Chinese translation of the last two chapters of The Secret History of the Mongols, preceded by a brief introductory statement which reads as follows (1r4-7):

元人有秘史十卷續秘史二卷。前卷載沙漠始起之事。續卷載下燕京滅金之事。蓋其本國人所編紀者。書藏禁中不傳。偶從古家見之。錄續卷以補正史之所不載。

The Yüan people had the Pi-shih [The Secret History] in 10 chüan and the Hsiü Pi-shih [The Continued Secret History] in 2 chüan. The front chüan contain the events of [their] origin in the desert and the continued chüan contain the events of [their] bringing down Yen-ching and annihilating the Chin. It would seem that it was compiled by their own countrymen. The book is kept in the Imperial Palace and is not circulated. By chance I saw it in one of our old families. I have copied the continued chüan in order to supplement what is not contained in the cheng-shih<sup>102</sup> ("standard history").<sup>103</sup>

The importance of this statement for the history of the transmission of The Secret History of the Mongols on Chinese soil cannot be overestimated, for it marks the beginning of critical, scientific appreciation of the text not only in China, but in the whole world.

<sup>103</sup> This statement was translated by WILLIAM HUNG, op. cit., p. 436, from the text as quoted in the Ssu-k'u ch'üan-shu tsung-mu 四庫全書總目 (Shanghai, Ta-tung shu-chü 大東書局) 81.8r2-10. However, as he had no access to SUN's work, he was "unable to verify the accuracy of the text of SUN's remark" as quoted in the Ssu-k'u ch'üan-shu tsung-mu. As a matter of fact, SUN's statement was not accurately cited by the editors who took the following liberties: (1) 元人有 (9r4) ("The Yüan people had") was altered to 元有 ("From Yüan times have come down"); (2) 蓋其本國人所編紀者 (9r5) ("It would seem that it was compiled by their own countrymen"), to 蓋其國人所編記 ("apparently written by the Mongols themselves"); and (3) 錄續卷以補正史之所不載 (9r6-7) ("I have copied the continued chüan in order to supplement what is not contained in the cheng-shih ['standard history']"), to 錄續卷末 [sic] 以補史之所不載 ("so I copy it here, toward the close of my book, because it will make up for some of the omissions in the histories"). Of the three alterations in SUN's text, the last is extremely misleading, leaving the reader with the impression that SUN had copied the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih into his own work in toto.

攷其所引並載永樂大典元字韻中。互相檢勘——相同。疑本元時秘冊。明初修書者或書錄副以出。流傳在外。故承澤得而見之耳。

When [we] examine what he has quoted, [we find that] it is all contained within the yüan-character rhyme in the Yung-lo ta-tien. When [we] compare the one with the other, [we find that] they are identical in every particular. [We] suspect that originally it was a secret work of Yüan times. One of those who, at the beginning of the Ming, compiled the book,<sup>107</sup> perhaps, copied a duplicate and came out<sup>108</sup> with [it]. [Thus] it came to circulate outside. Hence, [SUN] Ch'eng-tse was able to see it.

At this juncture, the author of the t'i-yao passes judgment on the nature and value of the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih (1v6-9):

所記大都瑣屑之事。且間涉荒誕。蓋亦傳聞之辭輒轉失真未足盡以爲據。然究屬元代舊史。世所罕覩。自永樂大典以外惟見於此書。與正史互有異同存之。亦足以資參訂也。

What it records, on the whole, [has to do with] trivial matters. Moreover, occasionally, it concerns the unfounded. It would seem, too, that transmitted words gradually deviate from the truth and become unworthy of complete reliance. Yet, after all, it is an old history of the Yüan dynasty—rarely seen in the world. Apart from the Yung-lo ta-tien, it only appears in this book. Since it contains variations [in comparison] with the cheng-shih ("standard history"), [we] may keep it, [for] it also is useful as a reference.<sup>109</sup>

After the time of SUN Ch'eng-tse, as its significance for the study of early Mongolian history came to be more fully appreciated, the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih attracted the attention of an increasing number of scholars—among them some of the greatest of the Ch'ing 清 Dynasty (1644-1911)—whose role in the preservation and transmission of this monumental text is one of the great stories of literary history.

One of the first of these scholars to engage in a study of the text was WAN Kuang-t'ai 萬光泰,<sup>110</sup> the author of a curious little work entitled Yüan pi-shih lüeh 元秘史畧<sup>111</sup> [Abridgment of the Yüan pi-shih]. In the words of William HUNG, "To us, the book would appear to be of no value, for it consists only of casual selections—literarily polished and not chronologically arranged—from the sectional summaries of the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih."<sup>112</sup> WAN's preface (1r3-1v8) dated 6 June 1748, however, is both interesting and instructive.<sup>113</sup> His evaluation of the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih as a source of Yüan history is evident from the following observation (1v5-6):

... The text is not elegant and smooth and it tends to dwell on trivial matters. After deleting that which is unfounded, [I] compiled the Yüan pi-shih lüeh in 2 chüan.

Inasmuch as the copy of the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih to which WAN Kuang-t'ai had access to compile his own work consisted of 10 chüan and 2 chüan of continuation,<sup>114</sup> it is tempting to speculate with William HUNG as to whether it was the one used by SUN Ch'eng-tse or not.<sup>115</sup>

For the preservation of WAN's little work we are indebted to YANG Fu-chi 楊復吉<sup>116</sup> in whose colophon entitled "Yüan pi-shih lüeh pa" 元秘史畧跋<sup>117</sup> ["Colophon to the Yüan pi-shih lüeh"] we read (47r5-6):

The great scholar CH'IENT Ta-hsin 錢大昕<sup>119</sup> pursued the study of the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih along the lines established by his predecessors. His colophon entitled "Pa Yüan pi-shih" 跋元秘史 ["Colophon to the Yüan (-ch'ao) pi-shih"] has become a classic. Found in his Ch'ien-yen-t'ang wen-chi 潛研堂文集<sup>120</sup> it opens as follows (20r10-20v2):

Yüan T'ai-tsu 太祖<sup>121</sup> was the creator of an empire,<sup>122</sup> yet the account of his deeds in the [Yüan] shih [元] 史 is very careless and contradictory. Only the narration in the Pi-shih [20v] seems to come closer to the truth, yet its language is vulgar and uncouth,<sup>123</sup> not having had the benefit of polishing by a literary person. Hence, those who know [of] it[s existence are] few.<sup>124</sup> It is very regrettable!

In the body of his colophon CH'IENT Ta-hsin instanced case after case in which the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih is an indispensable adjunct to the Yüan shih. He concluded by saying (22r6-7):

Those who study the sequence of events<sup>125</sup> of both the T'ai-tsu and the T'ai-tsung 太宗<sup>126</sup> reigns must take this book as a point d'appui.<sup>127</sup>

As William HUNG has observed in his own remarks relative to CH'IENT's colophon,<sup>128</sup> "there is no mention of when and how he had come to have the book." It is his conclusion, however, that CH'IENT must have had it some time before 1781.<sup>129</sup>

A contemporary of CH'IENT Ta-hsin, PAO T'ing-po 鮑廷博,<sup>130</sup> we learn from William HUNG,<sup>131</sup> completed in 1805 the collation of a copy of the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih in 15 chüan which was to come into the possession of HAN T'ai-hua 韓泰華<sup>132</sup> in 1847 and to be bought by Palladii in 1872.<sup>133</sup> Regrettably, there appears to be no statement by PAO T'ing-po himself either as to how he acquired his own copy of the text or as to how he evaluated it as source material for Yüan history.

William HUNG has also drawn attention to an entry in the Chu-ting hsien-sheng jih-chi ch'ao 竹汀先生日記抄 [Excerpts from the Diary of Master Chu-ting (= CH'IENT Ta-hsin)]<sup>134</sup> in which it is mentioned that WANG Hui-tsu 汪輝祖,<sup>135</sup> a contemporary of CH'IENT Ta-hsin, had once borrowed from the library of PAO T'ing-po a printed copy of the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih, mutilated at the beginning and the end, with a division into chüan different from that in the manuscript copy in the possession of CH'IENT.<sup>136</sup> It is the opinion of William HUNG that the correspondence between CH'IENT and WANG on the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih, to which reference is made in the undated entry, "must have taken place in the closing years of the eighteenth century."<sup>137</sup> As in the case of PAO T'ing-po, there appears to be no statement by WANG Hui-tsu himself as to how he evaluated the text as source material for Yüan history.

When the great scholar JUAN Yüan 阮元<sup>138</sup> was governor of the Che-chiang 浙江 province, he acquired, among other works destined to be included in the Imperial Collection, a facsimile copy of the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih in 15 chüan.<sup>139</sup> In his Yen-ching-shih wai-chi 研經室外集<sup>140</sup> there is a t'i-yao ["abstract"] entitled “Yüan pi-shih shih-wu chüan t'i-yao” 元秘史十五卷提要<sup>141</sup> [“Abstract of the Yüan pi-shih in 15 Chüan”]. It opens as follows (17r10-17v1):

The author's name is not given. That its chronology [is given] in terms of the rat, the hare, the sheep,<sup>142</sup> etc., and not in terms of the “branches [17v] and stems” (支干)<sup>143</sup> probably is [an indication] that it was written by the nationals (國人).<sup>144</sup>

It concludes with the following observation (17v8-9):

Although the language is vulgar and uncouth, not having had the benefit of [literary] polishing,<sup>145</sup> yet it is useful for research.<sup>146</sup> Still it is [a work] which those who study history will not discard.

Inasmuch as JUAN Yüan was a busy governor, it is possible, if not probable, that he did not write this “Abstract” himself. He may have had it written by PAO T'ing-po or another friend. However, as it is found in his Yen-ching-shih wai-chi, without proof to the contrary, we must attribute its authorship to JUAN himself.

The reason for which the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih was not among the works which JUAN Yüan sent up for the Imperial Collection is clearly stated in a colophon by YEN Chieh 嚴杰,<sup>147</sup> appended to the Yen-ching-shih wai-chi,<sup>148</sup> wherein we read (15v4-5):

[In] the above<sup>149</sup> t'i-yao (“abstracts”) in five chüan [there is] a total of 175 titles of books, among which [there is] the “Yüan pi-shih in 15 Chüan,” [which,] because its language is vulgar and uncouth, has not been presented [to the Throne].<sup>150</sup>

<sup>150</sup> There is mention in the colophon of four other books, in addition to the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih, which were not presented.

In 1805 the eminent scholar KU Kuang-ch'ü 顧廣圻,<sup>151</sup> having discovered in 1804 that CHANG Hsiang-yün 張祥雲<sup>152</sup> possessed a facsimile copy of the original printed edition of the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih in 10 chüan and the Hsü [Continuation] in 2 chüan, persuaded CHANG Tun-jen 張敦仁<sup>153</sup> to borrow it for the purpose of making a facsimile copy. CHANG commissioned KU to collate this copy with the original copy. For this reason, the recopied text came to be known as the “Ku chiao pen” 顧校本 [“KU collated copy”].<sup>154</sup> It was published by The Commercial Press in 1936.<sup>155</sup> The original of KU's colophon, in his own handwriting, was reproduced photographically at the beginning of The Commercial Press edition of the “Ku chiao pen.” For the history of the transmission of the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih—in particular, the text in 10 + 2 chüan—the colophon is extremely revealing—more so, in fact, than any other source. As William HUNG has translated all the colophon with the exception of the conclusion,<sup>156</sup> I shall confine myself to a translation of the latter which is interesting for its recognition of the work by CH'EN Ta-hsin. It reads as follows ([1v]5-8):

Having finished the collation, [I have now] thus noted its history. As for how it may serve for the correction of the deficiencies in the Yüan shih [as] compiled by the Ming, in the colophon of the Shao-chan 少詹<sup>157</sup> as well as [his Nien-erh-shih] k'ao-i [廿二史] 考異<sup>158</sup> [Critical Notes (on the Twenty-

It was the well-known author of the Meng-ku yu-mu chi 蒙古遊牧記<sup>162</sup> [Account of the Mongolian Nomads], CHANG Mu 張穆,<sup>163</sup> who copied the Chinese translation of the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih in 15 chüan from the Yung-lo ta-tien and published it in the Lien-yün-i ts'ung-shu<sup>164</sup> of which he was the editor.<sup>165</sup> In his colophon<sup>166</sup> dated 13 July 1848 CHANG remarked (3r4-5):

In the 27th year [of Tao-kuang 道光 (1847)] [I] borrowed an original facsimile copy from the HAN family 韓氏<sup>167</sup> of Jen-ho 仁和<sup>168</sup> and, upon collating [my copy with the latter, found that] there were no errors [in mine].

[As to] the order of its chüan, [the compilers of] the Ta-tien also roughly made divisions [to conform to those of the latter]. The original book, it would seem, constituted in all one volume. Before each section there is arranged the Mongolian text to which the translation is appended. As to what has been copied here, it is the translation. Outside [the Han-lin-yüan 翰林院]<sup>170</sup> there is no other copy circulating. It was in the autumn of the year 1841, as CHANG informs us,<sup>174</sup> that he was able to see the Yung-lo ta-tien and copy from it several works, including the translation of the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih.

The "Ku chiao pen" of the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih, although it belonged to CHANG Tun-jen in his lifetime, in due course passed into other hands<sup>175</sup> and was eventually acquired by the scholar Sheng-yü 盛昱,<sup>176</sup> a member of the Manchu imperial clan.

From the Japanese scholar NAITÔ Torajirô 内藤虎次郎,<sup>177</sup> we learn that the text was recopied, while in the possession of Sheng-yü, by both LI Wen-t'ien 李文田<sup>178</sup> and WEN T'ing-shih 文廷式.<sup>179</sup> As observed by William HUNG, however, the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih chu 元朝秘史注<sup>180</sup> [Commentary on the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih] by LI Wen-t'ien was on the text in 15 chüan collated and edited by CHANG Mu.<sup>181</sup> Inasmuch as the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih chu was published posthumously in 1896—a year after the author's death—it has neither a hsü 序 ("preface") nor a pa 跋 ("colophon") by LI himself. There is, however, a colophon<sup>182</sup> by his student SHEN Wei-hsien 沈惟賢. Entitled "Yüan pi-shih chu pa" 元秘史注跋 ["Colophon to the Commentary on the Yüan pi-shih"], it constitutes a critical survey of Chinese scholarship on the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih. The following observation (1v2-4) will suffice to demonstrate the great value which SHEN attached to the work:

If we now look for the traces of the founding of the Yüan which was, [we shall find that] from beginning to end<sup>183</sup> there is no other which can excel this compilation in completeness. Yet few scholars have availed themselves of its contents.<sup>184</sup> Why? On the barren deserts and in the primitive times,<sup>185</sup> not only [are] the events extraordinary, [but] the language [of the narrative also is] somewhat uncouth and vulgar. . . .

As for Li's own evaluation of the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih, it must be gleaned from remarks in his Commentary. From these it is obvious that he recognized the great importance of the historical and geographical content of the work.

The marginal notes in the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih chu are by WEN T'ing-shih, who, it will be recalled, possessed a copy of the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih in 10 + 2 chüan. These notes reflect the use he made of his copy.<sup>186</sup> In 1902 he presented a recopy of his copy to NAITÔ Torajirô in Ôsaka, Japan, who, in turn, had a copy made for NAKA Michiyo 那珂通世<sup>187</sup> in Tôkyô.<sup>188</sup> In 1907 NAKA Michiyo published his monumental Chingisu kan jitsuroku 成吉思汗實錄 [The Veritable Records of Činggis Qan].<sup>189</sup>

In 1902 KAO Pao-ch'üan 高寶銓<sup>190</sup> published a supplement to the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih chu under the title of Yüan pi-shih Li chu pu-cheng 元祕史李注補正<sup>191</sup> [Addenda et Corrigenda to Li's Commentary on the Yüan pi-shih]. That KAO, too, valued the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih highly for historical and geographical researches is clear from the following passage in his "Tzu-hsü" 自敘<sup>192</sup> ["Author's Preface"] (1r8-11):

. . . The danger and the ease of mountains and rivers (= geography),<sup>193</sup> the dissimilarity and the similarity of wind and soil (= customs),<sup>194</sup> together with the strategy of marching troops (= war)<sup>195</sup> and the method of restraining the enemy (= diplomacy),<sup>196</sup> are furnished and made clear in the Pi-shih. Right now the ten thousand li (= vast areas) of [our] northwest are adjacent to a strong Russia. Recently, moreover, [with] railway and trains,<sup>197</sup> it has been making of the Desert an easy thoroughfare; [with] migration and colonization,<sup>198</sup> they have snatched the host (= China), the noisy guests.<sup>199</sup> If forethought and preparedness<sup>200</sup> are now in order,<sup>201</sup> then, as for this compilation, is it that it merely constitutes a help for the study of history?<sup>202</sup>

It was in 1908—in the closing days of the Ch'ing Dynasty which had witnessed the gradual growth and development of Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih scholarship—that the well-known scholar YEH Te-hui 葉德輝,<sup>203</sup> who had come into possession of the copy of the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih in 10 + 2 chüan, which had belonged to WEN T'ing-shih<sup>204</sup>—a copy, it will be recalled, of a copy of the "KU collated copy"<sup>205</sup>—capped the endeavors of generations of predecessors by making the complete work—the Chinese transcription of the Mongolian text, the interlinear Chinese glosses, and the abridged Chinese translation—for the first time accessible to scholarship at large in an excellent block-printed edition. YEH's accomplishment is the more remarkable, when we consider that the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih was not his specialty.

(17 January 1907).” As remarked by William HUNG, “It is full of erroneous statements.”<sup>209</sup> YEH’s concluding remarks, nevertheless, are not without interest (29v11-30r3):

As for this book, Mr. K’o [Feng-sun] 柯鳳孫,<sup>210</sup> too, [30r] has seen it, but has cited it very little, because the text with Li’s commentary<sup>211</sup> is already published and may serve as reference.<sup>212</sup> I, however, regard this original text as not the same as the YANG<sup>213</sup> text and the Li commentary. I hope that some day there may be connoisseurs who will transmit it to a cutter. Were it combined<sup>214</sup> with the Meng-ku yüan-liu 蒙古源流<sup>215</sup> [History of the Mongols], they would make an excellent pair.<sup>216</sup>

Later, in his “Yüan-ch’ao pi-shih hsü” 元朝秘史序<sup>217</sup> [“Preface to the Yüan-ch’ao pi-shih”], dated “the 1st day of the 9th moon of the 33rd year of Kuang-hsü 光緒 [7 October 1907],” in which he also labored under several misconceptions, YEH had occasion to signalize, albeit in a rather quaint manner, the singular value of the Mongolian text in Chinese transcription (1r7-1v3):

Moreover, as to this text [under consideration], in each section [first] there is a transcription into words from the original language and secondly there is a translation into sentences from the words [of the transcription]. If we take the entire book and examine it, [we find that,] although there is no abridgment or alteration in [respect of] the translated text in the YANG block-print, yet there is no originally transcribed language. [Thus] it does not escape the condensation and abridgment of omission. Perhaps, the text in the [Yung-lo] ta-tien was [already] thus and the blame assuredly does not lie with YANG. In reality language and letters attain success by helping each other.<sup>218</sup> The first efforts and the later polishings each have their own emphasis.<sup>219</sup> From the standpoint of historiographical requirements, so long as the meaning [1v] of the text is made evident by translation, it may furnish material for compilation. In judging it as a translated book, unless one have access to the original language which is translated, how is one to know whether the translated text might not have omissions or insertions, additions or subtractions?<sup>220</sup> Hence, that this text is valuable lies not alone in the fact that the division into chüan is different [from that in the YANG text] and the fact that it has the name of the author.<sup>221</sup>

As to the material disposition of the text as he published it, including such modifications and alterations as he deemed advisable, YEH has this to say (1v3-7):

[As for] the original text, each line varies in length between [from] 7 ts’un 寸, 6 or 7 fen 分<sup>222</sup> to a little less than 8 ts’un of the present-day architectural foot-rule of the kung-pu 工部<sup>223</sup> and it is 5 ts’un, 8 fen<sup>224</sup> in width. Now we cut [the blocks] on a reduced scale, [but] in [respect of the arrangement of] the lines<sup>225</sup> [on the leaf] there is nothing which we have changed. In the book originally there were black lines and<sup>226</sup> horizontal marks. We have completely followed the prototype [here].<sup>227</sup> Since in the original [copy] there [also] are red lines, then we have cut [them] into double lines [with] a white line<sup>228</sup> to indicate the differentiation. As for the red lines, they were

<sup>218</sup> YEH seems to mean that the spoken language grows only as the written language develops and that the written language would not be possible without the spoken language. In other words, the spoken language needs literature and literature needs the spoken language.

<sup>219</sup> Lit., “the meanings, in each case, have what they should.” YEH seems to mean that the text then before him represented, as he visualized it, the first efforts in which the emphasis was on the language, whereas the text in the Yung-lo ta-tien (which he had not seen, but assumed from YANG’s edition) represented later polishings in which the emphasis was on the requirements of letters.

<sup>221</sup> YEH was in error in thinking that the text “has the name of the author.” See pp. 00-00 below.

<sup>222</sup> I. e., 0.760 or 0.770 of a ch’ih 尺 which consisted of 10 ts’un.

[used to denote] personal names. As for the black lines and <sup>229</sup> the horizontal marks, [they were used to denote] the length and the division of words. They all are more detailed than [those in] the YANG block-print.

In conclusion YEH expresses the following opinion as to the value of the text for the control of the Yüan shih (1v7-9):

The world does not lack men who [can] understand the translation.<sup>230</sup> If they utilize the original transcription to reach <sup>231</sup> the original sounds (= language), the errors of the Yüan shih which they should [be able to] correct ought to be not only the [few] items which are recorded in the K'ao-i<sup>232</sup> [Critical Notes] of CH'EN Ta-hsin.

If the role of Chinese scholars in the preservation and transmission of The Secret History of the Mongols is, as above suggested, one of the great stories of literary history, it is the more remarkable, when we reflect that the original text in Chinese transcription was in a language which, presumably, none of them comprehended and that the translation of the original was in an exotic, colloquial style of Chinese which, to their sophisticated tastes, was intolerably uncouth. Nonetheless, so keen was their sense of history and so profound, their understanding of the research value of primary source material that, despite any misgivings as to those features of the work which to them appeared to be shortcomings, they preserved and transmitted it so faithfully from generation to generation that the text as published by YEH Te-hui, differing in no significant particular from the "KU collated copy," is essentially the same as the Ming printed prototype<sup>233</sup> and, presumably, the manuscript text which was copied into the Yung-lo ta-tien.<sup>234</sup>

Of the transmission of The Secret History of the Mongols between the years 1368 and 1382<sup>235</sup> we know nothing that can be specifically documented textually. However, as the sources for the story of the compilation of the Yüan shih suggest the circumstances under which the Mongolian text came to be transcribed, glossed, and translated during these years, they must be taken into consideration for whatever light they may shed on one of the darkest periods of the text's own history on Chinese soil.

In the Ming shih 2 (ts'e 2) .2v10-3r1 we read:

On [the day] keng-wu 庚午 [ . . . of the 8th moon . . . of the 1st year of (the) Hung-wu (period) (14 September 1368)] Hsü Ta 徐達<sup>236</sup> entered the Yüan capital<sup>237</sup> and sealed up the libraries and the treasuries, the maps and the books, and guarded the palace gates, forbidding [his] soldiers [3r] to loot. . .

In the Ming shih-lu [Veritable Records of (the) Ming (Dynasty)] 30 (ts'e 6) .1v3-2r3 there is a fuller account of the entry of Hsü Ta into the Yüan capital. It begins as follows (1v3-5):

On [the day] keng-wu [ . . . of the 8th moon . . . of the 1st year of (the) Hung-wu (period) (14 September 1368)] the ta-chiang-chün 大將軍,<sup>238</sup> Hsü Ta, ordering the chih-hui 指揮,<sup>239</sup> MA 馬,<sup>240</sup> to guard T'ung-chou 通州,<sup>241</sup> advanced [his] army to take the Yüan capital. It continues (1v8-10):

<sup>250</sup> In other words, "emerging from the darkness of the Yüan, they looked up at the brightness of the Ming." In the words 戴盆而仰白日 we have an allusion to a passage in the famous letter of SSU-MA Ch'ien 司馬遷 to his friend JEN An 任安 in the former's biography in the Han shu 漢書 62 (ts'e 19). 1r3-23r9, wherein we read (16v5): 僕以爲戴盆何以望天. "I have pondered how one, wearing a basin upon his head, could behold the skies." By "the skies" SSU-MA Ch'ien meant Wu-ti 武帝 of the Han. Cf. also Edouard CHAVANNES, Les Mémoires historiques de Se-ma Ts'ien, Tome premier, Paris, 1895, p. CCXXIX: "De même qu'un homme qui porte une cuvette sur la tête ne peut pas lever les yeux vers le ciel", . . . "In note 3 on pages CCXXIV-CCXXV, CHAVANNES observed (with the Chinese commentator): "Lever les yeux au ciel et avoir une cuvette sur la tête sont choses incompatibles. De même servir le souverain et s'occuper de sa famille." While the metaphor was used by Hsü Ta to convey the sense of "liberation," it was used by SSU-MA Ch'ien to convey that of "humility."

claimed [Your Majesty's] Grace and Might in order to put the people at ease. [We] brought together all the maps and books and sealed up the libraries and treasures. . . .

Having taken such preliminary measures to safeguard the archives of the fallen Yüan, in due course, Hsü Ta sent them to the south. The treatise in the Ming shih, entitled "I-wen" 藝文 ["Bibliography"], opens as follows:<sup>252</sup>

After T'ai-tsu 太祖<sup>253</sup> of the Ming had conquered the Yüan Capital, the general<sup>254</sup> collected the records and sent them to Nan-ching 南京.<sup>255</sup>

With the records in hand, the new dynasty was in a position to begin the compilation of the history of its predecessor. According to the Ming shih-lu [Veritable Records of (the) Ming (Dynasty)] 37 (ts'e 7). 1r3-5:

On the 1st day, ping-yin 丙寅, of the 2nd moon of the 2nd year of [the] Hung-wu [period] [9 March 1369] it was decreed that the Yüan shih be compiled. His Majesty addressed the courtiers, saying, "Recently, when we took the Yüan Capital, we got the Yüan Shih-san-ch'ao shih-lu 十三朝實錄<sup>256</sup> [Veritable Records of the Thirteen Reigns]. Although the Yüan is a perished state, its [historical] events ought to be recorded. Moreover, as historiography (史) records successes and failures, shows encouragement and admonition, it should not be abandoned."

The compiler of this entry in the Shih-lu further remarked (1r8-9):

The Bureau (官) was opened in the T'ien-chieh-ssu 天界寺<sup>257</sup> and books such as the Yüan Ching-shih ta-tien 經世大典<sup>258</sup> [Compendium of Govern-

The same event is tersely chronicled in the Ming shih 2 (ts'e 2). 4v3 in one sentence:

On the 1st day, ping-yin, of the 2nd moon [. . . in the spring, of the 2nd year (9 March 1369)], it was decreed to compile the Yüan shih.

SUNG Lien 宋廉,<sup>259</sup> to whom we are indebted for most of our knowledge of the story of the compilation of the Yüan shih, wrote in his "Yüan shih mu-lu hou-chi" 元史目錄後記<sup>260</sup> ["Postscript to the Table of Contents of the Yüan shih"] (12r3-2):

On ping-yin of the 2nd moon, in the spring of the following year [9 March 1369], the Bureau was opened and by kuei-yu 癸酉 of the 8th moon, in the autumn [12 September 1369], the work was finished.

The finishing of the Yüan shih is also chronicled in the Ming shih 2 (ts'e 2). 5r7:

On kuei-yu [. . . of the 8th moon . . . in the autumn . . . of the 2nd year (12 September 1369)] the Yüan shih was finished.

The "Chin Yüan-shih piao" 進元史表<sup>261</sup> ["Memorial for the Presentation of the Yüan shih"] found at the beginning of the Yüan shih is dated the same day. Although it bears the name of LI Shan-ch'ang 李善長<sup>262</sup> as its author, it was, in fact, written in its draft form by SUNG Lien.<sup>263</sup>

However, though finished, the Yüan shih was not yet complete. In the words of the "Chin Yüan-shih piao" (2r3-4):

completing the work were set forth by SUNG Lien in his "Yüan shih mu-lu hou-chi" (12r6-7):

As for the period of Shun-ti 順帝,<sup>267</sup> as the functions of the historiographers (史) had fallen into abandon, there were no Shih-lu [Veritable Records] at all which could be cited. Wherefore, [the historiographers] had not succeeded in making a complete work.<sup>268</sup>

In his "Lü shih ts'ai-shih mu-lu hsü" 呂氏采史目錄序<sup>269</sup> ["Preface to the Catalogue of Historical Documents gathered by Lü"] SUNG Lien reiterated the circumstances and told how he and two colleagues drew up a list of particulars, containing the kind of material needed to complete the history, and memorialized the Throne to the following effect (1r10-12):

Eleven commissioners should be dispatched to travel throughout the empire and send up to the government everything which has bearing on historical events.<sup>270</sup> The Pei-p'ing 北平 of the present is the former capital of the Yüan 元氏.<sup>271</sup> [The] Shan-tung 山東 [area]<sup>272</sup> also is known for important garrisons.<sup>273</sup> There ought to be in existence some documents on the institutions of the dynasty.

Among the commissioners so dispatched was LÜ Chung-shan 呂仲善.<sup>274</sup> As related by SUNG Lien in the same "Lü shih ts'ai-shih mu-lu hsü" (1r13-1v3):

On [the day] ting-mao 丁卯 of the 8th moon [6 September 1369]<sup>275</sup> he reached Pei-p'ing. All edicts and memorials, appointments<sup>276</sup> and petitions, which were in the form of documents,<sup>277</sup> he collected together. If there were relevant foreign<sup>278</sup> [1v] documents, then he had them translated into [Chinese] texts (有涉於番書則令譯而成文). As for [items] not related in official documents, such as imperial excursions, palace confidences,<sup>279</sup> comments on government,<sup>280</sup> ballads in circulation<sup>281</sup> as well as the inauspicious and the auspicious [in respect] of loyalty, filiality, sedition, and banditry—whether revealed [in] the yeh-shih 野史 (“unofficial anecdotes”), or appearing [on] stelae, or found [in] the private writings of sundry scholars—there was none which he did not search out with all his heart.

The materials which Lū gathered also included rubbings of inscriptions on stelae in Pei-p'ing and Shan-tung. As further related by SUNG Lien in the “Lū shih ts'ai-shih mu-lu hsü” (1v10-11):

On [the day] jen-yin 壬寅 of the 3rd moon [9 March 1370] he carted [them] back to the Capital.<sup>282</sup> Afterwards, the [other ten] commissioners all assembled. [I, SUNG] Lien, thereupon, had reliable [material] to compile and complete the Hsü shih 續史 [Continued History] in 48 chüan.

Finally, in his “Yüan shih mu-lu hou-chi” SUNG Lien wrote (12r8-12v1):

Again, on [the day] i-ch'ou 乙丑 of the 2nd moon, in the spring, of the following year [3 March 1370], the Bureau was opened and by [the day] ting-hai 丁亥 of the 7th moon, in the autumn [23 July 1370], the work was finished. Again it was presented.

Of the various sources thus accessible to the Ming historiographers for the compilation of the Yüan shih, the only two expressly mentioned by title are the Shih-san-ch'ao shih-lu, which, although unhappily not extant, provided requisite material for thirteen of the pen-chi 本紀 (“basic annals”) as well as many lieh-chuan 列傳 (“biographies”), and the monumental Ching-shih ta-tien, which, happily partially extant,<sup>283</sup> provided material for the piao 表 (“tables”) as well as the chih 志 (“treatises”) of the Yüan shih.<sup>284</sup>

SUNG Lien, it will be recalled, stated in his “Lū shih ts'ai-shih mu-lu hsü” (1r14-1v1) that, “if there were relevant foreign [1v] documents, then he had them translated into [Chinese] texts.” It was WANG Kuo-wei 王國維<sup>285</sup> who, in the light of this statement, first proposed in his “Meng-wen Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih pa” 蒙文元朝秘史跋<sup>286</sup> [“Colophon to the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih in the Mongolian Language”] that The Secret History of the Mongols was translated into Chinese in 1369.<sup>287</sup> His observation reads as follows (2r8-9):

Hence the task of collecting history in the 2nd year of [the] Hung-wu [period] [1369] really included the work of translation. Hence the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih, too, is one of the foreign texts which they translated.

In the opinion of William HUNG, “The time may, indeed, have been as WANG Kuo-wei thought, the second half of the year 1369. But one need not be so definite.”<sup>288</sup> The author of “The Transmission of the Book Known as The Secret History of the Mongols” suggests, for his part, that the Mongolian text of The Secret History of the Mongols may have been sent to Nanking by Hsü Ta in 1368.<sup>289</sup> In other words, the text may have gone down from Pei-p'ing in 1368 together with the Shih-san-ch'ao shih-lu and, possibly, “books such as the Yüan Ching-shih ta-tien.”

WANG Kuo-wei went on to make a second observation (2r10-11):

Regrettably, in the 3rd year of [the] Hung-wu [period] [1370], at the time when they resumed the compilation, they only continued [it] into the events of the single reign of Shun-ti and, in [the case of] the already completed 169 chüan, they had not taken the time<sup>290</sup> to revise. Hence in the Yüan shih they never used any of the material in this book.

William HUNG, however, inclining to the supposition that a Chinese translation of the Mongolian text of The Secret History of the Mongols may have been accessible to the compilers, when they began their work in 1369, explains in somewhat different terms their failure to use the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih as source material.<sup>291</sup>

... They were official scholars interested in finishing the compilation quickly in order soon to go home or to receive rewards by way of promotion. They were not research students under the compulsion of scientific accuracy and completeness. And a hurried comparison of the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih with the veritable records of the reigns of Činggis and Ögödei might have, indeed, given them the notion that the latter already included all that was [460] worth taking from the former. Since they could easily rearrange, cut and condense the veritable records, why should they have troubled themselves with the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih, some parts of which they might even have considered as unbelievable and unedifying? . . .

The weight of evidence, circumstantial though it be, favors, in my opinion, the supposition of William HUNG. In any case, it is an indisputable fact that the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih was not used as a source of the Yüan shih.

WANG Kuo-wei, in the same "Colophon," made still another observation which reads as follows (2r12-2v2):

As to this book, since Lü Chung-shan sent it up to the Bureau of History, hence in the 15th year of [the] Hung-wu [period] [1382], at the time when they compiled the Hua-i i-yü, they were able to use [it] for [2v] reference. The layout of the text now transmitted is exactly the same as that of the Hung-wu copy of the Hua-i i-yü. It would seem that it issued from [blocks] which one had cut at the same time.<sup>292</sup> That previous persons had mistaken [it] as an edition from Yüan blocks, it would seem, is [owing to the fact] that they had not investigated [the matter] thoroughly.

Although WANG was, perhaps, too affirmative in asserting so unequivocally that Lü Chung-shan had sent The Secret History up to the Bureau of History, it is, nevertheless, a fact, as we know from the entry under the date of 20 January 1382 in the Ming shih-lu,<sup>293</sup> that the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih was used for reference in the compilation of the Hua-i i-yü.<sup>294</sup> Commenting on the Shih-lu entry PELLIOU stated in "Le Hōja et le Sayyid Husain de l'Histoire des Ming":<sup>295</sup> "Le texte est évidemment placé rétrospectivement sous 1382, qui n'est que la date de l'édit ordonnant d'entreprendre le travail; nous ne savons pas la date précise où fut achevée la transcription phonétique de l'Histoire secrète, mais l'édition du Houa-yi yi-yu . . . n'est que de 1389."<sup>296</sup> William HUNG, addressing himself to the same problem, remarked: "Had we not known that the compilation was not completed until late in 1389, we might have been easily misled by that passage to think that the Hua-i i-yü was already compiled and published in 1382."<sup>297</sup> The date of 1389 is that given by LIU San-wu 劉三吾 in his preface to the Hua-i i-yü.<sup>298</sup> While suggesting that the historiographers may have drawn upon the preface of LIU San-wu for some of the entry, William HUNG hypothesizes that, since LIU made no mention, among other things, of the Yüan pi-shih,<sup>299</sup> they might have drawn upon the preface of the Tseng-ting Hua-i i-yü 增定華夷譯語<sup>300</sup> [Enlarged Sino-Barbarian Glossaries]<sup>301</sup> for the Shih-lu entry. That the historiographers had ample opportunity to avail themselves of the preface may be presumed, if we recall that the Shih-lu of T'ai-tsu of the Ming were not begun until 1399 and were not finally completed until 1418.<sup>302</sup>

It is, therefore, logical to conclude from this that, since the shih-lu entry relative to the Hua-i i-yü published in 1389 had been inserted retrospectively under the year 1382—the year in which the decree to compile the Hua-i i-yü was issued—and since the reference to the Yüan pi-shih is found in that part of the entry which the historiographers devoted to an exposition of the manner in which the Hua-i i-yü was compiled—an exposition for which they must have utilized source material which could not have existed prior to the compilation of the Hua-i i-yü—and, if the hypothesis of William Hung is correct, prior to the compilation of the Tseng-ting Hua-i i-yü, it is not justifiable to assume that the date of 1382 is here as applicable to The Secret History as it is to the Hua-i i-yü. It must not be forgotten, however, that the decree to compile the Hua-i i-yü was issued very early in 1382, specifically on 20 January. If it were assumed that the work started the same year, it might also be assumed that the Yüan pi-shih was known and available to the compilers from the start. Such assumptions might, indeed, be correct, but unfortunately cannot be proved. When we recall that the Hua-i i-yü was not completed until 1389—seven years after the decree was issued—and that the Tseng-ting Hua-i i-yü was not completed until some time after that, we can only state with absolute assurance that use of the Yüan pi-shih for reference in the compilation of the Hua-i i-yü must have been made sometime between the date of the edict—1382—and the date when the Shih-lu of T'ai-tsu of the Ming were completed—1418, however probable it may be that it was so used from the start.

With his statement of the similarity in layout of the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih and the Hua-i i-yü, however, WANG Kuo-wei drew a step nearer to the solution of the intricate problem of the relationship between the two texts—a problem which, having previously been considered by such scholars as WAN Kuang-t'ai,<sup>303</sup> NAKA Michiyo,<sup>304</sup> KANAI Yasuzō 金井保三,<sup>305</sup> and INABA Iwakichi 稲葉岩吉,<sup>306</sup> was later to be more thoroughly investigated by CH'EN Yüan<sup>307</sup> in his Yüan pi-shih i-yin yung-tzu k'ao<sup>308</sup> [Study of the Characters Used in the Transcription of the Sounds of the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih], and eventually exhaustively treated by William HUNG,<sup>309</sup> who reversed with the most convincing of arguments a number of the conclusions reached by CH'EN Yüan.

The problem of the relationship between the two texts is important, because it involves, on the one hand, the question of the Ming printed text of the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih and the Yung-lo ta-tien manuscript text and, on the other, that of when and how the original Mongolian text was transcribed, glossed, and translated. In the light of the findings of William HUNG we now have a much clearer picture of the circumstances, even though certain conclusions are still tentative.

In 1933 there were discovered in the Ming Nei-ko ta-k'u 內閣大庫<sup>310</sup> in the Palace in Peking 41 leaves of the printed edition of the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih and a few of the printed edition of the Hua-i i-yü. The 41 leaves of the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih were included in The Commercial Press photolithographic reproduction of the "Ku collated copy," but, unfortunately, the editors did not reproduce, even though it would have meant duplication in one sense of the term, the corresponding leaves of that copy. Nevertheless, it is the conclusion of William HUNG, after a meticulous comparison of the physical disposition of the 41 leaves—the arrangement of the words in the line and the lines on the leaf—as well as the style and structure of their characters with selected leaves in the "Ku collated copy" that, with the exception of certain features peculiar to the printed edition, to which attention is drawn,<sup>311</sup> "the Chang Hsiang-yün copy must have been indeed a good facsimile copy of the so-called 'Hung-wu' printed edition, and that the 'Ku certified copy' must have been a good facsimile copy of the Chiang Hsiang-yün copy." The Chiang Hsiang-yün copy, it will be recalled, was the facsimile copy of the original printed edition of the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih in 10 chüan and the Hsü [Continuation] in 2 chüan, of which KU Kuang-ch'ü made a facsimile copy which came to be called the "Ku chiao pen" ["Ku collated copy"].<sup>312</sup> This copy, as William HUNG has also remarked, was "so reliable that all textual errors therein must be attributed also to the printed edition, most of which is now lost."<sup>313</sup> Although the "Ku collated copy" was never directly cut on blocks for printing, it was indirectly so cut, in the sense that the manuscript copy of the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih, which YEH Te-hui printed and published in 1908 was the copy which had belonged to WEN T'ing-shih—a copy which had descended from the "Ku collated copy."<sup>314</sup>

As to the Hua-i i-yü, the differences between some of the leaves of the Ming edition, discovered in the same place at the same time, and the corresponding leaves of the old printed copy of the text reproduced in the Han-fen-lou pi-chi 函芬樓秘笈<sup>315</sup> [Rare Books (in the Possession) of the Han-fen-lou] in 1918 have also been set forth by William HUNG in his monumental article.<sup>316</sup> As the dating of these leaves has great bearing not only on the transmission of the Hua-i i-yü, but also on that of the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih, it is necessary to touch upon this question to some extent. PELLIOU had already noted that in the Ming kung shih 明宮史<sup>317</sup> [History of the Ming Palace] there is to be found "la mention du Houa-yi yi-yu en 88 feuillets."<sup>318</sup> "Il s'agit certainement," he added, "du Houa-yi yi-yu de Houo Yuan-kie; une difficulté existe cependant; même avec la pré[275]face de Lieou San-wou et le fan-li, on n'obtient, dans la reproduction du Han-fen-leou pi-ki, que 85 feuillets; les chapitres sont cependant bien complets. Y a-t-il une faute du Ming kong che („88" au lieu de „85"), ou manquerait-il à notre édition quelque morceau préliminaire, par exemple une préface de Houo Yuan-kie?"<sup>319</sup>

William HUNG, for his part, drew attention to the fact that in the "Ming-tai nei-fu ching-ch'ang pen-shu-mu" 明代內府經廠本書目<sup>320</sup> ["List of Book-Blocks in the Palace Printing Bureau"], drawn up by the eunuch, LIU Jo-yü 劉若愚, toward the close of the Ming dynasty, there are the entries "Hua-i i-yü: 1 pen, 88 leaves"<sup>321</sup> and "Tseng-ting Hua-i i-yü: 11 pen, 1,708 leaves."<sup>322</sup>

<sup>320</sup> In the T'ao-chi shu-mu 陶輯書目 of T'ao Hsiang 陶湘 by whom, I was informed by Dr. William HUNG on 22 March 1962, it was reconstructed in 1933 from the Cho-chung chih 酌中志, a work in 24 chüan compiled by LIU Jo-yü 劉若愚 circa 1639-1644. The Ming kung shih in 5 chüan was merely a part of the Cho-chung chih. Cf. Yü Chia-hsi 余嘉錫, Ssu-k'u t'i-yao pien-cheng 四庫提要辨證 (Pei-p'ing 北平, 1958) 9.474-477.

Noting that the Hua-i i-yü in the Han-fen-lou pi-chi consists of 3 + 1 + 28 + 28 + 24 leaves or 84 in all and that this is 4 leaves short of the figure given by LIU—a figure of 88, which PELLIOU thought might have been a misprint for "85"<sup>323</sup>—or that "some preliminary piece, for example, a preface of HUO Yüan-chieh" might be missing from the present edition of the text, William HUNG suggests: "It seems that another interpretation is also possible. The title leaf is certainly missing. The other three missing leaves may be another preface, or another letter to make the latter part of the book 28 + 27 leaves."<sup>324</sup>

With reference to the printed Hua-i i-yü in the British Museum with six vocabularies PELLIOU remarked: "Au complet, l'édition des Ming, y compris le siamois, devait avoir dix vocabulaires. Mais chacun des vocabulaires a seulement un peu plus de 100 feuillets . . . , ce qui donne au maximum pour les dix vocabulaires 1100 feuillets, au lieu que le Ming kong che en indique 1708. En outre, les dix vocabulaires devraient faire normalement dix volumes, au lieu que le Ming kong che, confirmé par une autre source, parle de onze. Il y avait donc dans le Tseng-ting Houa-yi yi-yu complet des matériaux dont la nature nous échappe encore; peut-être s'agit-il, au moins en partie, des additions qui manquent à l'exemplaire imprimé connu et à la plupart des exemplaires manuscrits, mais on ne peut entièrement exclure la possibilité que certaines des „suppliques" aient été imprimées également."<sup>325</sup>

To the question raised by PELLIOU there was suggested by William HUNG a possible answer. Observing that the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih is not listed in the inventory of LIU Jo-yü, despite its typography and layout suggestive of the workmanship of the Palace Printing Bureau, he proposed that, since there is given the serial number of each leaf in each chüan as well as the serial number of each leaf in the book as a whole, the total number of leaves of the complete book can easily be calculated by adding up the numbers of the leaves in the 10 + 2 chüan of the "Ku chiao pen" in The Commercial Press reproduction of the text to get a total of 610. With this figure of 610 there is but a discrepancy of 2 in comparison with the figure of 608 required to make the difference between that of 1,100 and 1,708, indicated by PELLIOU. "The possibility, then," he concludes, "is that the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih was a [464] part of the Enlarged Hua-i i-yü, a reference reader to follow the Sino-Mongolian vocabulary. Perhaps during the Yung-lo period, the Enlarged Hua-i i-yü had not yet reached the size mentioned by LIU Jo-yü two centuries later. But it might have at least consisted of the second edition of the Hua-i i-yü of 1389 and the first printed edition of the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih." <sup>326</sup>

William HUNG further concludes that the "first edition of the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih was in all probability without a preface." <sup>327</sup> He believes, however, that there was a general preface to the Tseng-ting Hua-i i-yü <sup>328</sup> and that trace of this, as has already been noted, <sup>329</sup> is to be found in the entry inserted retrospectively in the Ming Shih-lu.

In his Yüan pi-shih i-yin yung-tzu k'ao <sup>330</sup> CH'EN Yüan mentions that he has in his possession a manuscript copy of the sectional summaries of the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih—a copy which came from the library of LIU Yao-yün 劉嶽雲, <sup>331</sup> but was originally in the Nei-ko ta-k'u. <sup>332</sup> At the end it has the following brief notation: <sup>333</sup>

One set; two pen. Copied and received in the 8th moon of the 2nd year of [the] Yung-lo [period] [5 September—3 October 1404].

As stated above, <sup>334</sup> "the fact that such a manuscript copy was made suggests that the Chinese translation of the text had not previously appeared in printed form and serves to establish beyond all doubt that between 1368 and 1404—36 years in all—the text had been partially, if not integrally, translated into Chinese." For CH'EN Yüan, however, the manuscript suggested other possibilities. It was his thesis that the transcription of the Mongolian text of the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih was made sometime in the Hung-wu period (1368-1398), subsequent to the compilation of the Hua-i i-yü <sup>335</sup> and that it represented "an advanced stage of the technique." <sup>336</sup> As he discovered in this manuscript certain features of transcription which, in his opinion, corroborated his thesis, he concluded that the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih was first printed "either simultaneously with, or very shortly after, the first (1389) edition of the Hua-i i-yü"—sometime, in short, between 1389 and 1398. <sup>337</sup>

This thesis, however, was reversed by William HUNG, who, having summarized CH'EN's findings <sup>338</sup> and having raised a number of questions, <sup>339</sup> which he promptly answered, <sup>340</sup> convincingly demonstrated that, whereas the transcription and translation of the Mongolian text of The Secret History must have been done early in the Hung-wu period, prior to the compilation of the Hua-i i-yü, <sup>341</sup> the printing of the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih must have been done "either simultaneously with the later stage of the compilation of the Yung-lo ta-tien, or not long after it." <sup>342</sup> It is the conjecture of William HUNG that, while the printed fragments of both the Hua-i i-yü and the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih might be from a time considerably later than the Yung-lo period (1403-1424), in the absence of evidence to the contrary, they may be assigned to the years between 1404 and 1418, and that, those of the Hua-i i-yü represent the second edition and those of the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih, the first. <sup>343</sup>

It is also the conjecture of William HUNG that, by the time the text was used as reference for the Hua-i i-yü, there might have existed "at least one copy in the Uighur script, with the Chinese interlinear transcription, embodying a system of technique, not at all more advanced than that of the Hua-i i-yü, with interlinear translation containing variant renderings of identical terms”<sup>344</sup> and “at least one copy of the free and summarized translation, containing differences in literary style, divergent renderings of identical terms, and variant transcriptions of the same personal names—indications that more than one translator worked on different parts.”<sup>345</sup> In due course, these two texts were merged into one with the Mongolian original in the Uighur script deleted.<sup>346</sup> However, as to precisely which of these conjectured texts the words Yüan pi-shih in the Ming shih-lu entry refer, as remarked above,<sup>347</sup> cannot, at this moment, be stated without qualification. It is, nevertheless, clear, as previously indicated,<sup>348</sup> that the Mongolian original must have been transcribed and translated before 1404.

A tentative textual lineage of the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih may, therefore, be represented in its main lines schematically as follows:

1. *Mongolian original (in the Uighur script) entitled **Čing-gis qayan-u uġayur* [The Origin of Činggis Qayan].<sup>349</sup>

2. *Mongolian original (in the Uighur script) entitled **Čing-gis qayan-u uġayur* [The Origin of Činggis Qayan] with the Chinese interlinear transcription and glosses.<sup>350</sup>

3. *Abridged Chinese translation entitled Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih [The Secret History of the Yüan Dynasty].<sup>351</sup>

4. *Chinese interlinear transcription—somewhat modified from that in no. 2—and glosses, both derived from no. 2, with the Mongolian original (in the Uighur script) deleted, but with the abridged Chinese translation derived from no. 3 added, the whole—including the colophon—arbitrarily divided into 282 sections<sup>352</sup> and entitled Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih.

On pages 14-18 of his Предисловие [“Introduction”] Dr. PANKRATOV deals specifically with the manuscript acquired by the Archimandrite Palladii. On page 17 he refers to the undated note by Fu-weng 復翁 (i.e., Huang P'ei-lieh 黃丕烈 [1763-1825]) to Lu-yin 祿飲 (i.e., Pao T'ing-po 鮑廷博 [1728-1814]) on the last, unnumbered leaf of the manuscript (page 601 of the reproduction). As there is no translation of the note in Dr. PANKRATOV's “Introduction,” I tentatively offer the following, though mindful of the problems which it contains:

“The [manner in which] the Yung-lo ta-tien copy divides the chüan is not the same as [that in which] they were divided in the original block-print edition. [As for] chüan 1 and chüan 2 herein, chüan 1 is the same, but chüan 2 is not the same [as in the original block-print edition]. As to what chüan 2 herein should have, it must have been cut off and placed at the head of chüan 3. [In] a previous ts'e 冊 [I] have already indicated (lit., ‘conveyed’) its beginning and end. [說 erratum pro 訖 est.] The two chüan of the Hsü-chi 續集 are divided into 13, 14, and 15. [I] have already checked [them] herein. [I] imagine that, [as for] the Cheng-chi 集正 from chüan 3 to chüan 10, [you] have already checked the original block-print. [As it is something] which I have never seen, therefore, I have not in turn checked [it]. Herewith [I] beg that [you, my] senior, Lu-yin, correct [my errors].

If, as has already been suggested, the years 1368-1382 constitute one of the darkest periods of the text's own history on Chinese soil, how much the more do those from the time when it was written to the year 1368. The colophon to the Mongolian text—

yeke qurilta quriju quluγana jil yuran sara-da [58v] Kelüren-ü Köde'e aral-un Dolo'an Bolday-a Šilgin Čeg [...] qoyar ja'ura ordos ba'uju büküü-tür bičijü da'usba.

[We] finished writing at the moment when the Great Assembly was assembled and [when], in the year of the rat, in the moon of the dam, the palaces were pitched at Dolo'an Bolday<sup>377</sup> of Köde'e Aral<sup>378</sup> of the Kelüren,<sup>379</sup> between both Šilgin Čeg<sup>380</sup> and [...].<sup>381</sup>

Probably no part of the Mongolian text of The Secret History has given rise to so much controversy and speculation as its colophon, for, although it contains a date which is extremely precise in its own terms, it has not been possible to convert it into one which has proved acceptable in terms of the content of the text and the history of the period of which it treats. On pages 16-17 of his Старинное монгольское сказание о Чингисханѣ [Old Mongolian Story About Čingiskhan] published in 1866 the Archimandrite Palladii wrote:

It is also impossible to speak positively about the time of the writing of the Mongolian text of the Yuan' čao mi ši. The author, after the relation about Čingiskhan, consecrates some pages to the reign of Ogedai and, not mentioning his death, terminates his tale with a note that the book was finished in the year of the mouse, at the time of a great assembly on the Kerulyan' River. Syui sun, in one of his notes, without hesitation, assigns this year of the mouse to the cyclical sign gen'-czy, i. e., to the 1240th, the next to the last in the life of Ogedai. But Van' ču an' [sic] dai, abridger of the Yuan' čao mi ši, assigns the time of writing much farther, on mistaken bases; he says that in the translated text Čingis often is called Tai czu (Great Ancestor), and this appellation in the temple of the ancestors was given to Čingis in the 2nd year of the reign Cži da (a. 1309); consequently, [17] the composition [was] written already after this year; [it is] obvious that Van' guan' dai accepts the translated Chinese text of the Yuan' čao mi ši as contemporary with the Mongolian; moreover, the appellation of Tai czu, given to Čingiskhan, was used from the first times of the accession of the Mongols in China*); finally, according to an observation of Van' guan' dai himself, by the word Tai czu in the Chinese translation [was] rendered the word Čingis khakhan' of the tonic transposition. Therefore, the opinion of Van' guan' dai will not do. In my opinion, the circumstance that the book was written or finished at one of the assemblies in Mongolia—which at that time was an annual custom—proves that the compilation of the present history relates to the times of the first four khans; because, in subsequent times, with the division of the house of the Čingiskhanids, there were not seen any longer the general assemblies within Mongolia, especially on the Kerulun. It is also possible to point to the simplicity and unaffectedness of the style of the Yuan' čao mi ši, qualities, which confirm that, at that time, the Mongols had not yet emerged from an original, steppe way of life.

It is hardly an exaggeration to state that, since the time when the Archimandrite Palladii expressed his views on the dating of the Mongolian text of The Secret History, although the problem has been considered by a number of scholars, it does not seem that any substantial progress has been made in the matter of its solution. While there has been a tendency to date the text later and later, with the result that the suggested dates of its composition now range from the years 1228 to 1264, the grounds for later dating have become increasingly hypothetical.

The continuation of this "Introduction" is to appear in a subsequent volume.

CHAPTER I

§1 [1r] The origin of Činggis Qahan.

There was a bluish wolf which was born having [his] destiny from Heaven above. His spouse was a fallow doe. They came, passing over the Tenggis.<sup>1</sup> There was Batačiqan [1v] which was born when they had encamped at the head of the Onan River, at [Mount] Burqan Qaldun.

§2 The son of Batačiqan [was] Tamača. The son of Tamača [was] Qoričar Mergen. The son of Qoričar Mergen [was] A'uJam Boro'ul. The son of A'uJam Boro'ul [was] [2r] Sali Qača'u. The son of Sali Qača'u [was] Yeke Nidün. The son of Yeke Nidün [was] Sem Söči. The son of Sem Söči [was] Qarču.

§3 [2v] The son of Qarču [was] Borjigidai Mergen. He had a wife Mongyoljin Go'a. The son of Borjigidai Mergen [was] Toroqoljin Bayan. He had a wife Boroyčin Go'a. He had a youth Boroldai Suyalbi. He had two noble geldings, Dayir and Boro. The sons of Toroqoljin were the twain, Duua Soqor and Dobun Mergen.

§4 [3r] Duua Soqor had an only eye in the middle of the forehead. [With it] he could look unto a place [at a distance] of three journeys.<sup>2</sup>

§5 [3v] One day Duua Soqor went out upon [Mount] Burqan Qaldun with his younger brother, Dobun Mergen. Duua Soqor, looking from upon [Mount] Burqan Qaldun, saw, when he looked, a band of people which, journeying down along the Tünggelig Stream, was drawing nigh, and,

§6 [4r] when he spake, saying, "At the forefront<sup>3</sup> of one black cart in the midst of those people which, journeying, are drawing nigh, one maiden is good. If she have not yet been given unto a man, I shall request her for thee, my younger brother, Dobun Mergen," he sent his younger brother [4v] Dobun Mergen for to see [her].

§7 When Dobun Mergen was come unto those people, [he saw that] verily it was [5r] a maiden, beautiful and good, whose fame and name [were] great, named Alan ʔo'a, and which had not yet been given unto a man.

§8 And, [as for] that band of people, a maiden named Baryujin ʔo'a, daughter of Baryudai Mergen, Lord of Köl Baryujin Hollow, had been given unto Qorilartai Mergen, chief of the Qori Tumad. That [was] the maiden which was born of Baryujin ʔo'a of Qorilartai Mergen [5v] at Ariy Usun in the land of the Qori Tumad and named Alan ʔo'a.

§9 [6r] Qorilartai Mergen, [because] in their land of the Qori Tumad [the people] had forbidden<sup>4</sup> unto one another their land having sables, squirrels, and wild beasts and [because, therefore,] he was displeased with [his neighbours], taking the clan name Qorilar,<sup>5</sup> saying, "The wild beasts of [Mount] Burqan Qaldun are easy to hunt and the land [there] is good," was drawing nigh, journeying unto the Uriangqai, Burqan Bosqaysan and Šinči Bayan, Lords of [Mount] Burqan Qaldun. Such [was] the manner in which [Duua Soqor] there requested, and Dobun Mergen took [to wife] Alan ʔo'a, daughter of Qorilartai Mergen [6v] of the Qori Tumad and which was born at Ariy Usun.

§10 [7r] Alan ʔo'a, coming unto Dobun Mergen, bare two sons. They were named Bögünütei and Belgünütei.<sup>6</sup>

<sup>3</sup> It seems, from this passage as well as those in §§55 and 64 below, that the place occupied by the women was the front, inside the cart.

§11 The elder brother Duua Soqor had four<sup>7</sup> sons. Mean while, [7v] the elder brother Duua Soqor passed away. After that Duua Soqor was passed away, his four sons, not looking upon their uncle as a kinsman, despised [him] and, separating themselves, journeyed, forsaking [him]. Taking the clan name Dörben those became the Dörben people.

§12 [8r] After that, one day Dobun Mergen went out for to hunt upon Toqočay Heights. Encountering in the forest a person of the Uriangqad, which, having killed a deer of three years old, was roasting his ribs and inwards, §13 [8v] when Dobun Mergen spake, he said, "Companion, [give unto me of thy] roasted flesh." Saying, "I shall give [unto thee thereof]," he took [for himself] half of the breast with the lungs and the skin and gave unto Dobun Mergen all the flesh of the deer of three years old.

§14 [9r] When Dobun Mergen drew nigh, carrying [on his beast of burden] that deer of three years old, encountering on the way a poor man which was walking, leading his son [by the hand],

§15 when Dobun Mergen asked, saying, "What [manner of] person art thou?" when that man spake, he said, "I am a Ma'aliy Baya'ud. I am in a strait. Give unto me [a morsel] from the flesh of that wild [9v] beast. I shall give unto thee this my child."

§16 Dobun Mergen, at that word, [10r] brake off and gave [unto him] a single thigh of the deer of three years old and, bringing his child, employed him within the tent.

§17 Mean while, Dobun Mergen passed away. After that Dobun Mergen was passed away, Alan ʔo'a without an husband, then, bare three sons. They were named [10v] Buyu Qadagi,<sup>8</sup> Buyatu Salji,<sup>9</sup> and Bodončar Mungqay.<sup>10</sup>

§18 When her two sons, Belgünütei and Bögünütei, which before

<sup>7</sup> In dörben we have a folk etymology to explain the origin of the clan name Dörben.

were begotten of Dobun Mergen, spake unto each other out of the sight of their mother Alan Go'a, their mother Alan Go'a perceived that they were talking with each other out of the sight of their mother, saying, "Although [11r] this mother of us be without brethren or kinsmen, and without an husband, she hath borne these three sons. Within the tent there is only a person of the Ma'aliy Baya'ud. These three sons are of him."

§19 [11v] One day, in the spring, while boiling the dried [flesh of] a sheep, making these her five sons, Belgünütei, Bügünütei, Buyu Qatagi, Buyatu Salji, and Bodončar Mungqay, to sit in a row, she gave unto each [of them] a single arrow shaft, saying, "Break [it]!" The single [arrow shaft]—how could they have hindered [it from breaking]?—each [of them] brake and cast away. [12r] Again, she bound five arrow shafts together in a bundle and gave [them unto them], saying, "Break [them]! All five, holding, every person, the five arrow shafts bound in a bundle, were in turn not able to break [them]."<sup>11</sup>

§20 [12v] Then their mother Alan Go'a spake. She said, "Ye, my two sons, Belgünütei and Bügünütei, doubting of me, talk with each other, saying, 'She hath borne these three sons. They are sons of whom and of what?' And your doubting is right.

§21 [13r] Every night, a bright yellow man entered by the light of the hole at the top or [by that] of the door top of the tent and rubbed my belly. His light was wont to sink into my belly. When he went out, like a yellow dog he was wont to crawl out by the beams of the sun or moon.

How [can] ye speak [so] rashly?
If one understand by that, [it is evident that]
Its sign is [that]
They are sons of Heaven.

How [can] ye speak, comparing [them] [13v]
Unto the people with black heads?<sup>12</sup>
When they become qad of all,
The common people will then understand [it]."

§22 [14r] Again, when Alan Go'a spake words of admonition unto her five sons, she said, "Ye, my five sons, were born of an only belly. If, like the five arrow shafts of a little while ago, ye be each alone, like those single arrow shafts, [ye] will each [of you] easily be broken by any one. If together [ye] be of one purpose like those arrow shafts bound in a bundle, how will ye easily be [broken] by any one?" [14v] Mean while, their mother Alan Go'a passed away.

§23 After that their mother Alan Go'a was passed away, when the brethren—all five—divided among one another their herd and food, [15r] Be[l]günütei, Bügünütei, Buyu Qatagi, and Buyatu Salji—all four—took [each his part]. Saying, "He is foolish and feeble-minded,"<sup>13</sup> not counting [him] as a kinsman, they gave not a part unto Bodončar.

§24 [15v] Bodončar, not being counted as a kinsman, saying, "While I am here, what [shall I do]?", riding upon a grayish white horse with a black stripe along the backbone,<sup>14</sup>

If I live, I shall live," set out, betaking himself down along the Onan River. Betaking himself, arriving [at] Baljun Isle, making there a tent [which was but] a grass hut, he lived there; he dwelt [there].

§25 [16r] At the moment when he was so living, seeing a gray falcon which had caught and was eating a black pheasant, snaring [him] with the tailhair of the grayish white horse with a black stripe along the backbone, he caught and raised [him] up.

<sup>13</sup> Hence his name, Bodončar Mungqay, i. e., Bodončar "The Fool." In budau we have a folk etymology based on a consonance (budau and Bodončar).

<sup>14</sup> Which further implies "with black mane and black tail." See also §§25, 90, and 205 below.

§26 [16v] When he was without food to eat, he was wont to espy a wild beast which was compassed of wolves at a cliff and, shooting and killing [him], was wont to eat [him] with [his falcon]. He [also] gathered together [with his falcon] and ate [the remnants of that] which the wolves had eaten. And while, together with his own gullet, he also was nourishing his falcon, that year expired.

§27 [17r] It became spring. At the time when the ducks came, he suffered his falcon to hunger and [then] loosed [him]. He laid [on branches] the ducks and geese [which the falcon had caught], until there stank

§28 [17v] From the back of [Mount] Düyiren a band of people came, journeying down along the Tünggelig Stream. Bodončar, having loosed his falcon, was wont to go unto those people, drink mare's milch in the daytime, and at night, coming to his tent [which was but] a grass hut, was wont to tarry the night.

§29 [18r] When those people requested the falcon of Bodončar, he gave [him] not. [Thus] they lived side by side, without those people asking Bodončar, saying, "Of whom [art thou the son] and of what [clan art thou]?" and without Bodončar asking those people, saying, "What people [are ye]?"

§30 His elder brother [18v] Buyu Qatagi came, seeking his younger brother Bodončar Mungqay, saying, "He is gone down along this Onan River." When he inquired, saying unto the people which were come, journeying down along the Tünggelig Stream, that he was such and such a man and had such [and such] a horse,

§31 [19r] when those people spake, they said, "Both man and horse are like unto [those concerning which] thou inquirest. And he hath a falcon. Every day he cometh unto us, drinketh mare's milch, and departeth. Who knoweth where he hath slept at night? If there be a wind [19v] from the northwest, the feathers and down of the ducks and geese which he hath made to be caught by the falcon scatter and blow hither like a whirlwind of snow. He is near here. Now is the time when he will come. Wait a moment."

§32 [20r] While it was [yet but] a moment, a man was drawing nigh, [coming] up along the Tünggelig Stream. When, arriving, he came, it was, indeed, Bodončar. His elder brother Buyu Qatagi, having seen [him] and having recognized [him], guiding [him], set out, trotting and [20v] betaking himself up along the Onan River.

§33 When Bodončar, following after his elder brother Buyu Qatagi, trotting and going on, spake, he said, "Elder brother, elder brother,

[If] a body have a head, [it is good];
[If] a garment have a collar, [it is] good."

His elder brother, Buyu Qatagi, regarded not as any thing those his words.

§34 [21r] Again, when he spake the same words, his elder brother, not regarding [them] as any thing, gave not an answer unto them. Bodončar went on and again spake the same words. When, at that word, his elder brother spake, he said, "What same, same words hast thou been saying since a little while ago?"

§35 [21v] Thereupon, when Bodončar spake, he said, "The people of a little while ago which are at the Tünggelig Stream are without [a difference between] big or little, bad or good, head or hoof. [They] are [all] equal. They are an easy people [to surprise]. Let us rob them."

§36 [22r] Thereupon, when his elder brother spake, he talked with [him, saying], "Yea, if it be so, when we arrive at our tent, let us, brethren, take counsel and [then] rob those people."

§37 Being come unto their tent, the brethren talked with one another and [then] set forth. They made [22v] the same Bodončar to haste as a spy.

§38 Bodončar, hasting as a spy, seized a woman which was with child and asked, saying, "What [manner of] person [art] thou?" When that woman spake, she said, "I am an Adangqan Uriangqai of the Jarči'ud."

§39 [23r] The brethren—all five—spoiled those people and attained unto herd and food, unto people and servant, unto living and dwelling.

§40 [23v] That woman which was with child came unto Bodončar and bare a son. Saying that he was the son of a foreign<sup>17</sup> people, they named him Jajiradai.<sup>18</sup> The ancestor of the Jadaran was he. The son of that Jadaradai<sup>19</sup> was named Tügü'üdei. The son of Tügü'üdei was Büri Bulčiru. The son of Büri Bulčiru was Qara Qada'an. The son of Qara Qada'an was Jamuya. They which have the clan name Jadaran [24r] were those.

§41 That woman again bare one son of Bodončar. Saying that she was [24v] a woman whom he had seized,<sup>20</sup> he named that son Ba'aridai. He became the ancestor of the Ba'arin. The son of Ba'aridai [was] Čiduqul Bökö. Čiduqul Bökö was one whose wives were many. His sons were born as if in heaps.<sup>21</sup> They which have the clan name Menen Ba'arin were those.

§42 [25r] Belgünütei became [the ancestor of] those which have the clan name Belgünüid. Bügünütei became [the ancestor of] those which have the clan name Bügünüid. Buyu Qatagi became [the ancestor of] those which have the clan name Qatagin. Buyutu Salji became [the ancestor of] those which have the clan name Salji'ud. Bodončar became [the ancestor of] those which have the clan name Borjigin.

§43 [25v] [He who] was born of the wife which Bodončar himself had taken was named Barim Ši'iratu Qabiči. Bodončar had taken as concubine her which was come as inje<sup>22</sup> of the mother of that Qabiči Ba'atur. One son was born. He was named Je'üredei. Je'üredei before had part in the jügel.<sup>23</sup>

§44 [26r] After that Bodončar was passed away, saying, "[In] the tent there hath constantly been a person of the Adangqa Uriangqad. He is probably [begotten] of him," they expelled that Je'üredei out of the jügel and caused [him] to become one which was of the Je'üreyid clan. [26v] The ancestor of the Je'üred was he.

§45 The son of Qabiči Ba'atur was Menen Tudun. The sons of Menen Tudun were [27r] the seven, Qači Külüg, Qačin, Qači'u, Qačula, Qači'un, Qaraldai, and Način Ba'atur.

§46 Qaidu, the son of Qači Külüg, was born of Mother Nomolun. The son of Qačin was named Noyagidai. Because by nature he liked to play the chief,<sup>24</sup> he became [the ancestor of] those which have the clan name [27v] Noyakin. The son of Qači'u was named Barulatai. He had a big body and was ravenous<sup>25</sup> at food. He became [the ancestor of] those which have the clan name Barulas. Because the sons of Qačula were ravenous at food, one named them the Yeke Barula<sup>26</sup> and the Üčügen Barula<sup>27</sup> and made [of them] those which have the clan name Barulas. The Barulas such as the Erdemtü Barula and the Tödö'en Barula were those. Because the sons of Qaraldai were without a head [among them] which should stir [28r] the millet,<sup>28</sup> they which have the clan name Buda'ad were those. The son of Qači'un was named Adarkidai. Because he was a backbiter<sup>29</sup> among the brethren, [his descendants] had the clan name Adargin. The sons of Način Ba'atur were named Uru'udai and Mangyutai. They became [the ancestors of] those which have the clan names Uru'ud and Mangyud. Those which were born of the wife which Način Ba'atur himself had taken were named [28v] Siĵu'udai and Doyoladai.

§47 The sons of Qaidu were the three, Bai Šingqor Doyšin, Čaraqai Lingqu, and Ča'ujin Öртеgei. The son of Bai Šingqor Doyšin was Tumbinai Sečen. Senggüm Bilge and Ambayai, sons of Čaraqai Lingqu, were [the ancestors of] those which have the clan name Tayiči'ud. The one which was born of the wife [which had been] [29v] the sister in law of Čaraqai Lingqu was named Besütei. They which have the clan name Besüd were those. The sons of Ča'ujin Öртеgei became [the ancestors of] those which have the clan names Oronar, Qongqotan, Arula[d], Sönid, Qabtur-yas, and Geniges.

§48 [30r] The sons of Tumbinai Sečen were the twain, Qabul Qahan and Sem Sečüle. The son of Sem Sečüle was Bültečü Ba'atur. The sons of Qabul Qahan were seven. Ökin Barqay, the eldest, Bartan Ba'atur, Qutuytu Münggür,<sup>30</sup> [30v] Qutula Qahan, Qulan, Qada'an and Tödö'en Odčigin were these seven.

<sup>29</sup> In adaruyči we have a folk etymology based on a consonance (Adarkidai, adaruyči, and Adargin). See also §164 below.

<sup>31</sup> In §139 below, however, we read: "His (i.e., Ökin Barqay's) son was Sorqatu Yürki." The form Qutuytu Yürki is, in fact, an error for Sorqatu Yürki (~Sorqatu Yürki which also occurs in §122 below.) The alternation Yürki~Yürki is also attested in other sources.

§50 The sons of Bartan Ba'atur were these four, Menggetü Kiyān, Nekün Taisi, Yesügei Ba'atur, and Daritai Odčigin. The son of Qutuytu Münggür was Büri Bökö. The one which clave asunder [31v] the shoulder of Belgütei, at the moment when they were feasting in the forest of the Onan [River], was he.<sup>33</sup>

§51 The sons of Qutula Qahan were the three, Joči, Girma'u, and Altan. The son of Qulan Ba'atur was Yeke Čeren. He was the chief of the two [32a] freemen, Badai and Kišiliγ. Both Qada'an and Tödö'en were without issue.

§52 Qabul Qahan ruled all the Mongyol. After Qabul Qahan, [32v] according to the word of Qabul Qahan, although there were his seven sons, Ambayai Qahan, son of Senggüm Bilge, ruled all the Mongyol.

§53 Ambayai Qahan gave [his] daughter unto the Ayiri'ud Buiru'ud Tatar people which were at the Urši'un River between both Lake Buyur and Lake Kölen. As he was departing, [33r] himself accompanying his daughter, the Tatar Jüyin people seized Ambayai Qahan. §54 [34r] At that time, at the moment when Yesügei Ba'atur was going, falconing at the Onan River, he encountered Yeke Čiledü of the Merkid, which, having taken a maiden from the Olqunu'ud people and having made [her] to arise, was drawing nigh. When he leaned forward [upon his horse] and looked, seeing a woman whose beauty [was] other [than ordinary], he hasted back to his tent and came [back], guiding his elder brother Nekün Taisi and his younger brother Daritai Odčigin.

§55 [35r] With [their] arriving, Čiledü was afraid. He had a swift dun. With [his] striking the thigh of his dun and [his] fleeing over a hill, all three followed behind him. With Čiledü's returning round about a spur [of the hill] and coming unto his cart, then, when Hö'elün Üjin spake, saying, "Hast thou observed those three men? of Ambayai Qahan.

§59 Then, when Yesügei Ba'atur came, having spoiled [40v] the Tatar such as Temüjin Üge and Qori Buqa of the Tatar, then, when Hö'elün Üjin was with child, at the moment when she was at Deli'ün Hill of the Onan [River], even then Činggis Qahan was born. At the moment when he was born, he was born, holding in his right hand a clot of blood the size of a knuckle bone.<sup>42</sup> Such [was the manner in which] one gave [unto him] the name Temüjin, saying, "He was born at the moment when one brought Temüjin Üge of the Tatar."

§60 [41r] Of Hö'elün Üjin of Yesügei Ba'atur these four sons, Temüjin, Qasar, Qaçi'un, and Temüge, were born. One daughter named Temülün [41v] was born. At the moment when Temüjin was nine years old, Joči Qasar was seven years old; Qaçi'un Elči was five years old; Temüge Odčigin was three years old; Temülün was [yet] in the cradle.

nine years old, having taken Temüjin, betook himself unto the Olqunu'ud people, kindred of Mother Hö'elün, saying, "I shall request a maiden from the brethren of his mother." At the moment when he was going, he encountered Dei Sečen of the Unggirad between both [Mount] Čegčer and [Mount] Čiqurgu.

§62 [42v] When Dei Sečen spake, he said, "Quda <sup>43</sup> Yesügei, [thou] art drawn nigh, getting thee unto whom?" When Yesügei Ba'atur spake, he said, [43r] "I am drawn nigh unto the Olqunu'ud people, the brethren of the mother of this my son, saying, 'I shall request a maiden.'" When Dei Sečen spake, he said, "This thy son is a son

With light in his face.<sup>44</sup>

§63 Quda Yesügei, I, this night, dreamed a dream, I. A white gerfalcon,<sup>45</sup> holding [43v] both sun and moon, flew hither and is lighted into my hand. When I spake this my dream unto people, saying, '[Hitherto,] when I have beheld the sun and the moon, they have [only] been seen. Now this gerfalcon, holding and bringing [them hither], is lighted into my hand. It is descended [all] white. What good thing sheweth it?,'—Quda Yesügei, I saw this my dream, at the moment when thou wast leading [44r] thy son hither. I dreamed a dream—[a] good [one]. What dream is it? A good omen of you Kiyad people is come and hath [fore]told [that thou wast coming hither].

§64 [44v] We Unggirad people from days of old,

Having [for us] the comeliness
Of the daughters of [our] daughters, have not been disputing empire.

For those of you which are become qahan,
We make [our] daughters comely of cheek
To ride in a Qasay <sup>46</sup> cart
And, making [one] to harness a black he camel [to it],
Making him to trot, we go [unto the qahan]
And make [them] to sit together [with the qahan]
On the qatun throne.

We dispute not [either] empire [or] peoples. [45r]

Raising up our daughters good of beauty,
We make [them] to ride in a cart with a forefront <sup>47</sup>
And, making [one] to harness a blackish he camel [to it], Accompanying [them], we go [unto the qahan]
And make [them] to sit at one of the sides [of the qahan]
On a high throne.

and he suffered [her] to enter into his thoughts. She was ten [years old], one year older than Temüjin. She was named Börte. Tarrying the night, when, the next morning, he requested his [46v] daughter, when Dei Sečen spake, he said, "If I give [my daughter], [after] letting [thee] request [her] many times, shall [I] be exalted? If [I] give [my daughter], [after] letting [thee] request [her but] a few times, shall [I] be abased? [It will not be so, for] the destiny of a girl is not to wax old at the door <sup>54</sup> where she was born. I will give [unto thee] my daughter. And go [thou], leaving thy son as son in law." There being "yea" on the one side and the other, [47r] when Yesügei Ba'atur spake, having said, "I shall leave my son as son in law. My son is afraid of dogs. Quda, suffer not my son to be affrighted at dogs," giving his led horse as a token and leaving Temüjin as son in law, he departed.

§67 [47v] Yesügei Ba'atur encountered on the way the Tatar people which were feasting at the Šira Steppe of [Mount] Čegčer, and, being thirsty, he lighted [off his horse] at their feast. On the way, [being] bad, he went on and, going three days, being arrived at his tent, he was bad.

§68 [48v] When Yesügei Ba'atur spake, he said, "Within me [I] am bad. Who is at hand?" When one said, "Münglig, the son of Old Man Čaraqa of the Qongqotad, is nigh," calling [him], he made [him] to come and, when he spake, having said, [49r] "Münglig, my child, I am one whose sons are little. When I came [back], after leaving my son Temüjin as son in law, I was secretly harmed on the way by the Tatar people. Within me [I] am bad. Know thou how thou shalt care for thy little younger brethren<sup>64</sup> which shall have remained and of thine elder sister in law [which is] a widow.<sup>65</sup> Go quickly and fetch my son Temüjin, Münglig, my child," [49v] he passed on.

CHAPTER II

§69 [1r] When Münglig, not violating the word of Yesügei Ba'atur, went and spake unto Dei Sečen, he said, "Elder Brother Yesügei thinketh exceedingly on Temüjin and his heart paineth. [I] am come for to take Temüjin." When Dei Sečen spake, he said, "If the quda think on his son, let him go. When he shall have seen [him], let him [1v] quickly come [back]," and Father Münglig came with Temüjin.

§70 That spring, when both Örbei and Soqatai, the qatud of Ambayai Qahan, offered unto the ancestors the [sacrifice called] yaĵaru inerü,<sup>1</sup> Hö'elün Üjin went, [but,] arriving too late, was left behind [the others].<sup>2</sup> When Hö'elün Üjin spake unto both Örbei and Soqatai, she said, "Say ye [unto yourselves], 'Yesügei Ba'atur [2r] hath died,' and because my sons are not [yet] big, why leave ye [me] behind from the part of the offerings to the ancestors, from the remainder of the meat for sacrifice and from the meat offered [itself]? Ye intend, before mine eyes, to eat [without inviting me to partake of the food] and to take journey, not waking [me]."

§71 [2v] At that word, when the two qatud, Örbei and Soqatai, spake, having said,

"Thou [art] one for whom holdeth the rule that [something] is not given [her to eat] by calling [her].

Thou [art] one for whom holdeth the custom that she eateth, if she happen by chance upon [something to eat].

<sup>1</sup> The exact meaning of this technical term, glossed "to burn food in the earth and offer [it] in sacrifice," is unknown. Cf. Antoine MOSTAERT, op. cit., pp. [16]-[18].

Thou [art] one for whom holdeth the rule that [something] is not given [her to eat] by inviting [her].

Thou [art] one for whom holdeth the custom that she eateth, if [something to eat] be attained.

[Is it] because thou sayest [unto thyself], 'Ambayai Qahan hath died,' [that we] have been so spoken [against] even by [thee], Hö'elün?

§72 [3r] It were best [to act on this wise]: Forsaking in the encampment these, mothers and sons, take journey and take ye [them] not away," from the morrow Taryutai Kiriltuy of the Tayiči'ud and Tayiči'ud such as Tödö'en Girte removed down along the Onan River. When they [3v] forsook Hö'elün Üjin, mothers and sons, and took journey, at the moment when Old Man Čaraqa of the Qongqotad went and admonished [them], when Tödö'en Girte spake, having said, he took journey. Saying, "How admonishest thou [us]?", from behind he pierced Old Man Čaraqa along the back with a spear.

"The deep water hath dried up.
The bright stone is broken to pieces,"<sup>a</sup>

§73 [4r] At the moment when Old Man Čaraqa, being wounded, came [back] to his tent and lay down with difficulty, Temüjin went for to see [him]. Then, when Old Man [4v] Čaraqa of the Qongqotad spake, he said, "When, taking [with them] the people which had been assembled by thy good father and the people of us all, they were taking journey, as I was admonishing [them], it was so done [unto me]." At that, Temüjin, having wailed, went out and departed. When, forsaking Hö'elün Üjin, they were taking journey, holding the standard, she herself set forth and caused half of the people to return. And those [5r] people which had been caused to return, not remaining, journeyed after the Tayiji'ud.

§74 After that the Tayiči'ud brethren had forsaken in the encampment Hö'elün Üjin—the widow—the sons and the little ones, [5v] the mothers and the sons, and had taken journey, <sup>a</sup> I. e., "The situation is now quite different." See also §§147 and 209 below.

When Hö'elün Üjin, a woman being born able,
Nourished her little sons,
Putting [her] boyta on [her head] so as to make [it] fast,
Girding herself so as to tuck up her skirt,<sup>4</sup>
She ran up and down the Onan River,
Gathered wild pears and moyilsun [fruit],
And day and night nourished [their] gullets.
When Mother Üjin, which was born with gall,<sup>5</sup> [6r]
Nourished her fortunate sons,
Taking in hand a juniper stick,
She nourished [them] by digging the sudun [root] and the čičigina [root].
The sons which were nourished on the mountain shallot and shallot
By Üjin, the Mother,
Attained unto becoming qad.
The sons which were nourished on the ja'uqasu [root]
By the orderly Mother Üjin
Became wise men [which were] lawgivers.

§75 [6v] The qa'uluqa<sup>6</sup> sons
Which were nourished on wild shallot and shallot
By the beautiful Üjin
Became qoyira'ud<sup>7</sup> noblemen.
[After] becoming male noblemen,
They became bold and courageous.
Saying unto one another, "Let us nourish our mother," [7r]
Sitting on the bank of Mother Onan,<sup>8</sup>
Preparing for one another fishhooks,
Angling and hooking
Maimed and misshapen fishes,
Bending hooks out of needles,

Hooking jebüge [fishes] and qadara [fishes],
 Tying nets,
 Catching little fishes,
 Moreover, they nourished the benefit of their mother.

§76 [7v] One day, while Temüjin, Qasar, Begter, and Belgütei—[all] four—were sitting together [on the bank] and pulling a hook, a bright soqosun was come unto [it]. Both Begter and Belgütei wrested [it] from both Temüjin and Qasar. When both Temüjin and Qasar came [back] to the tent and spake unto Mother Üjin, as they said, “We had a bright soqosun which had bitten the hook wrested from us by both brethren Begter and Belgütei,” when Mother Üjin spake, she said, “Cease [ye]. Why do ye brethren so unto one another? At the moment when we say,

‘We have no companion other than [our] shadow;
 We have no whip other than a tail.’

How [8v] shall we avenge the bitterness of our Tayiçi’ud brethren? why are ye without accord [even] as formerly the five sons of Mother Alan? Do ye not that.”

§77 [9r] Then when both Temüjin and Qasar spake, not loving [the word of their mother],<sup>10</sup> having said, “One time, lately, they so wrested from [us] a lark which we had shot with a bone-tipped arrow. Now again they have so wrested [from us]. How can we live together?,” casting aside the [felt] door [of the tent], they went out and departed. At the moment when Begter was sitting on a knoll, watching the nine horses, the isabella geldings, Temüjin hiding from behind and Qasar hiding from in front, at the moment when they were drawing out their arrows and were arriving, when Begter, having seen [them], spake, having said, “At the moment when we, not being able to suffer the bitterness of the Tayiçi’ud brethren, are saying, ‘By whom shall we be able to take vengeance?’,<sup>11</sup> why cause ye me to become §78 [11r] With [their] coming into the tent, when Mother Üjin, perceiving the faces of her two sons, spake, saying, “[Ye] who have destroyed,

"The wicked
 Have molted.
 The drivellers
 Are grown up."<sup>24</sup>

Being afraid, mothers and sons, elder brethren and younger brethren made a fort in the thick forest. Belgütei, tearing trees asunder, built a fence. While Qasar was exchanging arrow shots, at the moment when they were thrusting Qači'un, Temüge, and Temülün—all three—between the clefts in a cliff and were battling, [14r] when the Tayiči'ud shouted and spake, it being shouted [by them], saying, "Send your elder brother Temüjin. [We] have no need of the others of you," the Tayiči'ud seeing that they had made Temüjin to set forth, making [him] to escape, and that he was fleeing to the woods, pursued [him], [but,] as he had slipped into the forest of Tergüne Heights, the Tayiči'ud, not being able to enter, watched round about the forest.

§80 [15r] Temüjin spent three nights within the forest and, saying, "I shall go out," at the moment when he was drawing nigh, leading his horse, his saddle loosed itself and remained behind.
 When he returned and looked, [he saw that] the saddle, although the breast strap was [yet] attached and the belly strap was [yet] buckled, had loosed itself and had remained behind. Saying, "As for the belly strap, let it be."<sup>25</sup> But how could the breast strap loose itself? [15v] Is Heaven staying [me]?," he returned and again spent three nights. Again, at the moment when he was drawing nigh to go out, at the outlet of the forest a white rock the size of a tent fell in the outlet, stopping [it]. Saying, "Is Heaven staying [me]?," he returned and again spent three nights. Again, having been without food nine nights, saying, "How shall I die without a name? I shall go out," round about that white rock the size of a tent, which was fallen, stopping [16r] the outlet, [Te-müjin] having cut with his arrow-whittling knife the bushes [which had grown so thick] that, if one had assayed to go out, he would not have been able,<sup>26</sup> and, having made his horse to slip through, with [his] going out—the Tayiči'ud were [yet] watching [the outlet]—they seized and took [him] away.

§81 [16v] Taryutai Kiriltuy, taking Temüjin away, giving an order [17r] unto his people, at the moment when he was rotating [him] in the [divers] ayil, making [him] to spend one night in each,<sup>27</sup> on the sixteenth of the first moon of summer,<sup>28</sup> the “red circle day,”<sup>29</sup> the Tayiči'ud feasted on the bank of the Onan [River] and, when the sun was set, they dispersed themselves. A weak lad had taken Temüjin unto that feast. Waiting until [17v] the people of the feast had dispersed themselves, [Temüjin] pulled the buya'u away from that weak lad, and, having smote his head once, running, saying [unto himself] that he would be seen, if he lay within the forest of the Onan [River], he lay in the stream of water and, suffering his cangue to flow down along the water, he lay [with only his] face exposed.

§82 [18r] At the moment when that person which had lost [him] was shouting with a loud voice, [18v] saying, “I have lost the prisoner!,” the Tayiči'ud, which had dispersed themselves, assembled, and, in the moonlight [as bright] as day, they searched the forest of the Onan [River]. Even as Sorqan Šira of the Suldus was passing by, perceiving that [Temüjin] was lying in the stream, when he spake, having said, “Even because thou art so skilful, thou art so envied by thy [19r] Tayiči'ud brethren, saying,

‘He hath fire in his eyes;
He hath light in his face.’<sup>30</sup>

The words tergel üdür were used of the fifteenth of any lunation, but, as we see from the Secret History, the words hula'an tergel üdür were used only of the sixteenth of the fourth lunation, an auspicious day. In both cases the word tergel may refer to the “disk” of the moon.

Lie [thou] so. [I] shall not tell,” he passed by. Again, at the moment when they were saying unto one another, ‘Let us return and search [further],’ when Sorqan Šira spake, he said, “Let us, having seen our places along our same divers ways, which we saw not [before], return and search [further].” “Yea,” they said unto one another. While they returned and [19v] searched [further] along the same divers ways, again, when Sorqan Šira passed by and spake, having said, “Thy brethren are drawing nigh, sharpening their mouths and [their] teeth.<sup>31</sup> Lie [thou] so. Be prudent,” he passed by.

§83 [20r] Again, at the moment when they were saying unto one another, “Let us return and search [further],” when Sorqan Šira spake, again he said, “Tayiči'ud Princes, ye have lost a whole man in the bright, white day. Now how shall we find [him] in the dark night? Again, let us, having seen our places which we have [20v] not seen along the same divers ways, being returned and having searched [further], dispersing ourselves, gather together to morrow and search [again]. Whither could he go, that man with a buya'u?” Saying, “Yea,” unto one another, they returned and searched and, when Sorqan Šira, again passing by, spake, having said, “They said unto one another, ‘Let us, having searched, return and search [further] to morrow.’ Now [21r] waiting until we have wholly dispersed ourselves, go, seeking thy mother and thy younger brethren. Talk not, saying that [thou] hast been seen—if [thou] art seen by somebody—saying that it was I who saw [thee],” he passed by.

§84 [21v] Waiting until they had wholly dispersed themselves, thinking in his heart, saying, “Lately, at the moment when, rotating [me in] the [divers] ayil, they made me to pass the night, when I passed the night in the tent of Sorqan Šira, [as for] his two sons, Čimbai and Čila'un, their bosoms and hearts pained [for me] and seeing me [22r] at night they took my buya'u and, loosing it, suffered me to pass the night. Now, again, Sorqan Šira, seeing me, is passed by, not telling. Now those same will save me,” he departed down along the Onan River, seeking the tent of Sorqan Šira.

§85 [22v] The sign of the tent was that, having poured off the [mare's] milch, they were wont to beat their sour [mare's] milch<sup>32</sup> at night until the day dawned. Hearing that sign, as he went, [23r] hearing the sound of the beater, he arrived and, as he entered into his tent, Sorqan Šira said, "Said I not, 'Go [thou], seeking thy mother and thy younger brethren?' Why art thou come [hither]?" When his two sons Čimbai and Čila'un spake, saying, "If a turumtai<sup>33</sup> make a little bird to take refuge in a bush, the bush saveth it. Now why sayest thou so unto that one which is come unto us?," not loving the word [23v] of their father<sup>34</sup> they removed his buya'u, burned [it] in the fire, made him to get him up into a cart full of wool behind [the tents], and made their younger sister named Qada'an to care for [him], saying, "Tell [this] not unto [any] living person."

§86 [24r] On the third day [the Tayiči'ud] said unto one another, "[Some] man hath, perhaps, hid [him]," and, saying unto one another, [24v] "Let us search one another among ourselves," they searched one another. They searched in the tents, in the carts, and even under the beds of Sorqan Šira and, at the moment when, getting them up into the cart full of wool behind [the tents], pulling out the wool which was at the entry, they were arriving at the back, [25r] as Sorqan Šira then said, "How could this one bear [it], in such heat, within the wool?," the searchers lighted and departed.

§87 After that the searchers were departed, when Sorqan Šira spake, he said, "[Thou] almost caused [25v] me to blow [in the wind] as the ashes [of my hearth]. Go [thou] now to seek thy mother and thy younger brethren," made [him] to ride a barren, straw-yellow<sup>35</sup> [mare] of which the mouth [was] white, boiled [for him] a lamb which had been suckled of two ewes,<sup>36</sup> made ready a little

§88 [26r] Temüjin, being so gone, arrived at his place which they had fortified by making a fence. By means of the tracks in the grass, he trailed [them] up along the Onan [26v] River—the Kimurya Stream entereth [the Onan River] from the West—and, having trailed up along that, he encountered [them], at the moment when they were at Qorčuqui Hill of the Beder Spur of the Kimurya Stream.

§89 [27r] Uniting themselves there, they departed. Camping [at] Köke Lake<sup>39</sup> of [Mount] Qara Ĵirügen of the Senggür Stream within [Mount] Gürelgü in front of [Mount] Burqan Qaldun, they killed and ate marmots and field mice.

§90 [27v] One day [thieves] came to steal the eight horses, the isabella geldings, which were standing in front of the tent. Before the eyes [of Temüjin and his younger brethren], they stole [them] and departed. [Temüjin and his younger brethren,] being on foot, while seeing [them depart], remained behind. Belgütei had ridden [28r] a dargi,<sup>40</sup> strawyellow [horse] with a hairless tail and was gone for to hunt marmots. At eventide, after that the sun was set, Belgütei, having laid the marmots on the dargi, strawyellow [horse] with a hairless tail, came [back], leading [it] on foot, so that they swung to and fro.<sup>41</sup> As they said, "[Thieves] stole the isabella geldings and took [them] away," when Belgütei spake, he said, "I shall pursue [them]." When [28v] Qasar spake, he said, "Thou canst not. I shall pursue [them]." When Temüjin spake, saying,

"Ye can not. I shall pursue [them]," Temüjin rode the dargi, strawyellow [horse] and trailed the isabella geldings by means of the tracks in the grass. Having passed three nights, early in the morning [of the fourth day], he encountered on the way a lively lad which was milking [29r] mares in a plentiful herd. As he inquired concerning the isabella geldings, when that lad spake, having said, "This morning, before that the sun rose, [the thieves] drave the eight horses, the isabella geldings, this way and departed. I shall point out their tracks for [thee]," he made [Temüjin] to loose the strawyellow [horse] with the hairless tail and, [giving it] unto Temüjin, made [him] to ride a grayish white horse with a black stripe along the backbone.<sup>42</sup> [29v] He himself rode a swift dun. And, not even going unto his tent, he put away his leathern bucket and leathern milkpail, concealing [them] in the steppe. Having said, "As for thee, companion, [thou] comest hither, being sore distressed. The distress of men is [all] one [and the same]. I shall be a companion unto thee. My father is called Naqu Bayan.<sup>43</sup> I [am] his only son. I am [30r] named Bo'orču," he trailed [them] by [means of] the tracks of the isabella geldings. Having passed three nights, at even [of the fourth day], at the moment when the sun was smiting the hills, they arrived at a güri'en of people. They saw the eight horses, the isabella geldings, which were standing, eating grass at the edge of that great güri'en. When Temüjin spake, he said, "Companion, stand thou here. [30v] I—the isabella geldings are those [there]—shall go out, driving [them before me]." When Bo'orču spake, having said, "I am come, saying, 'I shall be a companion.' How can I stand here?," having rushed into [the güri'en] together, they drave out the isabella geldings.<sup>44</sup>

saying, "I fear lest thou be harmed for my sake. I shall exchange arrow shots with him," returning over against [him], he exchanged arrow shots with him. [32v] That man with the white horse stood aiming at [him] with his pole with a noose. [His] companions behind came, overtaking [him]. The sun set. Twilight draweth nigh. Those people behind, being lost in the dusk, halted and remained behind.<sup>45</sup>

§92 [33r] Having ridden that night, after riding three days and three nights, they arrived. When Temüjin spake, he said, "Companion, could I have [33v] taken these my horses without thee? Let us divide [them] between us. How many sayest [thou] that thou shalt take?" When Bo'orču spake, he said, "I, saying that thou, good companion, drawest nigh, being distressed, I am come, being a companion, saying, 'I shall be a help unto a good companion.' Shall I take [them], saying, 'It is spoil'? My father is named Naqu Bayan.<sup>46</sup> The only son of Naqu Bayan is I. [34r] That which my father hath laid up [for me] is enough for me. I shall not take [aught]. That I have been a help, what help is it? I shall not take [aught]."

§93 [34v] They arrived at the tent of Naqu Bayan. Naqu Bayan, having lost Bo'orču, his son, is in tears. When suddenly they are come and he seeth his son, once he waileth and once he groaneth. When Bo'orču, his son, spake, having said, "What is it? A good companion [35r] is come hither, being distressed. I went, being a companion [unto him]. Now I am come," he galloped away and fetched his leathern bucket and leathern milkpail which he had concealed in the steppe. Killing for Temüjin a lamb which had been suckled of two ewes and having given [it unto him as] provision [for the way], he made ready a leathern bucket [full of milk] as lading and [so] made [him] to have provision. When Naqu Bayan spake, [35v] he said, "Ye are two youths. See [ye] each other. Abandon [ye] not each other hereafter." Temüjin went and, being departed three days, arrived at his tent at the §94 [36r] Thereupon, both Temüjin and Belgütei—[Temüjin,] since the time when he was come [back], after having, at the moment when he was nine years old, seen Börte Üjin [daughter] of Dei Sečen, had been separated [from her] <sup>47</sup>—went up along the Kelüren River to seek [her]. Dei Sečen, the Unggira[d], was there between both [Mount] Čegčeer and [Mount] Čiqurqu. When Dei Sečen, seeing Temüjin and rejoicing exceedingly, spake, having said, "Knowing that [37r] thy Tayiči'ud brethren are jealous, being very troubled, [I] had lost hope. And now [I] have hardly seen thee," having united Börte Üjin [with him], he accompanied [her]. When, accompanying [her], he drew nigh, Dei Sečen, on the way, returned from the Uray Čöl corner of the Kelüren. His wife, the mother of Börte Üjin, was named Čotan. Čotan accompanied her daughter and, at the moment when they <sup>48</sup> were at the Senggür Stream [37v] within [Mount] Gürelgü, came, bringing [her].

§95 [38r] Having suffered Čotan to return, [Temüjin] sent Belgütei, inviting Bo'orču, saying, "Let us be companions." Bo'orču, after that Belgütei was arrived, not telling [it] unto his father,

When Temüjin, coming unto Ong Qan, spake, he said, "Saying [unto myself] that in days of old thou didst declare thyself anda with my father and that thou art also like a father, having made a wife to light [at my tent], I have brought the emüsgel <sup>53</sup> for thee," he gave the coat of black sables [unto him]. Rise up quickly! The earth quaketh! A rumbling is heard! Are the frightful Tayiči'ud drawing nigh? Mother! Rise up quickly!"

§99 [43r] When Mother Hö'elün spake, having said, "Wake [ye] quickly the sons," Mother Hö'elün also quickly rose up. The sons, Temüjin and the others, also being quickly risen up, taking their horses, Temüjin rode one horse. Mother Hö'elün rode one horse. Qasar rode one horse. Qači'un rode [43v] one horse. Temüge Odčigin rode one horse. Belgütei rode one horse. Bo'orču rode one horse. Ĵelme rode one horse. Mother Hö'elün carried Temülün at her bosom [on her horse]. I did not perceive whether Temüjin was [there] or not. [45v] Being arisen from behind [the tent], I am come [hither]."

§101 [46r] Those soldiers then trotted [away]. Old Woman Qo'ayčïn having struck her ox speckled of loins,<sup>62</sup> as, hasting, she began to move forward, the axletree of the cart brake in pieces. At the moment when they were saying unto each other, "[Forasmuch as] our axletree hath been broken in pieces, let us run into the woods on foot," straightway the same soldiers, making the mother of Belgütei to ride double with them and making her two feet to hang, trotting, being arrived, said, "What art thou carrying in this cart?" When Old Woman Qo'ayčïn spake, she said, "I am carrying wool." When the elder brethren of those soldiers spake, they said unto their younger brethren and sons, "Light off and see [ye what it is]!" ## CHAPTER III

§104 [1r] So saying, when [Temüjin], Temüjin, Qasar, and Belgütei—[all] three—going unto To'oril Ong Qan of the Kereyid, at the moment when he was in the Black Forest of the Tu'ula River, spake, he said, "By the Three Merkid, as they were come at the moment when we were unprepared, my wife was ravished and carried away. We are come, saying, 'Let my father the Qan [1v] save and give [unto me my] wife.'" In answer to that word, when To'oril Ong Qan spake, he said, "Spake not I unto thee a year ago? When thou broughtest a coat of sables unto me, when I was clothed [with it by thee], saying, 'As for the fact that [thou] didst declare thyself anda of the time of [my] father,'<sup>1</sup> [thou] art also like a father,' then, when I spake, saying,

'In return for the coat of sables [2r]
I shall gather for thee
Thy people which hath dispersed itself.

In return for the coat of black sables
I shall unite for thee
Thy people which hath separated itself,' said I not,

'Let [my promise] be
In the diaphragm
Of [my] breast?

Let [my promise] be
In the back
Of [my] kidneys?'<sup>2</sup>

CHAPTER III

In return for the coat of sables,
[Even] until I destroy Wholly the Merkid,
I shall save and give [unto thee] thy Börte Üjin. [2v]
In return for the coat of black sables,
Breaking
All the Merkid,
Making thy Qatun Börte to return, we shall bring [her].

Send thou, sending a message, unto Younger Brother Jamuḡa. Younger Brother Jamuḡa is in the Qorqonay Valley. I shall set forth from hence, twenty thousand [in number], becoming the right hand. Let Younger Brother Jamuḡa, being twenty thousand [in number], set forth, becoming the left hand. Let [3r] our appointed time be [decided] from [the part of] Jamuḡa."

§105 [3v] When, Temüjin, Qasar, and Belgütei—[all] three—returning from To'oril Qan, arriving at their tent, Temüjin sent both Qasar and Belgütei unto Jamuḡa, when he sent, speaking, saying, "Speak unto Anda Jamuḡa," he sent, saying, "By the [4r] Three Merkid, when they came,

As to my bed,
I was made to be empty.
Are we not ones of which the family origin [is] one?
How shall we avenge
Our avengement?<sup>3</sup>

As to my breast,
I have been rent in twain.
Are we not kindred of liver?<sup>4</sup>
How shall we requite
Our requital?"<sup>5</sup>

Ĵamuĳa. Again, when he sent, speaking unto Ĵamuĳa the words which had been spoken by [4v] To'oril Qan of the Kereyid, he said, "Mindful of the fact that in an early day a help and good things were done for my father by Yesügei Qan, I shall be a companion. Being twenty thousand [in number], I shall set forth, being the right hand. Send, telling [it] unto Younger Brother Ĵamuĳa. Let Younger Brother Ĵamuĳa set forth, [being] twenty thousand [in number]. Let our appointed time when we shall join forces be [decided] from [the part of] Younger Brother [5r] Ĵamuĳa." After that they had made an end of these words, when Ĵamuĳa spake, he said, "Knowing that Anda Temüĳin,

As to [his] bed,
Was become empty,
My heart did pain.

Knowing that,

As to [his] breast,
He had been rent in twain,
My liver did pain.

Avenging our avengement,
Destroying
The Uduyid and Uuas Merkid,
We shall save our Üĳin Börte.<sup>6</sup> [5v]

Taking our vengeance,
Breaking all the Qa'ad Merkid,
Making our Qatun Börte to return, we shall save [her].

Now that

Toyto'a which trembleth,

Must now be at [6r] Talqun Isle [between]<sup>8</sup> both the Orqon and the Selenge.

Qa'atai Darmala, which,
At the moment when the [uprooted] tumbleweed<sup>9</sup> bloweth [across the steppe] in the wind,
Striveth for the Black Forest,
Must now be in the Qaraji Steppe.

Now, straightly,<sup>10</sup> cutting the Kilyo River—let the saqal bayan<sup>11</sup> be in good state—tying [with them] rafts, we shall enter [into the land of the enemy]. Of that Toyto'a which trembleth,

Entering [as one might say] upon the hole at the top of his tent [6v]
Smiting his weighty tent frame
In such a way that it shall fall down flat,
We shall destroy
Until his wives and sons be extinguished.

Smiting his door frame, which [for him] is a god which bringeth happiness,<sup>12</sup>
In such a way that it shall break to pieces,

We shall wholly destroy his people,

§106 [7v] When Jamuḡa again spake, when he spake, saying,

§107 [9v] Both Qasar and Belgütei coming [back] and speaking unto Temüjin these words of Jamuḡa, [10r] he sent a message unto To’oril Qan. To’oril Qan, having suffered [him] to send these words of Jamuḡa, set forth, twenty thousand [in number]. When To’oril Qan set forth, [Temüjin,] saying, “He draweth nigh, beat the moment when To’oril Qan, ten thousand [in number], and Jaqa Gambu, the younger brother of To’oril Qan, ten thousand three days before at the appointed place of meeting. Jamuḡa, having seen the troops of these, Temüjin, To’oril, and Jaqa Gambu, Jamuḡa stood, [12r] making ready his twenty thousand troops. And these Temüjin, To’oril Qan, and Jaqa Gambu having likewise made ready their troops, coming unto one another and,

moreover, recognizing one another, when Jamuḡa spake, he said,

Being joined here unto a bad man, now how shall I behold the faces [21r] of my sons?,” she ran and slipped into the thick woods. So he sought [her, but] she was not found. Belgütei Noyan, saying, “Bring [thou unto me] my mother!,” shot with γodoli<sup>30</sup> [arrows] any person which was but of the Merkid “bone.”<sup>31</sup> He made an end of the Three Hundred Merkid which were gone round about [Mount] Burqan [Qaldun],<sup>32</sup> [21v] unto the seed of the seed, till they blew [away] as the ashes [of the hearth]. <sup>38</sup> This word, not glossed, is not elsewhere attested. In §124 below, however, there is found the expression čö'orytai tergen-i (acc.) "the cart having a lock." It may, therefore, be that čorqan = čöryan < čö'oryan "lock." If so, the expression čorqan ger in this passage may mean "lock-tents," i. e., "tents with locks."

<sup>39</sup> The word čoytai "having glory" is glossed 固姑 (ku-ku), a term used during the Yüan dynasty to designate a kind of headgear worn by Mongolian women of mark. It is evident from the word 好 (hao) ("good," i. e., "of mark") in the continuous translation (YCPS 3.25r5) that čoytai was so glossed, because only women of mark wore the ku-ku which, in fact, characterized such women.

§116 [25v] Both Temüjin and Jamuqa, joining forces, pitched at Qorqonay Valley and, being together mindful of the fact that they were formerly together become anda, renewing unto each other their [state of] anda, said unto each other, "Let us love each other." The first time, when they were together become anda, at the moment when Temüjin was eleven years old, Jamuqa giving unto Temüjin a roebuck knucklebone—Temüjin's brass knucklebone [being given unto Jamuqa]—together becoming anda, at the moment when they were playing at knucklebone on the ice of the Onan [River] where they had declared themselves anda, then they declared themselves anda. [26v] After that, in the spring, at the moment when they were shooting together with [their] bows of wood, Jamuqa, gluing [together] the [four halves of] two horns of a calf of two years old and boring holes, giving unto Temüjin his sounding yor<sup>41</sup> [made of the horns] and [with] Temüjin's exchanging a γodoli arrow with a tip of cypress wood, they together became anda. Such [was] the manner in which they declared themselves anda a second time.

§117 [27v] [Temüjin and Jamuqa,] saying unto each other, "Hearing the word of the former elders, saying, '[As for] persons [which are] anda, [their] lives [are] one. Not forsaking one another, they are [the one for the other] a protection for [their] lives,' [one seeth that] such [is] the manner whereby [the anda] love each other. Now renewing again [the oath of] anda, we shall love each other," Temüjin [28r] made to be girded unto Anda Jamuqa the golden girdle which he had taken in spoiling Toyto'a of the Merkid. He suffered to be ridden by Anda Jamuqa Toyto'a's yellowish white [mare] with black tail and mane<sup>42</sup> and barren for several years. Jamuqa made to be girded unto Anda Temü-

§118 [29r] When both Temüjin and Jamuḡa loved each other, loving each other one year and half of a [29v] second year, when, saying unto each other, "Let us journey," they journeyed one day from that encampment where they had been, they journeyed on the sixteenth of the first moon of summer, the "red circle day."<sup>45</sup> When both Temüjin and Jamuḡa going together in front of the carts went forward, when Jamuḡa spake, he said "Anda, Anda [30r] Temüjin,

Let us pitch next [unto] the mountain.
Let our herdmen
Attain unto a tent.<sup>46</sup>

Let us pitch next unto the stream.
Let our shepherds and keepers of lambs
Attain unto [food for] the gullet."<sup>47</sup>

Temüjin, not being able to understand this word of Jamuḡa, standing in silence, remaining behind, waiting for the carts within the journeying camp—since it was a journeying camp—Temüjin said unto Mother Hö'elün, "Anda Jamuḡa speaketh. He speaketh, saying,

'Let us pitch next unto the mountain.
Let our herdmen
Attain unto a tent.

Let us pitch next unto the stream.
Let our shepherds and keepers of lambs
Attain unto [food for] the gullet.'

I not being able to understand this his word, I spake not [31r] even aught as an answer unto it. I am come, saying, 'I shall inquire of [my] mother [concerning this].'" At the moment when Mother Hö'elün had not yet uttered [aught], when Börte Üjin spake, she said, "Anda Jamuḡa is said [to be] one who easily becometh weary. Now the time is come when he becometh weary of us. The words which Anda Jamuḡa hath said a little while ago are words which, then, cover a plot against us. Let us not pitch. While we continue in this movement, let us, separating ourselves well, move, then, travelling at night."

§119 [32r] Approving [this] according to the word of Börte Üjin, not pitching, at the moment when, moving, travelling at night, he went forward, he passed by the Tayiči'ud on the way. And the Tayiči'ud, trembling, also removed the same night, then, in disorder toward Jamuḡa. In the encampment of the Besüd of the Tayiči'ud ours, [33r] having taken a little boy named Kōkōcū, [one] which had remained behind in the encampment, came and gave him unto Mother Hö'elün. Mother Hö'elün nourished [him].

§120 [33v] Travelling all that night, when the day dawned and when they looked, [they saw that] Qač'iun Toyura'un, Qaraqai Toyura'un, and Qaraldai Toyura'un of the Jalayir—these three Toyura'un elder brethren and younger brethren—had travelled at night and were drawing nigh. Again Qada'an Daldurqan, elder brethren and younger brethren of the Taryud—five Taryud [in all]—[34r] were also drawing nigh. Again, [men] such as Önggür, son of Münggetü Kiyan, were also drawing nigh with their Čangši'ud and Baya'ud. From the Barulas there came the elder brethren and younger brethren, Qubilai and Qudus. From the Mangyud there came both brethren Jetei and Doqolqu Čerbi. Ögölen Čerbi, the younger brother of Bo'orču, separated himself [34v] from the Arulad and also came to join unto Bo'orču, his elder brother.<sup>47</sup> The younger brethren of Ĵelme, Ča'urqan and Sübe'etei Ba'atur,<sup>48</sup> separated themselves from the Uriangqan and came to join unto Ĵelme. From the Besüd there also came both brethren Degei and Küčügür. From the Suldus there also came the elder brethren and younger brethren [35r] Čilgütei, Taki, and Tayiči'udai. Seče Domoy of the Ĵalayir also came with his two sons Arqai Qasar and Bala. From the Qongqotan there also came Söyiketü Čerbi. Sükegei Ĵe'ün,<sup>49</sup> the son of Ĵegei Qongdaqor of the Sükeken also came. Ne'üdei [35v] Čaya'an Uua<sup>50</sup> also came. There also came Kinggiyadai of the Olqunu'ud, [and] from the Forolas Seči'ür, and from the Dörben Moči Bedü'ün. Forasmuch as Butu of the İkires had proceeded here as a son in law, he also came. From the Noyakin there also came Ĵungso. From the Oronar there also came Ĵiryo'an. From the Barulas there also came Suyu Sečen [36r] with his son Qaraçar. Again, Qorči, Old Man Üsün, and Kökö Čos of the Ba'arin also came [as] one güre'en together with their Menen Ba'arin.

§121 [37v] When Qorči came and spake, he said, "We [are] born of the woman which Bodončar Boydo<sup>51</sup> seized and took [to wife]. With Ĵamuya we were ones of whom

<sup>47</sup> Although this appears to be at variance with §92 where Bo'orču says, "The only son of Naqu Bayan is I," as demonstrated by Paul PELLIER and Louis HAMBIS, Histoire des campagnes de Gengis khan, Cheng-wou ts'in-tcheng lou, Tome I (Leiden, 1951), p. 348, "To escape the contradiction, we can only admit that conformably moreover to a current Sino-Mongolian usage, 'brother' is applied here to first cousins."

<sup>49</sup> Although each element of this name is, in this instance, independently glossed, as if Sükegei Ĵe'ün constituted, in reality, the names of two persons, the two elements are glossed in §151, however, as the name of a single person. In §§177 and 181, where the name is written Sükegei Ĵe'ün, it is also glossed as the name of a single person. In §§124 and 177 only the first element Sükegei occurs. In §126 the same element is written Sükegei.

<sup>50</sup> Although the elements of this name, Ne'üdei and Čaya'an Uua, are, in this instance, independently glossed, as if Ne'üdei Čaya'an Uua constituted, in reality, the names of two persons, they are glossed in §129 below, however, as the name of a single person. From the Mongolian text in both §120 and §129 it seems evident that Ne'üdei Čaya'an Uua is, in fact, the name of a single person.

We would not [ever] have separated ourselves from Ĵamuya. [Howbeit,] a heavenly foretoken is come unto me and shewed unto mine [38r] eyes [that for which Temüjin is foreordained]. A fallow cow coming, going round about Ĵamuya, having butted his tent cart, butting Ĵamuya, breaking one of [her] two horns, becoming one with [but] a [single] crooked horn, saying and saying, 'Bring [unto me] my horn,' bellowing and [38r] bellowing toward Ĵamuya, she standeth, raising and raising the dust [with her hoofs]. A hornless, fallow ox lifting up a great stake under the tent, harnessing [himself to it], drawing [it], when, behind Temüjin, he drew nigh by the great way, bellowing and bellowing, saying, 'Heaven and Earth taking counsel with each other, let Temüjin become [39r] Lord of the Nation,' and saying, '[I] draw nigh, conveying the nation [unto thee], heavenly foretokens shew unto [mine] eyes and [fore]-tell unto me [that for which Temüjin is foreordained]. If thou, Temüjin, become Lord of the Nation, because I have [so fore]told [unto thee], how wilt thou cause [me] to rejoice?' When Temüjin spake, he said, [39v] "Verily, if they so suffer [me] to govern the nation, I shall make thee a captain of ten thousand." [Qorči] said, "Even if I, a man which hath [fore]told [unto thee] many principles, become a captain of ten thousand, what happiness will [that] be? Having caused [me] to become a captain of ten thousand, suffering [me] to take of my freewill the beautiful and good maidens of the nation, make [me] to become one which hath even [40r] thirty wives. Again, Qučar Beki, the son of Nekün Taisi [also came as] one güre'en. Again, A[l]tan Odčigin, the son of Qutula Qan, [also came] as one güre'en. These, again, removing, separating themselves from Jamuḡa, joining [unto him], pitched [with Temüjin], at the moment when [42r] [Temüjin] was pitching at Ayil Qarayana of the Kimurḡa Stream. Journeying from thence, they pitched [at] Kökö Lake of Qara Jürügen of the Senggür Stream within [Mount] Gürelgü.

§123 [42v] When Altan, Qučar, and Sača Beki took counsel with one another together and spake [43r] unto Temüjin, [saying,] "We shall make thee to become qan. If [thou] Temüjin become qan, we,

§124 [44v] Činggis, being become qahan, Ögölei Čerbi, the younger brother of Bo'orču, carried [45r] a quiver. Qaǰi'un Toyura'un carried a quiver. Both the brethren Jetei and Doqolqu carried [each] a quiver. When Önggür, Söyiketü Čerbi, and Qada'an Daldurqan—[all] three—spake, saying,

Let them become the keepers of the geldings.

[Činggis Qahan] said, "As for the Tayiči'ud Qutu, Moriči, and Mulqalqu—[all] three—let them herd the herds." [Činggis Qahan] said, "As for Arqai Qasar, Tayai, Sükegei, and Ča'urqan—[all] four—let them become

CHAPTER IV

§127 [1r] When [Činggis Qahan] sent both Arqai Qasar and Ča'ur-qan as messengers unto Jamuša, when Jamuša spake, when he sent, speaking, saying, "Speak unto both Altan and Qučar," he sent, saying, "Altan and Qučar, ye twain, between both Anda Temüjin and us,

Piercing
The loins,
Pricking

of the anda, why [1v] have ye made [us] to separate ourselves? At the moment when both the anda and we were yet together, not suffering [you] to make [us] to separate ourselves, why made ye not Anda Temüjin qan? Now, thinking what thoughts have ye made him qan? Altan and Qučar, ye twain, keeping to your words which ye did speak, pacifying the thoughts of the anda, be [ye] companions well unto mine anda."

§128 [2r] After that, when Taičar, the younger brother of Jamuša, was at Ölegei Spring [2v] in front of [Mount] Jalama, he went for to steal the herd of horses of our Joči Darmala which was at the Sa'ari Steppe. Taičar stole the herd of horses of Joči Darmala and took [it] away. [As for] Joči Darmala, his herd having been stolen and the hearts of his companions having failed, [3r] the same Joči Darmala going, pursuing [him], and at night arriving at the side of his herd, lying with his liver<sup>1</sup> on the mane of his horse, arriving, shooting asunder the back of Taičar, having killed [him] and having taken his herd of horses, he came [back].

§129 [3v] Saying that their younger brother Taičar had been killed, the Jadaran having Jamuḡa at their head, thirteen tribes becoming companions, being thirty thousand [in number], passing by [Mount] Ala'u'd and [Mount] Turya'u'd, setting forth against [4r] Činggis Qahan, saying, "They draw nigh," both Mülke Totay and Boroldai from the Ikires, at the moment when Činggis Qahan was at [Mount] Gürelgü, came, bringing a message. Having [thus] known this message—Činggis Qahan was thirteen güre'ed [in number]—being also thirty thousand [in number], [4v] setting forth against Jamuḡa, setting himself in array [at] Dalan Baljud, Činggis Qahan, then being made to remove by Jamuḡa, fled for refuge unto the Jerene Narrows of the Onon [River]. When Jamuḡa spake, he said, "We have made [him] to flee for refuge unto Jerene of the Onon," and, when he returned, [5r] making the princes of the Činos to be boiled [in] seventy kettles and cutting off the head of Ne'üdei Čaya'an U'a, he dragged [it] away at the tail of [his] horse.

§130 [5v] Then, after that Jamuḡa was returned from thence, Jürcedei of the Uru'u'd, having led his Uru'u'd, and Quyludar of the Mangyud, having led his Mangyud, [6r] separated themselves from Jamuḡa and came unto Činggis Qahan. Father Münglig of the Qongqotad then being with Jamuḡa, Father Münglig with his seven sons separated himself from Jamuḡa and then came to join himself unto Činggis Qahan. Saying, "These people are come from Jamuḡa," Činggis Qahan, rejoicing [6v] in himself, saying, "The people are come," Činggis Qahan, Hö'elün Üjin, Qasar, together with Sača Beki,<sup>2</sup> Taiču, and others of the Jürkin, saying unto one another, "Let us feast in the forest of the Onan [River]," when they feasted, they poured [the content of] one pitcher first for Činggis Qahan, for Hö'elün Üjin, for Qasar, for Sača Beki, and [for] others. [7r] Because [in serving the women] they also poured [the content of] one pitcher beginning at Ebegei, the "little mother"<sup>3</sup> of Sača Beki, both Qorijin Qatun and Qu'určın Qatun, saying, [each unto herself,] "How pour they, not beginning at me, but beginning at Ebegei?," smote the cook Šiki'ür. Being smitten, when the cook Šiki'ür spake, having said, "Because both Yesügei Ba'adur and [7v] Nekün Taisi are dead, why am I thus smitten?,"<sup>4</sup> he wailed with a loud voice.

§131 [8r] Belgütei from us, having set that feast in order, bringing the geldings of Činggis Qahan, was standing [there]. Büri Bökö from the Jürkin was setting [8v] that feast in order. [Belgütei] seized as a robber a person of the Qadagid which had stolen a tether from our kirü'ese.<sup>5</sup> Büri Bökö protecting his that person—Belgütei, constantly, when he wrestled, having put off his right sleeve, went [with his right arm] bare—Büri Bökö clave asunder [9r] with a sword his bare shoulder from which he had so put off [his sleeve].<sup>6</sup> When Činggis Qahan, sitting in the shade, seeing from within the feast Belgütei, which, being thus cloven, then, not making [it] to be even aught and not troubling himself, went, suffering the blood to flow, came out and spake, at the moment when he was saying, "How have we been being so done unto?," [9v] when Belgütei spake, he said, "The wound is not yet [grievous]. I fear lest, because of me, there be for the brethren displeasure on one side and the other. I am not disabled. I am somewhat better. At the moment when the elder brethren and the younger brethren are hardly become accustomed to one another, let the elder brother abstain [from doing something which could make an end of the agreement]. Wait a moment!"<sup>7</sup>

§132 [10r] Činggis Qahan [and his people], as Belgütei stayed [him] so much as that, not being willing, tearing asunder the branches of trees, drawing the beaters [10v] out of the leathern buckets, together smiting [them], overcoming the Jürkin, ravished and took both Qorijin Qadun and Qu'určın Qadun. Moreover, the same,<sup>8</sup> being told, "Let us make peace," returning both Qorijin Qadun and Qu'určın Qadun, at the moment when they were sending messengers unto each other, saying, "Let us make peace," [Činggis Qahan] learned the message [whereby one was] saying, "The Altan Qan of the Kitad people, when Megüjin Se'ültü and others of the Tatar [11r] would not hearken unto his counsel, sent, then, saying unto Ongging Čingsang,<sup>9</sup> 'Making ready the soldiers, doubt [thou] not!' Ongging Čingsang, driving up along the Ulja [River] the Tatar having Megüjin Se'ültü at their head, with their herds and food, draweth nigh." Having learned that message, §133 [11v] when Činggis Qahan spake, having said, "From days of old the Tatar people have been a hating people which have made an end of [our] [12r] grandfathers and fathers. Now at this opportunity we shall together attack [them]," he sent messengers bringing this message unto To'oril Qan, saying, "One saith, 'Ongging Čingsang of the Altan Qan draweth nigh, driving up along the Ulja [River] the Tatar having Megüjin Se'ültü of the Tatar at their head.' We shall together attack [12v] the Tatar which have made an end of our grandfathers and fathers. Let Father To'oril Qan come quickly." Having received this message, when To'oril Qan spake, having said, "My son is come, telling [me] rightly. We shall together attack," the third day, mustering his army and making the army to arise [13r] To'oril Qan, hasting, came in person.<sup>10</sup> When both Činggis Qahan and To'oril Qan sent, telling [it] unto the Jürkin having Sača Beki and Taiču of the Jürkin at their head, [13v] they sent, saying, "Let us now at this opportunity jointly attack and let us set forth together against the Tatar which from days of old have made an end of our grandfathers and fathers." Waiting six days from the [time when it was] to be come by the Jürkin, not being able [to wait any longer], both Činggis Qahan and To'oril Qan, [their] armies arising together, at the moment when they were drawing nigh along the Ulja [River], together attacking with Ongging Čingsang, at Qu-sutu Šitü'en and Naratu Šitü'en of the Ulja, the Tatar having

<sup>10</sup> The word igtinejü, not glossed, is not elsewhere attested. It is a converbum imperfecti in -jü of a verb igtine-. My tentative translation is based on that which is found in the continuous translation of the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih 4.14v9: 親自到來 (Ch'in-tzu tao-lai). "He came in person."

Megüjin [Se'ültü] of the Tatar at their head held there [14r] a fortress. Both Činggis Qahan and To'oril Qan, seizing from their fortress [those] which had so fortified themselves and Megüjin Se'ültü, then killing Megüjin Se'ültü, Činggis Qahan then took his silver cradle and [his] bed covering decked with [big] pearls.

§134 [15r] Saying, "They have killed Megüjin Se'ültü"—[that is to say] both Činggis Qahan and To'oril Qan<sup>11</sup>—Ongging Čingsang, having learned that they had killed Megüjin Se'ültü, rejoicing exceedingly, gave unto Činggis Qahan the title ja'ud quri. Then he gave unto To'oril of the Gereyid the title ong.<sup>12</sup> Because Ongging Čingsang had named the name [15v] Ong Qan, from thenceforth [To'oril] was [Ong Qan]. When Ongging Čingsang spake, he said, "[By] your having jointly attacked and killed Megüjin Se'ültü ye have done exceeding great service unto the Altan Qan. I shall report this your service unto the Altan Qan. Let the Altan Qan know whether he should add unto Činggis Qahan a greater title than this and should give [unto him] the title [16r] jautau."<sup>13</sup> Ongging Čingsang withdrew from thence, rejoicing so much as that. Both Činggis Qahan and Ong Qan, then, spoiling the Tatar, parting unto each other [the spoil], together taking [it], returned unto their abodes and lighted.

§135 [16v] At the moment when we were spoiling in the encampment where the Tatar had pitched at Naratu Šitü'en where they had fortified themselves, our soldiers got from the encampment a little boy—[one] which [the Tatar] had forsaken. Bringing the little boy which had a golden, round ring [in his nose] and which had a stomacher of gold silk and lined with sable, Činggis Qahan

Cf. Altan Tobči, A Brief History of the Mongols, Vol. I, p. 82, ll. 2-3. gave [him] unto Mother Hö'elün, saying, "[He is] a sauya." [17v] When Mother Hö'elün spake, [she said,] "He must be the son of a good man. He must be the offspring of a man whose origin is good." Making [him] to be [her] sixth son, the younger brother of her five sons, the mother named [him] Šikiken Quduqu<sup>14</sup> and raised [him] up.

§136 [18r] The a'uruγ of Činggis Qahan was at Hariltu Lake. The Jürkin stripped off the clothing of fifty men—[those] which had remained behind in the a'uru'ud. They killed ten men. Saying, "[We] have been so done unto by the Jürkin," when those [18v] of us who had remained behind in the a'uru'ud told [it] unto Činggis Qahan, having heard this message, when Činggis Qahan, being exceeding wroth, spake, having said, "How have we been being thus done unto by the Jürkin? At the moment when we were feasting in the forest of the Onan [River], the same also smote the cook Šiki'ür. The same also clave the shoulder of [19r] Belgütei. As it was said [by them], 'Let us make peace,' [we] returned and gave [back] both Qoriġin Qadun and Qu'určın. After that, saying, 'Let us set forth, together attacking the hating and resentful Tatar of former times which had made an end of our grandfathers and fathers,' although we awaited the Jürkin for six [19v] days, neither was it come [by them]. Now, again, relying on the enemy,<sup>15</sup> an enemy they themselves also are," Činggis Qahan set forth against the Jürkin. At the moment when the Jürkin were at the Dolo'an Bolda'ud of Ködö'e Isle of the Kelüren [River], he spoiled their people. Both Sača Beki and [20r] Taiču, few [in number] and with [nothing other than their] bodies, fled. Pursuing after them and overtaking them at the Telētü Outlet, he seized both Sača Beki and Taiču. [After] seizing [them], when Činggis Qahan spake unto both Sača and Taiču, [20v] being told, "What said we unto one another in days of old?" when both Sača and Taiču spake, having said, "We have not kept to our §137 [21r] Having accomplished [the matter of] both Sača and Taiču, [Činggis Qahan] came back.<sup>19</sup> At the moment when he was making the people of the Jürkin to remove, the sons of Telegetü Bayan of the Jalayir, Gü'ün U'a, Čila'un Qayıči, and Jebke—[all] three—were at those Jürkin. When Gü'ün U'a presented himself with his two sons Muqali and [22r] Buqa and spake, he gave [them unto him], saying,

They gave Jebke unto Qasar. Jebke brought from the encampment of the Jürkin a little boy named Boro'ul and, presenting himself unto Mother Hö'elün, [23v] gave [him unto her].

§138 [24r] When Mother Hö'elün raised up within the tent the boy named Gücü which was gotten from the encampment of the Mer-[ki]d, the boy named Kōkōcü which was gotten from the encampment of the Besüd in the midst of the Tayiči'ud, [24v] the boy named Šigiken Qutuqu which was gotten from the encampment of the Tatar, and the boy named Boro'ul which was gotten from the encampment of the Jürkin—these four—, Mother Hö'elün raised [them] up within the tent, saying, "[If it be not they,] of whom, for my sons, would I [otherwise] make

§139 [25r] [As for] the reason [of the name] of these Jürkin people, when they became Jürkin, the eldest brother of the seven sons of Qabul Qan was Ökin Baraqay.<sup>23</sup> His son was Sorqatu Jürki. Which had gall<sup>24</sup> in the liver;
Which had ability in the thumb to shoot arrows;
Which had lungs full of heart;
Which had mouths full of fury.
Which, every man,
Had skill

and, because they had fury, had gall, had courage, and were [26r] jörkimes,<sup>25</sup> such [is] the reason for which they are called Jürkin. Činggis Qahan conquered such courageous people and destroyed those which were of the Jürkin clan. Činggis Qahan made its people and [its] folk to be his own private people.

§140 One day Činggis Qahan said, "Let us make the twain, Būri Bökö and Belgütei, to wrestle." Būri Bökö [27r] was at the Jürkin —[Beforetime]<sup>26</sup> Būri Bökö, seizing Belgütei with one of [his] hands, thrusting [him] with one of [his] legs, making [him] to fall, assayed to press [him to the ground], not suffering [him] to move. Būri Bökö [was] the strong man<sup>27</sup> of the nation.—Then [Činggis Qahan] made both Belgütei and Būri Bökö to wrestle. Būri Bökö—a man which was not to be overcome—willingly fell. Belgütei, not being able [27v] to press [him to the ground], took hold of [his] shoulders and gat him up on [his] buttocks. Belgütei looked back and, with [his] seeing Činggis Qahan, the Qahan bit his lower lip. Belgütei, getting understanding, sat<sup>28</sup> on top of him and, crossing the two [ends of] his collar, pulled, holding in [his] hand [the two ends of the collar], and, putting his knee on his

<sup>25</sup> In jörkimes we have a folk etymology based on a consonance (Sorqatu Jürki, jörkimes, and Jürkin). The word jörkimes, not glossed, is not elsewhere attested. The meaning "irresistible" is suggested by the continuous translation in the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih 4.26v2: 無人能敵 (Wu jen neng ti). "There was not anyone who could resist [them]." In note 4 on pages 200-201 of the Histoire des campagnes de Gengis khan, PELLLOT and HAMBIS stated, with reference to jörkimes, "in fact, this appears to be a negative form of Turkish type."

<sup>26</sup> The Altan tobči (nova) has urida. Cf. Altan Tobči, A Brief History of the Mongols, Vol. I, p. 86, l. 7. The continuous translation in the Yüan-ch'ao pi-shih (4.29r4) also has 先 (hsien) "beforetime."

backbone, brake [it] and dispatched [him]. When [28r] Būri Bökö, his back being broken, spake, having said, "I should not have been overcome by Belgütei. Being afraid of the Qahan, by a device, being fallen and faltering, I have been attained unto my life," he died. Belgütei, having pulled his back so that it brake, dragged [him] away, [28v] cast [him] away, and departed. The eldest brother of the seven sons of Qabul Qan was Ökin Barqay. The next was Bartan Ba'atur. His son was Yesügei Ba'atur. The one next to him was Qutuytu Müngler.<sup>29</sup> His son was Būri. Because, [going] [29r] beyond [the lineage of] the son of Bartan Ba'atur which was closest [to him in age], he was become a companion unto the courageous sons of Barqay, Būri Bökö, [although he was] the strong man of the nation, died, suffering his back to be broken by Belgütei.

§141 [30r] After that, [in] the year of the cock [1201], the Qadagin and the Salji'ud joining themselves—the Qadagin having Baqu Čorogi of the Qadagin at their head and [the Salji'ud] having Čirgidai Ba'atur of the Salji'ud at their head—the Dörben making peace with the Tatar—[the Dörben] having Qaĵi'un Beki of the Dörben at their head and [the Tatar] having Ĵalin Buqa of the Alči Tatar of the Tatar at their head—[the Ikires] having [30v] Tüge Maqa of the Ikires at their head, [the Unggirad] having Dergeg, Emel, Alqui, and others of the Unggirad at their head, [the Forolas] having Čonay and Čaya'an of the Forolas at their head, Buyiruy Qan of the Güčü'ud Naiman from the Naiman, Qutu the son of Toyto'a Beki of the Merkid, Quduqa Beki of the Oyirad, and Tayiči'ud such as Taryutai Kiriltuy, Qodun Orčang, and [30v] A'uču Ba'atur of the Tayiči'ud, these tribes, assembling themselves at Alqui Spring, saying, "Let us raise up Ĵamuya the Ĵajirad as qa," together cut in twain a stallion and a mare and made covenant with one another. Journeying from there down along the Ergüne River at the corner of the island where the Ken River poureth into the Ergüne, they then raised up [31v] Ĵamuya as gür qa.<sup>30</sup> Having raised [him] up as gür qa, they said unto one another, "Let us set forth against both Činggis Qahan and Ong Qan." That they had said unto one another, "Let us set forth," Qoridai of the Forolas, at the moment when Činggis Qahan was at [Mount] Gürelgü, sent, bringing this message. [32r] Having suffered this message to come, when Činggis Qahan sent, bringing this message unto Ong Qan, Ong Qan, having suffered [him] to bring [this] message [unto him], making his army to arise, hasting, Ong Qan, arriving, came unto Činggis Qahan.

§142 [32v] Having suffered Ong Qan to come, both Činggis Qahan and Ong Qan joining themselves, [33r] said unto each other, "Let us set forth against Ĵamuya." When they set forth down along the Kelüren River, Činggis Qahan made Altan, Qučar, and Daritai—[all] three—to go as vanguards. Ong Qan made Senggüm, Ĵaqa Gambu, and Bilge Beki—[all] three—to go as vanguards. Again when they sent watchmen in front of these vanguards, they placed one station [33v] of watchmen at Enegen Güiletü. Beyond that they made [one] to place one station of watchmen at [Mount] Čegčer. Beyond that they made [one] to place one station of watchmen at [Mount] Čiqurqu. At the moment when our vanguards, Altan, Qučar, Senggüm, and others, arriving [at] Udkiya, were saying unto one another, "Let us pitch," a man from the watchmen [34r] which [we] had placed at [Mount] Čiqurqu, hasting, came and brought a message, saying, "The enemy draweth nigh." That message being come, not pitching, going against the enemy, saying, "Let us get tidings," together arriving, getting tidings, when they asked, saying, "Who are [ye]?" [they learned that] A'uču Ba'atur from the Mongyol, [34v] Buyiruy Qan of the Naiman, Qutu, son of Toyto'a Beki of the Merkid, and Quduqa Beki of the Oyirad, vanguards of Ĵamuya—these four—were gone as vanguards of Ĵamuya. Our vanguards cried unto those. While they were crying, it was become evening. Saying, "We shall fight with one another to morrow," withdrawing, they passed the night, uniting [forces] with the middle [of our army].

§143 [35r] On the morrow making [the soldiers] to march, coming together, together setting themselves in array [at] Köyiten, at the moment when [in joining battle the two armies] were making each other to retire [now] downward and [now] upward<sup>31</sup> and [35v] were reforming their ranks, both the same Buyiruy Qan and Quduqa knew [how to make] a jada.<sup>32</sup> As they began to make a jada, the jada turned, and the jada was upon them, the same. The same not being able to march, being tumbled into ravines, having said unto one another, "We have not been loved by Heaven," [36r] dispersed themselves.

§144 Buyiruy Qan of the Naiman, [36v] separating himself [from Jamuqa], removed, betaking himself [unto] Uluq Tay<sup>33</sup> in front of the Altai. Qutu, son of Toyto'a of the Merkid, removed, betaking himself [unto] the Selenge [River]. Quduqa Beki of the Oyirad, striving for the forest, removed, betaking himself [unto] Šisgis. A'uču Ba'atur of the Tayiči'ud removed, betaking himself [unto] the Onan [River]. Jamuqa, having spoiled the peoples which had raised himself up as qa, Jamuqa removed, returning down along [37r] the Ergüne. Those being so dispersed, Ong Qan pursued Jamuqa down along the Ergüne [River]. Činggis Qahan pursued A'uču Ba'atur of the Tayiči'ud toward the Onan. A'uču Ba'atur, being come unto his people, having made [them] to remove, making [them] to haste, the Tayiči'ud, [37v] A'uču Ba'atur and Hodun Orčang, ordering their remaining soldiers having square shields [on] the yonder side of the Onan [River], stood, ordering [them], saying, "Let us fight!"<sup>34</sup> Činggis Qahan, being arrived, fought with the Tayiji'ud. Fighting exceedingly back and forth, evening coming, [the two armies] passed the night [so close to each other that they were as] propped the one over against the other in the same place [38r] in which they had fought.

<sup>34</sup> Although I have translated the text as it is, it is not to be doubted, as already demonstrated by P. PELLLOT in his article "Un passage altéré dans le texte mongol ancien de l'Histoire secrète des Mongols" in the T'oung Pao 27 (1930).199-202, that the reading hüle'üd turastan "[their] remaining [soldiers] having square shields" is an error for Ülengüd Turas-tur "at Ülengüd Turas." The Altan tobči (nova) has Ulqud Turay-tur. Cf. Altan Tobči, A Brief History of the Mongols, Vol. I, p. 90, l. 12.

And when the people, fleeing, were drawing nigh, even there they made a güre'en and passed the night together with their soldiers.

§145 [38v] As Činggis Qahan, a vein of his neck being wounded in that battle, tried to stanch the blood, when, not being able, he was in a strait, waiting till the sun was set, even there, [the two armies being so close to each other that they were as] propped the one over against the other, he pitched. Jelme, sucking and sucking [39r] the blood which had stopped [the wound], his mouth being stained with blood, Jelme, not relying on [any] other person, sat keeping watch over [him]. Until it was become midnight, in mouthfuls having swallowed or having spat [out] the blood which had stopped [the wound], as midnight was passed, when Činggis Qahan, awakening within him, spake, he said, "The blood hath finished drying up. [39v] I am thirsty." Thereupon, Jelme putting off his hat, boots, and garments—everything—, with [his] only breeches, [otherwise] stark naked, running amongst the enemies which were standing, [the two armies being so close to each other that they were as] propped the one over against the other, getting him up into a cart of the people which had made a güre'en yonder, seeking mare's milk, [but] not being able [to find any]—when [those people] were fled, they had loosed their [40r] mares, not milking [them]—not being able to get mare's milk, having taken from [one of] their carts a great [vessel of] curd having a covering, he lifted [it] up and came. On the way, when he went and came, he was not seen by [any] person. Heaven, indeed, protected him. Having fetched the curd with the covering, the same Jelme [40v] himself, indeed, seeking and fetching water, mixed the curd and made [it] to be drunk by the Qa'an. Drinking [it], resting thrice, when the Qahan spake, having said, "[Mine] eyes are become bright within [me]," while he sat up, the day dawned and, as it became bright, when he looked, [he perceived that] round about that [place where he] had sat there was a mire round about [the place where] Jelme had, sucking and [41r] sucking, spat [out] the blood which had stopped [the wound]. When Činggis Qahan, seeing [it], spake, he said, "What is this? If [thou] hadst spat afar, how would it have been?" Thereupon, when Jelme spake, he said,

"When thou wast in a strait, being afraid of the fact that, if I should go afar, I should be separated from thee, being in haste, having swallowed [41v] that which I swallowed and having spat that which I spat, as I was in a strait, how much also entered into my belly?" When Činggis Qahan again spake, he said, "While, being such, I was [so] lying, why didst thou, naked, run and enter [amongst those enemies]? If [thou] hadst been taken, wouldst [42r] thou not have reported that I [was] such?" When Jelme spake, he said, "As for my thought, [it was that,] when [I] went naked, if I should be taken [by them], I would say, 'I have had the desire of submitting myself unto you. Perceiving and seizing [me], saying, "Let us kill [him]," [the Mongyol] putting off my garments—everything—, at the moment when they had not yet put off mine only breeches, I suddenly escaped and now am come, [42v] rejoining myself unto you.' Regarding me as sincere, they would have given garments unto me and would have cared for [me]. Having ridden a horse, while [astonished] they would have been watching [me escape], in a space of time as long [as that which they would have needed to do that], would I not be come [back]? So thinking and saying [unto myself], 'I would that I arrive in time for [satisfying] the desire [to drink] caused by the parching thirst of the Qa'an, 'the eye [remaining] black,'<sup>36</sup> thus thinking, [43r] I am gone." When Činggis Qahan spake, he made a decree, saying, "Now what shall I say? In days of old, at the moment when the Three Merkid, coming, were making [me] to go round about Burqan [Qaldun] thrice, thou didst once save my life.<sup>36</sup> Now, again, sucking with [thy] mouth the blood which was drying up [43v], thou didst [re]open my life. Again, at the moment when I was in a strait with a parching thirst, risking thy life, 'the eye [remaining] black,'<sup>37</sup> thou didst enter into [the midst of] the enemy. Making [my] drink to be sufficient, thou didst make [my] life to enter [into me again]. Let these thy three services be within my thoughts."

§146 [45r] After that the day had dawned, the soldiers which had passed the night [so close to one another that they were as] propped over against one another, in the night, then, had dispersed themselves. The peoples which had made a güre'en [there], saying that they would not be able to flee, did not remove from the place where they made a güre'en. Saying, "Let us cause the people which are fled to come back," Činggis Qahan, setting forth from the place where he had passed the night, at the moment when he was going, causing [45v] the people which were fleeing to come back, Činggis Qahan himself, hearing a woman with a red garment which was standing on a [mountain] pass, crying and wailing in a loud voice, saying, "Temüjin!", sent a man for to ask, saying, "What man's wife is so crying?" As that man went and [46r] asked, when that woman spake, she said, "I am the daughter of Sorqan Šira. [I am] named Qada'an. The soldiers here have seized my husband and are killing [him]. When my husband was being killed, I called, cried, and wailed, saying, 'Let Temüjin save my husband.'" When that man came [back] and spake these words [46v] unto Činggis Qa'an, Činggis Qahan, having heard these words, trotting, arrived. Činggis Qahan lighted at [the place where] Qada'an [was] and they embraced each other. Our soldiers had before killed her husband. Having caused those people to return, Činggis Qahan and the great army, pitching even there, [47r] passed the night. Inviting Qada'an, he suffered [her] to come and suffered [her] to sit beside [him]. The next day both Sorqan Šira and Jebe—those two which were people of Tödöge of the Tayiči'ud—also came. When Činggis Qahan spake unto Sorqan Šira, he said,

"Having cast upon the ground
The heavy wood
Which was at [my] neck,
Having made to be removed
The buγa'u wood
Which was at [my] [47v] collar, were services of you, father and son. Ye, why have ye delayed [to come]? " When Sorqan Šira spake, he said, "I have been thinking within me of [my] present support. Saying [unto myself], 'Why should I be in haste? If, being in haste, I am come before, my Tayiči'ud chiefs, those, will make to blow away as the ashes [of my hearth] my wife and sons, [48r] herd and food which I shall have left behind,' not being in haste, now, overtaking [you], we are come to unite forces with our Qahan." When he had made an end of speaking, [Činggis Qahan] said, "[It is] right!"

§147 [49r] Again, when Činggis Qahan spake, he said, "At the moment when [in joining battle the two armies], setting themselves in array [at] Köyiten, were making each other to retire and were reforming their ranks, from on those ridges there came an arrow. Who [then], from on the mountain, shot so as to break the atlas<sup>88</sup> of my war qula<sup>89</sup> white of mouth?" At [49v] that word, when Ĵebe spake, he said, "I shot from on the mountain. Now, if I be caused to die by the Qa'an, I shall remain rotting [on] a [piece of] ground the size of the palm [of a hand]. If I be favoured, before the Qa'an

I shall rush [forward] for [him]
 So as to cleave the deep water asunder,
 So as to break the bright stone to pieces.<sup>40</sup>
 I shall rush [forward] for [him]
 So as to break to pieces
 The blue stone
 In the place whither he shall have said,
   'Arrive [thither]';
 So as to break to pieces
 The black stone [50r]
 At the time when he shall have said, 'Assault.'"<sup>41</sup>

When Činggis Qahan spake, saying, "A man which hath walked as an enemy concealeth the fact that he hath killed, that he hath

If [I] say, 'As for this [man],' <sup>42</sup> however, not hiding the fact that he hath killed and that he hath been an enemy, he [50v] is, however, declaring [it]. He is a man that may be a companion. He is named Ĵiryo'adai. Because the same shot my war qula white of mouth, in the atlas, I shall use him as a weapon, naming [him] Ĵebe," <sup>43</sup> naming [him] Ĵebe, he made a decree, saying, "Go at my side." Such [was] the manner in which Ĵebe came from the Tayiči'ud and [51r] became a companion [unto Činggis Qahan].<sup>44</sup>

<sup>43</sup> The name Ĵebe means "Weapon." He is so named, as we see, from the facts that he shot the Ĵebelegü qula, "the war qula" or, more literally, "the qula which served as a weapon (Ĵebe)," and that Činggis Qahan says: "Ĵebeleye imayi" "I shall use him as a weapon (Ĵebe)," i. e., "instead of my Ĵebelegü qula which he shot."

CHAPTER V

§148 [1r] Činggis Qahan then spoiling the Tayiči'ud, making [them] to blow in the wind as ashes [of the hearth], slew unto the seed of the seed the men of the Tayiči'ud "bone"—Tayiči'ud such as A'uču Ba'atur, Qoton Orčang, and Qudu'udar. Making their nation and people to remove, [1v] coming, Činggis Qahan wintered [at] Quba Qaya.

moment when, being astride<sup>5</sup> [him], he was at the point to cut his throat with his big knife, when Taryutai Kiriltuy, with a loud voice, calling his younger brethren and sons, spake, saying, "Širgü'etü [3v] is killing me. When he maketh an end of killing [me], taking away my dead body without life, what will ye do? At the moment when he hath not yet killed me, return ye quickly! Temüjin will not kill me. At the time when Temüjin [was yet] little, saying [unto myself], 'He hath saying [unto myself], [4r] 'He is remaining behind in an encampment without a lord,'<sup>7</sup> [I] went for to take [him] and [I] brought [him hither]. Saying [unto myself], 'If I instruct [him], it seemeth that he will learn,'

[I] instructed and taught [him]

His mind
Is opening.'<sup>8</sup>

Temüjin will [4v] not make me to die. Ye, my sons and younger brethren, return ye quickly. Širgü'etü will kill me," he wailed with a loud voice. When his sons and younger brethren spake unto one another, saying unto one another, "We are come, saying, 'We shall save the life of [our] father.' When Širgü'etü maketh an end of making his life to die, what shall we do with his empty [5r] body without life? However, let us quickly return, at the moment when he hath not yet killed [him],” they returned. The sons of Old Man Širgü’etü, Alay and Naya’a, came [back], having withdrawn themselves [from their father], at the moment when those<sup>9</sup> were come. [Širgü’etü] having suffered them to come, when, removing, they were drawing nigh, when, on the way, they arrived at Qutuqul Nu’u, then when [5v] Naya’a spake, he said, “If, seizing this Taryutai, we arrive, Činggis Qahan, saying [unto himself] that we are come, laying hand on our proper qan, Činggis Qahan, saying of us, ‘Those who are come, having laid hand on their proper qan, people worthy of what confidence [are] these? How would they also be companions unto us? [They are] people which one is not able to regard as companions. People which have laid hand upon their proper [6r] qan shall be beheaded.’ Shall we [not] be beheaded? In stead, releasing Taryutai from hence and sending [him back], let us go, saying, ‘We are come [with nothing other than] our bodies to give [our] might<sup>10</sup> unto Činggis Qahan.’ [6v] We shall say, ‘Seizing Taryutai, we were drawing nigh. Not being able to forsake<sup>11</sup> our proper qan, saying [unto ourselves], “How shall we make [him] to die before our eyes?,” releasing [him], we are come, believing in [you] and saying, ‘We shall give [our] might [unto you].’” The father and sons, approving this word of Naya’a, released Taryutai Kiriltuy from Quduqul Nu’u and sent [him back]. When the same, Old Man Širgü’etü, with his sons Alay and Naya’a, was come, he<sup>12</sup> said, “How [7r] [is it that ye] are come?” When Old Man Širgü’etü spake unto Činggis Qahan, he said, “When, seizing Taryutai Kiriltuy, [we] were drawing nigh, saying, moreover, ‘How could we make our proper qan to die before our eyes?,’ not being able to forsake [him], releasing [him], we are come, saying, ‘We shall give [our] might unto Činggis Qahan.’” At that, when Činggis Qahan spake, saying, “If [ye] were come, laying hand upon Taryutai your [7v] qan, ye would have caused yourselves to be beheaded with your seed—people which had laid hand upon their own proper qan. Your thought that [ye] were not able to forsake your own proper qan is right,” he favored Naya’a.

§150 [8v] After that, Jaqa Gambu of the Kereyid came for to be a companion unto Činggis Qahan, at the moment when [Činggis Qahan] was at [9r] Tersüd. At [the time when] he came, as the Merkid came for to fight, Činggis Qahan, Jaqa Gambu, and others fought and made [them] to withdraw. Then the ten thousand Tübegen and the many Dongqayid<sup>13</sup> and the Kereyid people which had dispersed themselves, came submitting themselves unto Činggis Qahan. As for Ong Qahan<sup>14</sup> of the Kereyid, before, in the time of [9v] Yesügei Qa’an,<sup>15</sup> in[asmuch as] they lived together happily and peacefully, he declared [himself] anda with Yesügei Qan.<sup>16</sup> [As to] his reason for having declared [himself] anda, because Ong Qan had killed the younger brethren of Qurčaqus Buyiruy Qan, his father, making a revolt against his paternal uncle, Gür Qan, being made to slip [into] Qara’un Qabčal, [10r] [only] a hundred men going out, as he came unto Yesügei Qan, Yesügei Qan receiving him unto himself, his own soldiers setting forth, because he drave Gür Qan toward Qašin and took and gave unto Ong Qan his people and folk, that they became anda [is] that.<sup>17</sup>

§151 [11r] After that, when Erke Qara, the younger brother of Ong Qan, was [to be] killed by his elder brother, Ong Qan, he fled away and submitted himself unto Inanča Qan of the Naiman. Inanča Qan sent troops, but Ong Qan, passing by three cities, betaking himself [thither] was gone unto Gür Qan of the Qara Kidad. From thence, making a revolt, having passed by [11v] the <sup>15</sup> This is the only instance in the Secret History in which Yesügei is referred to as Yesügei Qa’an. Elsewhere he is referred to as Yesügei (e. g., §50), Yesügei Ba’atur (e. g., §50), and Yesügei Qan (e. g., §96).

cities of the Uiyud and of the Tangyud, seizing and together milking five goats and pricking the blood of a camel, having eaten [it],<sup>18</sup> as, being in a strait, he came to Lake Güse'ür, Činggis Qahan, by reason of the fact that beforetime [Ong Qan] had declared [himself] anda with Yesügei Qan,<sup>19</sup> having sent messengers, both Tayai Ba'atur and Sükegei Je'un, from the head of the Kelüren [River], [12r] Činggis Qahan himself went toward [him]. Saying, "He is come, hungering and wasting away," for Ong Qan he levied levies and, suffering him to enter within [his] güre'en, [so] nourished [him]. That winter they journeyed in [parallel] ranks and Činggis Qahan wintered at Quba Qaya.

§152 [12v] Then, when the younger brethren of Ong Qan, the chiefs and others, spake unto one another, they said unto one another, [13r] "This qan, our elder brother, hath a poor nature and goeth, having a stinking liver in his bosom."<sup>20</sup> He hath made an end of [his] brethren. He hath also submitted himself unto the Qara Kidad. And he maketh the people to suffer. Now how shall we deal with him? If we speak of an early day, [we recall to mind that] the Merkid people ravished [him which was] seven years old and made [him] to wear a black, speckled kid [13v] coat and he beat a mortar of the Merkid in the Bu'ura Steppe of the Selenge [River]. As his father Qurčaqus Buyiruy Qan, however, breaking the Merkid people, then came, saving his son, again, at the moment when again Ajai Qan of the Tatar, ravishing [him which was] thirteen years old, together with [his] mother, was making [him] to herd his [14r] camels, having taken a shepherd of Ajai Qan, he fled and is come [hither]. Again, after that, being afraid of the Naiman, he escaped and went unto Güir Qan of the Qara Kidad, in the land of the Sarta'ul at the Čui River. Then, one year not [yet] being ended, furthermore, removing in revolt, when he was going, passing by the lands of the Ui'ud and [14v] the Tang'ud, being in a strait, seizing and milking five goats and pricking and eating the blood of a camel, having an only, blind yellow<sup>21</sup> horse with black mane and tail, as, being in a strait, he came unto [his] son<sup>22</sup> Temüjin, [Temüjin] levied levies and [so] nourished [him]. Now, [15r] forgetting the fact that he was so gone unto [his] son Temüjin, he goeth, having a stinking liver in his bosom. How shall we deal with [him]? "Altun Ašuy reported unto Ong Qan the words which they had thus spoken unto one another. When Altun Ašuy spake, saying, "And I also am entered into this counsel. However, I was not able to forsake thee, my Qan," then [15v] Ong Qan made one to seize his younger brethren and his chiefs such as El Qutur, Qulbari, and Arin Taisi, which had thus spoken unto one another. Jaqa Gambu, fleeing from the younger brethren, submitted himself unto the Naiman. Making those to enter into [his] tent with fetters, when Ong Qan spake, having said, "At the moment when we were going forward by the lands of the Ui'ud and of the Tang'ud, what [16r] said we unto one another? How could I think as ye?" spitting in their faces, he made one to loose their fetters. When they were but spat upon by the qan, the people which were in [his] tent all arose and spat upon [them].

§153 [17r] Wintering that winter, [in] the autumn of the year of the dog [1202], Činggis Qahan set himself in array [at] Dalan Nemürge against the Ča'a'an Tatar, Alči Tatar, Duta'ud [Tatar],<sup>23</sup> and Aluqai Tatar—those Tatar—and, before joining battle, when Činggis Qahan spake an ordinance with [his soldiers],<sup>24</sup> he made an ordinance with [them], saying, [17v] "If we overcome the enemy, let us not tarry for spoil. When we shall have made an end of overcoming, that spoil shall be ours. We shall part [it] with one another. If we be made to withdraw ourselves by an enemy, let us return unto our place from whence we first rushed [forward]. We shall make [one] to behead the man which shall not have returned unto [the place of] the first rushing [forward]." [18r] Joining battle [at] Dalan Nemürges, he made the Tatar to remove. Overcoming [them], making [them] to join themselves unto their nation at Ulqui Šilügeljid, he spoiled [them]. Then destroying the weighty peoples, the Čahan Tatar, Alči Tatar, Duta'ud Tatar, and Aluqai Tatar, [not keeping] to the words whereby they had spoken the ordinance with [Činggis Qahan], Altan, Qučar, and Daritai—all three—[18v] not keeping to the words, halted for spoil. Saying, "[Ye] have not kept to [your] words," sending both Jebe and Qubilai, he made them to take [from them] the herds and things which they had spoiled, [the things which] they had taken—everything.

§154 [19r] Making an end of destroying and spoiling the Tatar, saying, "How shall we deal with their nation and people?" Činggis Qahan, entering into a solitary tent with his kinsmen, counseled great counsel with [them]. When they were counseling one another, saying, "From days of old [19v] the Tatar people have been making an end of [our] grandfathers and fathers.

of [our] grandfathers and fathers, let us, comparing [their height] unto [that of] a linchpin, destroy and slay [them] for [them].<sup>26</sup> Let us slay until we destroy [them]. Let us make slaves of those that shall have been left. Let us part [them] with one another severally," as, together making an end of [their] counsel, they went out from the tent, Yeke Čeren of the Tatar asked of Belgütei, saying, "What [20r] counsel have ye counseled one another?" When Belgütei spake, he said, "We have said unto one another that, comparing [your height] unto [that of] a linchpin, we would slay you all." At this word of Belgütei, Yeke Čeren made a proclamation unto his Tatar and made a fortress. When our troops assayed to attack the Tatar which had made a fortress, they suffered great loss. Making, with labour, the Tatar which had made a fortress, to submit themselves, at the moment when, destroying [them], comparing [their height] unto [that of] a linchpin, they were slaying [them], when the Tatar spake unto one another, saying unto one another, "Each person putting a knife in his sleeve, let us die 'taking a pillow,'" <sup>26</sup> again [our soldiers] suffered great loss. And so making an end of slaying the Tatar, comparing [their height] unto [that of] a linchpin, then, when Činggis Qahan made a decree, he made a decree, saying, "Because of the fact that Belgütei had revealed that we had together made an end of [21r] great counsel with our kinsmen, he made our soldiers to suffer great loss. After this, let Belgütei not enter into great counsel. Let him order [those] that are outside until we shall make an end of counsel. Having [so] ordered, let him judge quarrels and those of whom theft and lies [are] the deeds. When we shall have made an end of counsel, after we shall have drunk the ötög,<sup>27</sup> let both Belgütei and [21v] Da'aritai then enter."

§155 [22r] Then Činggis Qahan [22v] then took [to wife] Yesügen Qatun, daughter of Yeke Čeren of the Tatar. When she was loved [of Činggis Qahan], when Yesügen Qadun spake, she said, "If the Qahan favour [me], he will take care of [me], considering me a person and a thing [worthy to keep]. She who is named Yesüi, a sister older than I, is better than I. She is fit for a qan. Lately a son in law was come to be a son in law [for her].<sup>28</sup> Now who knoweth whither she is departed in this confusion?" At this word, when [23r] Činggis Qahan spake, he said, "If thine elder sister have been better than thou, I shall make [one] to seek [her]. If thine elder sister come, wilt thou withdraw thyself for [her]?" When Yesügen Qadun spake, she said, "If the Qahan favour [me], if I but see mine elder sister, I shall withdraw myself for mine elder sister." At this word, when Činggis Qahan, proclaiming a decree, [23v] made [one] to seek [her], our soldiers encountered her going in the woods together with the son in law to which she had been given. Her husband fled away. Then one brought Yesüi Qatun. Yesügen Qadun, having seen her elder sister, keeping to the words which she had spoken before, arising, making [her] to sit on her seat on which she had sat, she herself sat below. As she <sup>29</sup> was like unto [that which had been said of her in] [24r] the words of Yesügen Qadun, Činggis Qahan, suffering [her] to enter into his thoughts,<sup>30</sup> took Yesüi Qatun [to wife] and suffered her to sit in the row [of imperial wives].

§156 [24v] Making an end of spoiling the Tatar people, one day, when Činggis Qahan, sitting outside, was drinking together [with Yesüi Qadun and Yesügen Qadun], at the moment when he was sitting between both Yesüi Qadun and Yesügen Qadun and drinking together [with them], Yesüi Qadun [25r] sighed deeply. Then when Činggis Qahan, thinking within him, calling and making the chiefs Bo'orču, Muqali, and others to come, spake, he made a decree, saying, "Ye <sup>31</sup>—these people which have assembled themselves stand [ye] all tribe by tribe <sup>32</sup>—set [ye] apart the persons of a tribe other than your own." And so, as they [all] stood, each with his [25v] tribe, a young, good, elegant person stood apart from the tribes. As one said, "What [manner of] person art thou?" when that person spake, he said, "I am the son in law <sup>33</sup> unto whom was given the daughter named Yesüi of Yeke Čeren of the Tatar. When we were spoiled by the enemy, being afraid, I fled away, but saying, [26r] 'It is now become peaceable,' I am come and have been saying, 'Why should I be recognized among the many people?' " As one reported this word unto Činggis Qa'an, when he made a decree, he said, "The same, thinking

[as] an enemy, was gone, becoming a robber. Now he is come for to espy what? We have compared [the height of] those that are like him unto [that of] a linchpin. Why should ye doubt? <sup>34</sup> Cast [ye him] away from [26v] the sight of [mine] eyes." And so he was beheaded.

§157 [27r] In the same year of the dog [1202], at the moment when Činggis Qahan set forth against the Tatar people, Ong Qan, setting forth against the Merki[d] people, pursuing Toyto'a Beki toward Baryujin Hollow, killing Tögüs Beki, the eldest son of Toyto'a, taking Qutuγtai and Ča'alun of Toyto'a, his two daughters, and [27v] his wives, spoiled his two sons, Qutu and Čila'un, together with [his] people, and gave not even aught unto Činggis Qa'an.

§158 [28r] After that, both Činggis Qahan and Ong Qan, setting forth against Buyiruy Qan of the Güčügüd of the Naiman and arriving at the moment when he was at the Soqoy Usun <sup>35</sup> of Uluy Tay, Buyiruy Qan not being able to set himself in array, removed, passing over the Altai [Mountain]. Pursuing Buyiruy Qan from the Soqoy Usun, at the moment when, making [him] to pass over the Altai [Mountain], they continued to pursue [him] down along the Ürünggü [River] of Qum Šinggir, <sup>36</sup> his chief named [28v] Yedi Tubluγ, going as a spy, being pursued by our spies, as he was at the point to flee on the mountain, his belly strap being broken, then he was taken. Having pursued [him] down along the Ürünggü [River], overtaking [him] at Lake Kišil Baši, there they destroyed Buyiruy Qan.

§159 [29r] At the moment when both Činggis Qahan and Ong Qan, returning from thence, were drawing nigh, Kögse'ü Sa[b]ray, the [best] fighter [29v] of the Naiman, setting [his] soldiers in order at Bayidaray Belčir, was at the point to fight. Both Činggis Qahan and Ong Qan, saying, "Let us fight," setting [their] soldiers in order, arrived, [but,] it being [already] become evening, saying, "Let us fight to morrow," passed the night on the [same] line.<sup>37</sup>

Then Ong Qan, making one to light fires at his station, it being night, removed up along the Qara Se'ül [River].

§160 [30r] Then, when Jamuḡa went, removing together with Ong Qan, when [30v] Jamuḡa spake unto Ong Qan, he said, "Mine anda, Temüjin, from afore hath had messengers unto the Naiman. Now he is not yet come. Qan, Qan, the qayiruyana<sup>38</sup> which remaineth is I. The bildu'ur<sup>39</sup> which returneth is mine anda. He is gone unto the Naiman. He hath remained behind, being at the point to submit himself [unto them]." At that word of Jamuḡa, when Gürin [31r] Ba'atur of the Ubčiy spake, he said, "Flattering, why so speakest [thou], slandering and defaming thine upright brother?"

§161 [31v] Činggis Qahan, at night, passing the night even there, saying, "Let us fight," on the morrow, as, early, day dawned, when he looked at the station of Ong Qan, [saw that] he was no more [there]. Having said, "As for these, they look upon us as if we were burnt-offerings,"<sup>40</sup> Činggis Qahan, removing from thence, passing over by the mouth of the valley of Eter Altai, continuing to remove, [32r] pitched [at] the Sa'ari Steppe. From thence both Činggis Qahan and Qasar, perceiving the devices of the Naiman, did not count [them] as people [of worth].

§162 [32v] Kögse'ü Sa[b]ray,<sup>41</sup> pursuing after Ong Qan, spoiling and taking the wives and sons of Senggüm together with the people and folk, returned, having spoiled and having taken half the people, herds, and food of Ong Qan which were at Telegetü Outlet. When, in that battle, the two sons of Toyto'a of the Merkid, Qutu and Čila'un, were there, having taken their people, [33r] separating themselves, they removed down along the Selenge [River], joining themselves unto their father.

messenger unto Činggis Qahan. When he sent the messenger, he sent, saying, "I have been spoiled by the Naiman [in respect of] my people and folk and my wives and sons. I have sent, requesting from my son thy 'four külü'üd.'<sup>42</sup> Let them save my people and folk for me." Činggis Qahan then, setting [his] soldiers in order, sent these his "four külü'üd," Bo'orču, Muqali, [34r] Boroyul, and Čila'un. Before these "four külü'üd" arrived, Senggüm being at the point to set himself in array at Hula'an Qud, the thigh of his horse being shot [by an arrow], at the moment when he was at the point to be taken, these "four külü'üd," being arrived and having saved [him], saved [34v] for him [his] people and folk and wives and sons—all [of them]. Then when Ong Qan spake, [35r] he said, "Aforetime I was delivered by his good father [in respect of] my people which were wholly departed like this. Now again, of my son, I have been saved [in respect of] my people which were wholly departed, my 'four külü'üd' being come."<sup>43</sup> Let the protection of Heaven and Earth know how I shall return the benefit."

§164 [35v] Again, when Ong Qan spake, saying, "Mine anda, Yesügei Ba'atur, once saved for me my people which was wholly

<sup>43</sup> Although I have rendered the text as it stands, that it has been altered is clear from the observation made by the Reverend Antoine MOSTAERT in a letter dated 7 July 1954:

"There is a remark to be made in regard to the text Edö'e basa kö'ün-ü'en odun barayšan ulus-i minu dörben külü'üd-iyen irefü aburaju ögtebe. If one examine the continuous Chinese version of this passage, one sees that this version has been made on a text which must have been: Edö'e basa kö'ün inu odun barayšan ulus-i minu dörben külü'üd-iyen irefü aburaju ögtebe ['Now again, his son, sending his four "heroes," has just saved my people which had completely departed, and, thanks to him, it has been given back to me'], a wording which the Altan tobči (nova) also supposes: Edüge basa köbegün odun barayšan ulus-i minu dörben külü'üd-iyen [ilegefü] aburaju ögtebe ['Now again, the son, (sending) his four "heroes," has just saved my people which had completely departed, and, thanks to him, it has been given back to me']. Cf. Altan Tobči, A Brief History of the Mongols, Vol. I, p. 122, ll. 6-7. It seems to me quite evident that the text of the Chinese transcription is altered. Külü'üd-iyen irefü of the Chinese transcription is inexplicable. That kö'ün-ü'en be separated from dörben külü'üd by the words odun barayšan ulus-i minu is not explicable either."

departed. [His] son, Temüjin, again hath saved my people which were departed. [And] he hath given [them unto me]. When these, both father and son, [36r] assemble and give unto me the people which were entirely departed, on whose behalf do they suffer, assembling and giving [them]? I also now

Am waxed old.

I go out to the heights,<sup>44</sup>
I am become old.
When, becoming old,<sup>45</sup>
I go out to the cliffs,<sup>46</sup>

My younger brethren are without virtue. Mine only son is as if I had none. Senggüm is alone.<sup>47</sup> Making [my] [36v] son Temüjin to be the elder brother of Senggüm, I would have two sons and would be at ease."<sup>48</sup> With Činggis Qahan, Ong Qan assembling himself in the Black Forest of the Tu'ula [River], they declared themselves father and son. [As for] the reason for which they declared themselves father and son—by the reason that before-time in days of old Ong Qan had declared himself anda with the father [of Činggis Qahan], Yesügei Qan, [Činggis Qahan] [37r]

Walther HERRIG, "A Mongolian Source to the Lamaist Suppression of Shamanism in the 17th Century (Concluded)," Anthropos 48 (1953) 493-536 (pp. 503-504).

Cf. [E.] QUATREMÈRE, Histoire des Mongols de la Perse 1 (1836) 94. Hence, we know that Ong Qan had at least two sons. Cf. also Paul PELLLOT et Louis HAMBIS, op. cit. 1 (1951) 237.

saying that [Ong Qan was] like a father—such [was] the reason for which they declared themselves father and son.<sup>49</sup> When they spake words unto each other, they said unto each other, "When we hurl ourselves at the many enemies, let us hurl ourselves together in one place. When we hunt for the wild beasts, let us hunt together also in one place." Again, when both Činggis Qahan and Ong Qan spake unto each other, saying, "[Others] envying us twain,

If, by a serpent with teeth [37v],
We are provoked [into dissension],
Let us not yield ourselves unto [his] provocations.
Let us believe [only when] speaking unto each other by teeth and mouth.<sup>50</sup>
If, by a serpent with fangs,
We are backbitten [into dissension],
Let us not accept his backbitings.
Let us believe [only when] verifying thus pledging [their] word, they were friendly unto each other.

§165 [38v] When Činggis Qahan, thinking, saying [unto himself], "[Over and] above [the fact that we are already] friendly, let us be doubly friendly," requested for Joči Ča'ur Beki, the younger sister of Senggüm, as he requested [her], saying, "I shall give in exchange unto Tusaqa, son of Senggüm, our Qojin Beki," then, when Senggüm spake, [39r] imagining himself to be [somebody] great, saying, "If a kinswoman of us went unto them, she would stand at the door and would only look upon the back [of the tent]. If a kinswoman of them came unto us, she would sit at the back [of the tent] and look upon the door,"<sup>52</sup> imagining himself to be [somebody] great, speaking, despising us, not giving Ča'ur Beki [unto us], he did [39v] not love [our words].<sup>53</sup> At that word Činggis Qahan, within him, lost his affection for both Ong Qan and Nilqa Senggüm.

<sup>52</sup> By this Senggüm means that, if his younger sister Ča'ur Beki were to marry Joči, she would be treated as a servant who sits just inside the door facing the place of honor at the back of the tent, but that, if Qojin Beki were to marry his son Tusaqa, she would be treated as a lady who sits in the place of honor at the back of the tent

§166 [40r] Jamuša perceived that he had so lost his affection. [In] the spring of the year of the pig [1203], Jamuša, Altan, and Qučar [as well as] Süge'etei, To'oril, and Qači'un Beki of the Qar-dakid, Ebügejin, and Noyakin—being those—being with one accord, arising, departing, going unto Nilqa Senggüm at the back of Jeje'er Heights at Berke Sands, when Jamuša spake slanderously, [40v] he said, "Mine anda, Temüjin, hath messages and messengers unto Tayang Qan of the Naiman. His mouth is [yet] saying, 'father, son,' [but] his behaviour is other. Are ye [yet] relying upon [him]? If ye do not prevent him, how will it be for you? If [ye] set forth against Anda Temüjin, [then] I shall enter with [you] from athwart." When both Altan and Qučar spake, [41r] they said, "[As for] the sons of Mother Hö'elün, we shall kill the eldest for [thee] and we shall forsake the youngest." When the Ebügejin, Noyakin, and Qarta'ad spake, they said, "For [thee]

We shall seize
His hands;
We shall seize
His feet."

When To'oril spake, he said, "It were best that we go and take the people of Temüjin. If he be taken [in respect of] his people and if he be without people, [41v] what will those do?" When Qači'un Beki spake, saying, "If thou, Nilqa Senggüm, [my] son, think what[ever it may be], I shall arrive with [thee] at the extremity of [that which is] long and at the bottom of [that which is] deep."<sup>54</sup>

§167 [42r5] Being told these words, Nilqa Senggüm sent, speaking those words unto his father, unto [42v] Ong Qan, by Sayiqan Töde'en. Being told these words, when Ong Qan spake, saying, "Why are ye so thinking on my son, in [respect of] Temüjin? Until now [our] prop being by him,<sup>55</sup> now, then, if [we] so think evil in [respect of] my son, we shall not [43r] be loved by Heaven. Jamuša hath vain words. Is he speaking rightly? truly?" he did not love<sup>56</sup> [the words of Sayiqan Töde'en] and sent [him back to Nilqa Senggüm]. Again, when Senggüm sent, speaking, having sent, speaking back and forth, saying, "Whereas a man which hath a mouth and which hath a tongue be speaking, why is he not to be believed?" when, being in a strait, going by himself in person, he spake, he said, [43v] "Even in a time in which thou art [yet] so much alive, he<sup>57</sup> is not regarding us as even aught. And verily when thou, his father the Qan, will he suffer thy people which thy father Qurčaqus Buyiruy Qan, with labour, assembled in so great a quantity to be governed by us? By whom and how will he suffer [them] to be governed?"<sup>59</sup> At that word, when Ong Qan spake, he said, "How shall I forsake my lad, my son? If, until now, [our] prop being by him,<sup>60</sup> [we] think evil, would it be fit? We shall not be loved by Heaven." At that word, his son, Nilqa Senggüm, being displeased, casting

How say ye that ye will forsake [my] son?”<sup>63</sup> Do ye but as [ye] are able. Know [ye how ye shall do].”

§168 [45v] Then, when Senggüm spake, saying together [with Ong Qan], “The same, indeed, have requested our Ča’ur Beki. Now saying, ‘Come [ye] for to eat the betrothal meal,’ let us, appointing a day, inviting [them] and making [them] to come, then seize [them],” saying, “Yea!,” making an agreement [with Ong Qan], he sent, saying, “We shall give Ča’ur Beki. Come [ye] for to eat [46r] the betrothal meal.” Being invited, when Činggis Qahan drew nigh, ten men [in number], as, on the way, he passed the night in the tent of Father Münglig, then when Father Münglig spake, saying, “When we requested Ča’ur Beki, the same, indeed, despising us, would not have given [her unto us]. Now how contrariwise<sup>64</sup> have they invited [us] [46v] to eat the betrothal meal? Why contrariwise would people which imagine themselves to be great invite [us], saying, ‘We shall give [her unto you]’? Is [their] thought right? true? Son, it is to be gone by thee, understanding [this]. Let us send in pretence, saying, ‘It is become spring. Our herds of horses are lean. decision together, saying, “Let us so compass and seize [them],” he said, “We said unto one another, ‘Let us seize Temüjin early to morrow.’ The man which goeth, carrying this word as a message unto Temüjin, how will he fare?”<sup>66</sup> At the moment when he was so speaking, when his wife Alay Yid spake, [48v] she said, “What availeth that thy superfluous word? [I] fear lest people take [it] as true.” At the moment when they were so speaking unto each other, their herdman Badai, coming for to bring the milk, heard this word and returned. Badai, departing, spake unto [his] companion, the herdman Kišiliy, the words which [Yeke] Čeren had spoken. When Kišiliy spake, saying, “I shall go again and perceive [whether it be so],” he went unto the tent. When the son of [Yeke] Čeren, [49r] Narin Ke’en, sitting outside, sitting, polishing his arrows, spake, he said, “What said we unto one another a little while ago?

We ought to have suffered our tongues to be taken [to constrain us to silence.

Having so said, when Narin Ke’en again spake unto his herdman, unto Kišiliy, he said, “Bring [from the pasture] and fetch both Merkidei Čaya’an<sup>67</sup> and Aman Čaya’an Ke’er.<sup>68</sup> Tying [them], early in the night [49v] we shall set forth.” When Kišiliy, departing, spake unto Badai, saying, “[I] have examined thy message of a little while ago. It was true. Now let us twain depart, carrying the message unto Temüjin,” pledging unto each other [their] word, bringing [from the pasture] both Merkidei Čaya’an and Aman Čaya’an Ke’er, coming, tying [them], evening being come, killing one of their [50r] lambs in their tent, boiling [him] by means of [the wood of] their bed, riding both Merkidei Čaya’an and Aman Čaya’an Ke’er which they had tied ready, departing in the night, arriving unto Činggis Qahan at night, when the twain, Badai and Kišiliy, spake north of [his] tent,<sup>69</sup> they wholly spake for him the words which Yeke Čeren had spoken, [the words] which his son, Narin Ke'en, sitting, polishing his [50v] arrows, had spoken—the words which he had said: “Bring [from the pasture] and tie the two geldings Merkidei Čaya'an and Aman Čaya'an Ke'er.” Again when the twain, Badai and Kišiliy, spake, they said, “If Činggis Qa'an favour [us], [we assure to him that] there is no doubt. They pledged [their] word, saying, ‘Let us compass and seize [him].’”

CHAPTER VI

§170 [1r] Being so told, Činggis Qahan, believing the words of both Badai and Kišiliy, having, [it being yet] night, then, sent the message unto the trusty who were in the neighbourhood, lightening [himself], having forsaken [all] his things, fleeing, [it being yet] night, then, removed. When he removed, [going his way] by the back of Mau Heights, at the back of [1v] Mau Heights, as he trusted Jelme Qo'a of the Uriangqad, making him to be rearward guard at his rearward, and, placing watchmen, he removed. Continuing to remove, the next day, at noon, waiting until the sun was inclining itself, arriving [at] the Qalaqaljīd Sands, he pitched to rest and to eat. At the moment when one was resting and eating, at the moment when [2r] Čigidei and Yadir, the keepers of the geldings of Alčidai, were going, each his own way, feeding their geldings in the green [pastures], they saw the dust of the enemy which was drawing nigh from the rearward, along the front of Mau Heights, passing by Hula'an Buruqad. Saying, “The enemy is arrived,” they came, having driven their geldings before [them]. When, being told, “The enemy is arrived,” one looked, beholding the dust [2v] along the front of Mau Heights and passing by Hula'an Buruqad, one said, “Ong Qan—that [one]—is drawing nigh, pursuing [us].” Then, Činggis Qahan, having seen the dust, having made one to bring his geldings [from the pastures], laded [them] and set forth. If, at that moment, one had not seen [the enemy approaching, one would have been taken unawares, because] one was unprepared. At that drawing nigh, Jamuḡa was drawing nigh, drawing nigh [3r] together with Ong Qan. Then Ong Qan asked of Jamuḡa. He asked, saying, “At [the side of my] son, Temüjin, who are [those] such as will fight?” When Jamuḡa spake, he said, “There are there his people named the Uru'ud and the Mangyud. Those his people will fight.

Each time they turn,
[Their] ranks are proper.
Each time they turn,
[Their] order [3v] is proper.

Those [are] peoples which from childhood have been accustomed to swords and spears. Those are ones which have black and speckled standards. [They] are people against whom one should forewarn himself." At that word, when Ong Qan spake, he said, "If it be so, we shall make our Ĵirgin ba'atud<sup>1</sup> to rush against them, Qaday opposing [them], our Ĵirgin ba'atud. As succourer [4r] of the Ĵirgin, we shall make Aciy Širun of the Tümen Tüben to rush against [them]. As succourers of the Tüben, we shall make the Olon Dongqayid ba'atud to rush against [them]. As succourer of the Dongqayid, let Qori Šilemün Taisi, leading the thousand dayguards of [me], Ong Qan, rush against [them]. As succourers of the thousand dayguards, we, the great middle, shall rush against [them]." Again, when Ong Qan spake, he said, "Younger Brother [4v] Ĵamuya, order thou our army!" At that word, Ĵamuya going out, being alone apart, when he spake unto his companions, saying, "Ong Qan saith that I should order this his army. I have never been able to fight against [mine] anda. [Now] he saith that I should order this army. Ong Qan is [even] more yonder than I.<sup>2</sup> [5r] He is a companion which hath a measure.<sup>3</sup> I shall send in a message unto [mine] anda. Let [mine] anda be vigilant," when Ĵamuya, secretly sending a message unto Činggis Qahan, sent, speaking, he sent, saying, "Ong Qan hath asked of me. As he asked, saying, 'At [the side of my] son Temüjin who are [those] such as will fight?', when I spake, I spake in such a way that I placed first the Uru'ud and the Mangyud. At my [5v] word, they placed first his same Ĵirgin and [then proceeded to] set [them] in order as the vanguards. They declared Aciy Širun of the Tümen Tüben as succourer of the Ĵirgin. [They declared the Olon Dongqayid as succourers of the Tüben.] 'They declared Qori Šilemün Taisi, captain of the thousand dayguards of Ong Qan, as succourer of the Dongqayid. He said, 'As succourer of him, likewise I shall stand with the great middle army of [me,] Ong Qan.' [6r] Again when Ong Qan speaketh, he speaketh, appointing me, saying, 'Younger Brother Ĵamuya, set thou this army in order.' If I perceive by this, [I see that] he is a companion which hath a measure.<sup>5</sup> How would [he] be able to set his army in order? Beforetime I was never able to engage in battle with [mine] anda. Ong Qan is [even] more yonder than I.<sup>6</sup> Anda, be [thou] not afraid. Be [thou] vigilant."

§171 [7v] Having received this message, when Činggis Qahan spake, he said, "What sayest thou, Uncle Ĵürčedei of the Uru'ud? I shall make thee the vanguard." Before Ĵürčedei had uttered [his] voice, when Quyildar Sečen<sup>7</sup> of the Mangyud spake, he said, "I shall fight on behalf of [mine] anda. Let [mine] anda decide how one shall, long after, take care of mine orphan sons."<sup>8</sup> When [8r] Ĵürčedei spake, he said, "On behalf of Činggis Qahan we Uru'ud and Mangyud shall fight as the vanguard." Having so spoken, both Ĵürčedei and Quyildar, stood ordering [their armies], on behalf of Činggis Qahan, with their Uru'ud and Mangyud. With [their] standing, the enemy, making the Ĵirgin the vanguard, arrived. With [their] coming, the Uru'ud and [8v] the Mangyud rushed against [them] and overcame the Ĵirgin. At the moment when they went forward, overcoming [them], Aciy Širun of the Tümen Tüben rushed [against them]. Rushing [against them] Aciy Širun pierced Quyildar and made [him] to light off [his horse]. The Mangyud returned over Quyildar. Ĵürčedei rushed [against them] with his Uru'ud and overcame the Tümen Tüben. [9r] At the moment when he was going forward, overcoming [them] and making [them] to remove, the Olon Dongqayid rushed against [him]. Jürčedei, also overcame the Dongqayid. At the moment when, overcoming [them], he was going forward, Qori Šilemün Taisi rushed [against him] with a thousand dayguards. At the moment when Jürčedei, again, making Qori Šilemün Taisi to withdraw himself, was going forward, overcoming [him], as Senggüm, without [9v] leave from Ong Qan, began to rush against [him], [his] red cheek being shot by an arrow, Senggüm fell even there. Suffering the fall of Senggüm, the Kereyid all returned and stood over Senggüm.<sup>9</sup> Overcoming them, at the moment when the setting sun was smiting upon the hills, ours, returning, having taken Quyildar, [him] [10r] with wounds which was fallen, returned. Činggis Qahan and ours, separating themselves from Ong Qan—from the place where they had fought—removing in the evening, separating themselves, passed the night.

§172 [11r] Standing, passing the night, when, waiting until the day dawned, they mustered [the army], Öködei,<sup>10</sup> Boroyul, and Bo'orču—all three—were absent. When Činggis Qahan spake, he said, "With Öködei both the trusty Bo'orču and Boroyul have remained behind. Whether living or dying, how would [11v] those separate themselves?" Ours in the night, bringing in their geldings [from the pastures], had passed the night. When Činggis Qahan spake, saying, "If one come, pursuing from our rearward, we shall fight," he set in order [his soldiers] and stood [awaiting the enemy]. When, waiting until the day is become light, one looketh, [one seeth that] one man draweth nigh from the rearward. When, arriving, he came, [one saw that] it was Bo'orču. Having suffered Bo'orču to arrive and come, when Činggis Qahan spake, saying, "Let Everlasting Heaven know," he smote his breast. When Bo'orču spake, he said, "At the moment when I was rushing [against the enemy], my horse being shot [by arrows] so that he fell, at the moment when I went running on foot, [12v] in a respite in the same battle in which the Kereyid had returned and were standing over Senggüm, as for a laden horse which, having suffered his burden to incline itself to one side, was standing [there], cutting off his burden, riding on his inggirčay,<sup>11</sup> going out, going on, following the tracks along which ours had separated themselves and were gone out, finding [them], I am now come."

§173 [13r] Again, while there is [but] a moment, yet one man draweth nigh. At the moment when he, arriving, draweth nigh, he draweth nigh, his legs hanging below.<sup>12</sup> When one looketh, [one seeth that] he is like an only man. After that he was come, Boroyul, riding double behind Öködei, suffering blood to flow by the corners of [his] mouth, arrived. [As for] Öködei, the vein of his neck having been hit by an arrow, when his blood clotted, Boroyul, [14r] sucking [it] with his mouth, came, suffering the blood which had stopped [the opening of the wound] to flow by the corners [of his mouth]. Činggis Qahan, seeing [him], suffering the tears to flow from his eyes, [his] heart having been troubled, having made one quickly to kindle a fire, having made one to apply heat,<sup>13</sup> making one to seek drink for Öködei, making one to give [it unto him], said, "If the enemy come, we shall fight." [14r] When Boroyul spake, he said, "The dust of the enemy, [moving] yonder, by the front of Mau Heights, toward Hula'an Boruqad, [this] dust, rising in a long train, is departed yonder." At that word [of] Boroyul, saying, "If [the enemy] were come, we would have fought. [But,] if, [as now,] by the enemy, we are made to suffer the fact that, fleeing, he is removed, we shall reform our army and [15r] shall fight [again]," [Činggis Qahan] removed. When he removed, being removed up along the Ulqui Šilügeljid [River], he entered Dalan Nemürges.

§174 [15v] Then, from the rearward, Qada'an Daldurqan came, separating himself from his wife and [his] son. Coming, [16r] when Qada'an Daldurqan spake, saying, "[These are] words of Ong Qan," he said, "Ong Qan, his son Senggüm being shot in the red cheek by an uċumay [arrow] so that he fell, [the Kereyid] returning over him, then spake. As he said,

'At [a time] in which it seemeth [that we ought to have asked ourselves,] "Shall we stir [him] up?,"

We have stirred [him] up.

Provoking [him]

At [a time] in which it seemeth [that we ought to have asked ourselves,] "Shall we provoke [him]?,"

Alas! we have made one to nail

In the cheek of my son.<sup>14</sup> [16v]

We shall together rush [against them], seeking [to save] the life of [my] son,' at that, when Aċiy Širun spake, he said, 'Qan, Qan, let [it] be!<sup>15</sup> When we sought the son which was behind the back,<sup>16</sup> making elbesün [prayers] and ĵalama [prayers], we pray [Heaven], seeking [him], saying "Abui! Babui!" Let us, these, [now] take care of Senggüm the son which is already born. The more part of the Mongyol is here with Jamuċa and with Altan and Quċar at [the side of] us. The Mongyol which have revolted and are gone out with [17r] Temüċin, whither will those go? Those are

Ones which have beasts to ride [which are] horses;

Ones which have shelters [which are] trees.

If those come not, going, we shall fetch [them], putting [them] in the skirt [of our garment] like dried horse dung.' At this word of Aċiy Širun, when Ong Qan spake, having said, 'Yea! If it be so, I fear that [my] son be weary. Take care of [my] son, not shaking [him, while carrying him],' returning, he withdrew from the place where one had fought."

<sup>14</sup> I. e., "We are responsible for the fact that he was shot by an uċumay arrow."

§175 [18r] Then, when Činggis Qahan removed from Dalan Nemürċes along the Qalqa [River], he numbered the number [of his soldiers]. When he had numbered [them], [he knew that] there were two thousand six hundred. One thousand [18v] three hundred [in number], Činggis Qahan journeyed along the western side of the Qalqa [River]. One thousand three hundred [in number], the Uru'ud and the Mangyud journeyed along the eastern side of the Qalqa [River]. At the moment when they were so journeying and going forward, at the moment when they were going hunting for provision, at the moment when Quyildar was not yet healed of his wounds,<sup>17</sup> although he had been warned by Činggis Qahan, [19r] being unwilling [to cease to go forward], as he began to rush upon the wild beasts, [his wounds] opened again and he passed away. Then Činggis Qahan made one to place his bones at Keltegei Qada of [Mount] Or Nu'u of the Qalqa [River].<sup>18</sup>

§176 [19v] [Činggis Qahan], knowing that at the place where the Qalqa [River] poureth itself into Lake Buyur there were the Unggirad [chiefs] Terge, Amel,<sup>19</sup> and others, sent Ĵurċede[i] [unto them] with the Uru'ud. When he sent [him], as he had sent [him], saying, "If they say [unto themselves], 'The Unggirad people from [20r] days of old [have had their being not by the might of arms, but]

By the comeliness

Of the daughters of [their] daughters,

By the beauty

Of [their] daughters,'<sup>20</sup>

they will submit themselves. If the same say, 'Revolt!,'<sup>21</sup> we shall fight," they submitted themselves unto Ĵurċedei. As they had submitted themselves, Činggis Qahan touched not even aught of them.

departing, pitching east of the Tüingge Stream, when Činggis Qahan caused a message to be carried [unto Ong Qan] [21r] by the twain, by Arqai Qasar and [by] Sügegei Je'ün,<sup>22</sup> when he spake, saying, "Speak unto my father the Qan, [saying,] 'We have pitched east of the Tüingge Stream. And its<sup>23</sup> grass is become good.<sup>24</sup> Our geldings have strengthened the joints [of their legs]," when he sent, saying, "My father the Qan, in [respect of] what grievance hast thou made me to be afraid? <sup>25</sup> For the explanation of this passage cf. Antoine MOSTAERT, op. cit., pp. [96]-[97]: "By these words Činggis reproaches Ong Qan for frightening his family, whereas, if truly Ong Qan had reasons for complaining about him, he ought to have contented himself with frightening Činggis alone: 'If thou must frighten me, says he, why doest thou not it so as at least to let thy bad sons and thy bad daughters-in-law [97] sleep to their heart's content?' By the words 'thy bad sons and thy bad daughters-in-law' Činggis, who, in remembrance of the relations of anda which had existed between Ong Qan and Yesügei, treats the first as father, means all the members of his family and, quite specially, his own sons and daughters-in-law."

"In case we should read deng (= teng) saryuqis iseri, I would translate: 'The bench on which they sat [all] at the same level.'" Antoine MOSTAERT, op. cit., p. [97], n. 92.

My father the Qan, what said we twain unto each other? At the Hula'anu'ud Bolda'ud of [22r] Jorqal Qun spake we not unto each other? Said we not unto each other,

'If, by a serpent with teeth,
We are provoked [into dissension],
Let us not yield ourselves unto his provocations.
Let us believe [only when] verifying by teeth and by mouth?'<sup>29</sup>

Now my father the Qan, hast thou separated thyself [only after] verifying by teeth and by mouth? Said we not unto each other,

'If, [22v] by a serpent with fangs,
We are backbitten [into dissension],
Let us not yield ourselves unto [his] backbitings.
Let us believe [only when] verifying by mouth and by tongue?'<sup>30</sup>

Now my father the Qan hast thou separated thyself, [only when] verifying by mouth and by tongue? My father the Qan, although I be few [in number], I made [thee] not to seek [others who might be] many [in number]. Although [I] be bad, I made [thee] not to seek [others who might be] [23r] good.<sup>31</sup> If a cart having two shafts break its second shaft, its ox is not able to pull [it]. Am I not thy second shaft like that? If a cart having two wheels break its second wheel, it is not able to journey. [23v] Am I not thy second wheel like that? If we speak of the days of old, after thy father Qurčaqus Buyiruy Qan, saying, '[I am] the eldest brother of forty sons,' thou didst become qan. After becoming qan, thou didst kill both Tai Temür Taisi and Buqa Temür, thy younger brethren. When thy younger brother Erke Qara was [at the point] to be killed, saving his life, going out, he escaped and submitted himself unto Inanča Bilge Qan [24r] of the Naiman. When, saying, 'He<sup>32</sup> is become the murderer of his younger brethren,' thine uncle, Gür Qan, setting forth, is come against thee, thou—a hundred men saving their lives—didst escape and fleeing down along the Selengge, thou didst slip [into] Qara'un Qabčal. Moreover, when thou didst go out from there, [thou] didst give thy daughter Huja'ur Üjin unto [24v] Toyto'a of the Merkid, [as a means of] 'presenting [thy] face,'<sup>33</sup> and, coming out from Qara'un Qabčal, as thou didst come unto my father Yesügei Qan, then, when [thou] didst speak, being told, 'Save my people for me from [mine] uncle, Gür Qan,' my father Yesügei Qan being come unto by thee so saying, leading both [25r] Gunan and Baqa'ji from the Tayiči'ud, saying, 'I shall save thy people for thee,' ordering [his] army, departing, pursuing, toward Qašin, Gür Qan—twenty [or] thirty men—who were at Furban Telesüd, he saved thy people for thee. "Coming from thence, in the Black Forest of the Tu'ula [River], becoming [25v] anda together with my qan father, Yesügei Qan, then, Ong Qan, when [thou] didst speak, thanking my father, thou didst thank [him], saying, '[As to] the benefit of this thy service, let the protection of Heaven above and Earth [below] know how I shall return the benefit unto the seed of thy seed. After that, when Erge<sup>34</sup> Qara, requesting soldiers from Inanča Bilge Qan of the Naiman, setting forth, came [26r] against thee, thou, forsaking thy people to save thy life—a few persons fleeing—went out and thou departed unto the Gür Qan of the Qara Kidad, at the Čui River, in the country of the Sarta'ul. Not enduring one year, again, going out, revolting from the Gür Qan, when, being in a strait, [thou] drewest nigh by the lands of the U'ud and of the Tang'ud, seizing five [26v] goats, milking [them], and eating [their milk], pricking and eating the blood of camels, thou art come with an only, blind, yellow horse with black mane and tail.<sup>35</sup> Knowing that thou, the father the Qan, being so in a strait, wast coming and being mindful [of thee] because of the fact that beforetime thou didst declare thyself anda with my father, Yesügei Qan, having sent as messengers to meet [27r] thee both Tayai and Sükegei,<sup>36</sup> again, I myself departing from the Bürgi Escarpment of the Kelüren [River] to encounter [thee], we did meet each other at Lake Güse'ür. Saying that thou wast come, being in a strait, I, having levied levies and having given [them] unto thee, by reason of the fact that beforetime thou hadst together declared thyself anda unto my father, was that not the reason for which [27v] we two declared ourselves father and son in the Black Forest of the Tu'ula [River]?<sup>37</sup> That winter, suffering thee to enter within [my] güre'en, I did nourish [thee]. Wintering the winter, summering, in the autumn, setting forth against Toyto'a Beki of the Merkid people, fighting [28r] with [him at] Mürüče Se'ül of Qadiyliy Niru'un, driving Toyto'a Beki toward Baryujin Hollow, spoiling the Merkid people, taking their many herds and ordo tents and their grains—all—, I gave [them] unto [my] father the Qan. [I] suffered not thy being become hungry to endure unto the middle of the day. I suffered not thy having wasted to endure unto the half of the moon. Again, we, driving Buyiruy Qan of the Güčügür, making [him] to pass over the Altai from Soqoy Usun of [28v] Uluγ Tay, being gone down along the Ürünggü [River], destroyed [him] at Lake Kičil Baš. At the moment when, returning from thence, we were drawing nigh and at the moment when Kögse'ü Sabray of the Naiman was ordering his soldiers and setting himself in array [for battle] at Baidaray Belčir, as it was [already] become evening, as we passed the night, together setting [our soldiers] in order, saying, [29r] 'We shall fight early to morrow,' thou, my father the Qan, kindling fires at thy [battle] stations, thou didst remove in the night up along the Qara Se'ül. When [I] looked early on the morrow, [perceiving that,] as [thou] wast absent at thy [battle] station, thou wast removed, saying. 'These here look upon us as if we were burnt-offerings,'<sup>38</sup> I also, removing, passing over by the valley of [29v] Eder Altai, coming [hither], pitched at the Sa'ari Steppe. Then Kögse'ü Sabray pursuing thee, having taken the wives and sons, people and folk of Senggüm—all—as he went, spoiling the half of thy people, herds and food, of thy father the Qan, which were at Telegetü Outlet, when both Qudu and Čila'un, sons of Toyto'a of [30r] the Merkid were with thee, with all their people and households, in that battle, joining themselves unto their father, entering Baryujin [Hollow], revolting, they removed from thee. Then as thou, my father the Qan, art come, saying, 'I have been spoiled as to people and households by Kögse'ü Sabray of the Naiman. Come [thou], my son, giving [30v] thy "four külü'üd,"' not thinking like thee, then, when, ordering [them], I sent my soldiers with these my 'four külü'üd,' Bo'orču, Muqali, Boroyul, and Čila'un Ba'atur, before these my 'four külü'üd' [arrived], Senggüm being at the point to array himself [in battle] at Hula'an Qud, the thigh of his horse being shot [by an arrow], [31r] at the moment when he was at the point to be taken, these my 'four külü'üd' arrived and, having saved Senggüm, as they saved for him all the wives and sons together with people and households, then, my qan father, when [thou] didst speak, believing [me], thou didst say, 'My people and households which were wholly departed have been given [back] by Temüjin, my son, his "four külü'üd" coming and saving [them].' [31v] Now, my father the Qan, thou hast grieved in [respect of] what grievance of me? Send [thou] messengers in [respect of] the manner of [thy] grievance. When thou sendest [them], send both Qu[I]bari Quri and Idürgen. If [thou] send not both, send [thou] the second."

<sup>33</sup> For this interpretation of the word n'urqan (?n'uryan) I am deeply indebted to Dr. William Hung, who, on 27 July 1951, interpreted the enigmatic Chinese gloss 通面皮 (t'ung mien-p'i) to mean "[gift of one person to another] to present the face." In view of this explanation, it seems that the words škin-iyen n'urqan (?n'uryan) ögü really mean: "giving his daughter as a gift of first audience."

§178 [33v] At these words, when Ong Qan spake, saying, "Ai! Soyilyr!"<sup>39</sup> Shall I separate myself from my son? [That is what I have done, but in so doing] I have separated myself from the principle. Shall I stand aloof [from him]? [That is what I have done, but in so doing] I have stood aloof from [mine] obligations," [his] heart having been troubled, when he spake, swearing, saying, "Now, seeing my son, if [I] think evil, [34r] like this [I] shall be shed as to my blood," pricking the tip of his little finger with an arrow-whittling knife, suffering the blood to flow, putting [it] in a little bucket of birch bark, he sent [them back], saying, "Give [this] unto my son."

§179 [34v] Again, when Činggis Qahan spake, saying, "Speak [this] unto Anda Jamuqa," he sent, saying, "Not being able to see [me],<sup>40</sup> thou hast made [me] to separate myself from my father the Qan. The one of us which rose up first was wont to drink [from] the blue goblet of the father the Qan."<sup>41</sup> When by me, upon rising up first, it was drunk, thou wast jealous. Now, empty [ye] the blue goblet of the father the Qan. How much more will ye consume?"<sup>42</sup> Again, when Činggis Qahan spake, saying, "Speak [this] unto Altan and Qučar," he sent, saying, "Ye twain, forsaking me, have ye said, 'We shall cast [him] away openly [breaking from him]' or have ye said, 'We shall cast [him] away after a covenant'? When, saying that [thou] art the son of Nekün Taisi, we said, 'Qučar, from [among] us'<sup>43</sup> become thou qan, thou wast not willing. When we said, 'Qutula Qan was governing [our people]. Inasmuch as thy father was governing [our people], thou, Altan, become thou qan, thou also wast not willing. Saying, 'From [a generation] above [ye are] sons of Bartan Ba'atur,'<sup>44</sup> saying, 'Both Sača and Taiču, become [36r] ye qad, I was not able [to convince them]. Saying unto you, 'Become [ye] qad, I was not able [to convince you] and, it being said by you [unto me],

<sup>41</sup> It would appear from this that Činggis Qahan, Jamuqa, and Ong Qan had once lived together and that the first to get up in the morning drank from the blue goblet of Ong Qan.

<sup>42</sup> I. e., "Not much more." By this veiled threat Činggis Qahan implies that Jamuqa will not have much longer in which to drink, because he will attack Ong Qan and Činggis Qahan.

<sup>43</sup> I. e., "me, Činggis Qahan, and you, Altan and Qučar, to whom I am speaking."

<sup>44</sup> This statement is clearly contradicted by that in §49 and that in §122 above. (See Chapter I, note 31, and Chapter III, note 53.) It is also contradicted by Rašid al-Dīn. Cf. PELLIOU and HAMBIS, op. cit., pp. 66-68, n. 23. Sača and Taiču were not the sons of Bartan Ba'atur, but the sons of Qutuytu (~Sorqatu) Yürki (~Jürki), the son of Ökin Barqay, eldest son of Qabul Qan and elder brother of Bartan Ba'atur, the second son of Qabul Qan. Hence, the descendants of Ökin Barqay were the senior branch and, by birthright, took precedence of the descendants of Bartan Ba'atur, which, in this instance, were Činggis Qahan and Qučar, both grandsons of Bartan Ba'atur. Altan,

'Become thou qan,' I have been governing [our people]. If ye had become qad and if [I] had been made to ride against the many enemies as a scout, if [I] had been protected by Heaven, at the moment when [I] would have been spoiling the enemy,

Maidens comely of cheek,
Ladies and [36v] wives,
And geldings good of rump

I would have fetched and given [unto you].

If I had been made beforehand to compass
In [respect of] the wild beasts,
[As to] the wild beasts of the cliffs,
In such wise that the upper parts of their legs might become united together

I would have pressed [them] for [you].

[As to] the wild beasts of the escarpments,
In such wise that their thighs might become united together

I would have pressed [them] for [you].

[As to] the wild beasts of the steppes, too, as son of Qutula Qan, fourth son of Qabul, belonged to a junior branch. (See the genealogies in §§48-51.)

In a communication dated 6 September 1952 the Reverend Antoine MOSTAERT remarked:

"In §179 we have to deal with an altered text. This alteration must have occurred rather early, since it was already present in the manuscript used by the authors of the continuous version, which was different from that of which the transcribers who put the Mongolian text into Chinese characters made use. The author of the Secret History cannot have worded his text in the manner in which we read it at present. He knew very well that Sača and Taiču were the sons, not of Bartan Ba'atur, second son of Qabul Qan, but of Qutuytu (~Sorqatu) Yürki, who was son of Ökin Barqay, eldest son of Qabul Qan. He had, in effect, written it in §49 and in §122. The original text must then have been as follows: De'ere-eče Qutuytu (or Sorqatu) Yürki-yin kö'ün ke'ečü, Sača Taiču qoyar-i ta qad boludqun ke'ečü yadaba je bi. I translate this restored text in the following manner: 'Saying, "Among those [who, by birthright, are] above [us], they are the sons of Qutuytu (or Sorqatu) Yürki," saying to Sača and Beki, both: 'Become ye qad,' I was not able [to convince them].'"

In such wise that their bellies might become united together [37r]

I would have pressed [them] for [you].<sup>45</sup> Now excellently be [ye] a companion for my father the Qan. I am afraid that ye are said to be negligent. Make ye not one to say, 'It was but the support of the ča'ud quri [which made them great men].'<sup>46</sup> Suffer ye not to be pitched by any one at the head of the Three Rivers."<sup>47</sup>

§180 [38r] Again, when Činggis Qahan spake, saying, "Speak unto Younger Brother To'oril," [he said,] "The reason for which [I] say 'Younger Brother'—Oyda of both Tumbinai and Čaraqai Lingqu came in captivity as a slave. The son of the slave Oyda was the slave [38v] Sübegei. The son of the slave Sübegei was Kököčü Kirsā'an. The son of Kököčü Kirsā'an was Yegei Qongtayar.<sup>48</sup> The son of Yegei Qongtayar [is] thou, To'oril. Of whom sayest thou continually in flattering that thou wilt give the peoples [unto Ong Qan]? Both Altan and Qučar will not [39r] suffer my people to be governed by any one—the reason for which [I] say that thou [art] 'Younger Brother' [is that thou art]

The slave of the threshold
Of my great great grandfather;

The private slave of the door
Of my great grandfather.<sup>49</sup>

Such [is the manner in which] I send, saying [this]."

§181 [39v] Again, when Činggis Qahan spake, saying, "Speak unto Anda Senggüm," having said, "I am a son which was born with raiment.<sup>50</sup> Thou art a son which wast born naked. The father the Qan was wont to raise us both up [40r] equally. From the fact that thou [wast afraid that thou] mightest be supplanted

<sup>46</sup> I.e., "They were nothing by themselves without the support of the ča'ud quri, i.e., Činggis Qahan."

[by me], Anda Senggüm, envying me, thou dravest [me] away. Now, not making the heart of our father the Qan to sorrow, evening and morning, going in and going out, go [thou], consoling [him]. Not putting away thine old thoughts [of jealousy], making [it] to sorrow, distract not the heart of our father the Qan, [40v] whilst the father the Qan is [yet] alive, saying, ' [I] shall become qan,' " he sent, saying, " Anda Senggüm, send [thou] envoys unto me. When they come, send [thou] the companions of both Bilge Beki and Tödö'en." Saying, " When the messengers come unto me, father the Qan, send two messengers. Anda [41r] Senggüm, send [thou] also two messengers. Anda Jamuya, send [thou] also two messengers. Altan, send [thou] also two messengers. Qučar, send [thou] also two messengers. Ačiy Širun, send [thou] also two messengers. Qači'un send [thou] also two messengers," he sent, thus making these words to be carried as [41v] a message by both Arqai Qasar and Sügegi Je'un. These words being thus spoken [unto him], when Senggüm, spake, he said, " When was he wont to say 'father the Qan'? Was he not wont to say 'old man killer'? When was he wont to call me anda? Was he not wont [42r] to say, 'The sorcerer Toyto'a walketh, having joined [unto himself] the tail of a Sartayčın sheep.' " <sup>51</sup> The devices of these words have been perceived. They are the first words of fighting. Both Bilge Beki and Tödö'en, raise [ye] the standard proclaiming battle. Make [ye] one to fatten the geldings. There is no doubt." <sup>52</sup> And so at the moment when Arqai Qasar was returning from Ong Qan, the wives and children [42v] of Sügegi Je'un were there at [the side of] To'oril. The heart to depart failing [him], Sügegi Je'un fell behind from Arqai. Arqai came and spake these words unto Činggis Qahan.

§182 [43v] And so Činggis Qahan, being departed, pitched at Lake Baljuna. At the moment when he was pitching there, the Forulas of Čo'os Čahan encountered [him] even there. Those <sup>51</sup> This must be an old saying containing an allusion which was perfectly clear at the time. The Sartayčın sheep has an enormous tail which, sometimes, is so big that it is placed in a small cart. The shaman with a big sheep tail attached to his posterior would not be at ease. It is possible that this means that Senggüm wishes to do something which he cannot do, because it is beyond his capacity.

Forulas, not fighting, [44r] came to submit themselves. When, from Ala Quš Digid Quri of the Önggüd, Asan, a Sartay, having a white camel, driving a thousand wethers, drew nigh down along the Ergüne River for to buy sables and squirrels, at the moment when he was entering to water [his wethers at] Baljuna, he encountered [Činggis Qahan].

§183 [44v] At the moment when Činggis Qahan was watering [his beasts at] the same Baljuna, Qasar, casting away unto [45r] Ong Qan his wife and his three sons, Yegü, Yesüngge, and Tuqu, went out with his companions, few [in number and with nothing other than their] bodies. Saying, " [I shall seek] mine elder brother," seeking Činggis Qahan, climbing up the ridges of [Mount] Qara'un Jidun, not being able to find [him], being in a strait, being gone, eating raw skin and sinews, he joined unto Činggis Qahan at Baljuna. Having suffered Qasar to come, rejoicing, Činggis Qahan, taking counsel, saying, " I shall send messengers unto [45v] Ong Qan," when he sent, speaking by [means of] both Qali'udar of the Je'ür'ied and Čaqurqan of the Uriangqai, when he spake, saying, " Speak [ye] unto the father the Qan, saying, ' [These are] words of Qasar,' " <sup>53</sup> [he said,] " Speak [ye], saying ' [Qasar] hath sent [us] saying,

" Beholding mine elder brother,
I lost sight of him.
Tracking [him],
I could not find his way.
When I shouted, [46r]
My voice was not heard."<sup>54</sup>

father the Qan.”” When he spake again, saying, “We shall remove, straightway after you, and shall meet by appointment at Arqal Geügi [46v] of the Kelüren [River]. Come [ye] there,” he appointed a place of meeting. And so having sent both Qali’udar and Čaqurqan, he sent [before] as spies both Jürčedei and Arqai [Qasar], and from Lake Baljuna Činggis Qahan, straightway, arising together with [his army], going out, [47r] by having set forth, arrived at Arqal Geügi of the Kelüren [River].

§184 [48r] Both Qali’udar and Čaqurqan, coming unto Ong Qan, saying, “[These are] words of Qasar,” spake [unto him] the words which from hence [Činggis Qahan] had sent, saying. Ong Qan, having pitched the golden tent, was feasting unawares. When, at the word of both Qali’udar and Čaqurqan, Ong Qan spake, saying, “If it be so, let Qasar come,” he sent [him] with [them],<sup>55</sup> saying, “I shall send [48v] Itürgen in which [Qasar] may have confidence. And so being come, with the arrival at the appointed place of meeting, at Arqal Geügi, seeing that the appearance [was] great,<sup>57</sup> the envoy Itürgen fled back. The horse of Qali’udar was swift. Qali’udar overtook [him], [but] the heart to seize [him] failing [him], at the moment when he was [49r] cutting off [the way] before and behind him, the horse of Čaqurqan was slow. At the extremity unto which an arrow arriveth from the rearward,<sup>58</sup> he shot so that [the arrow] lodged [at] the end of the rump of the black gelding of Itürgen, with the golden saddle. Then both Qali’udar and Čaqurqan seized Itürgen and brought [him] unto Činggis Qahan. Činggis Qahan, not talking unto [49v] Itürgen, said, “Go [ye], taking [him] unto Qasar! Let Qasar decide [how he shall deal with him]!” When they went, taking [him], Qasar, not talking unto Itürgen, even there cut [him] down and cast [him] away.

§185 [50r] When both Qali’udar and Čaqurqan spake unto Činggis Qahan, they said, [50v] “Ong Qan is unaware. Having pitched his golden tent, he feasteth. . . ? . . .<sup>59</sup> in haste, making [the men] to march through the night, let us surprise and compass [him].” [Činggis Qahan], approving this word, making both Jürčedei and Arqai to be spies, having marched through the night, arriving, compassed [Ong Qan], at the moment when he was at the outlet of the Jer Qabčiyai of Jeje’er Heights. When it was fought [51r] three nights and three days, when they stood, compassing [the men of Ong Qan], the third day, being in a strait, the same<sup>60</sup> submitted themselves. It was not known in what manner both Ong Qan and Senggüm were gone out at night. This one which had fought [so long] was Qaday Ba’atur of the Jirgin. When Qaday Ba’atur, submitting himself, coming, spake, he said, “When we had fought three nights and [51v] three days, saying, ‘How shall [I] suffer [one], seizing my proper qan, before mine eyes, to kill [him]?’ not being able to forsake [him], I fought, prolonging the strife, saying, ‘Let him flee away, saving his life.’ Now, if I be made to die, I shall die. If I be favoured by Činggis Qahan, I shall give [my] might [unto him.]”<sup>61</sup> When Činggis Qahan, [52r] approving the word of Qaday Ba’atur, made a decree, having said, “Is that not a man which fighteth, saying, ‘As [I] am not able to forsake my proper qan, let him flee away, saving his life?’ He is a person which may be regarded as a companion,” favouring [him], not making him to die, he was pleased to make a decree, saying, “Because of the life of Quyildar, [52v] let Qaday Ba’atur and the hundred Jirgin give [their] might<sup>62</sup> unto the wife and sons of Quyildar. If boys be born, let them follow and give [their] might<sup>63</sup> unto the seed of the seed of Quyildar. If girls be born, let their parents not betroth [them] according to their own wishes. Let them serve before and behind the wife and son of Quyildar.” Because Quyildar Sečen had beforetime opened [his] mouth [before Jürčedei], when Činggis Qahan was pleased to make a decree, he made a decree, saying, “Unto the seed of the seed of Quyildar, because of the service of Quyildar, let one receive the ‘grant of orphans.’”<sup>64</sup>

CHAPTER VII

§186 [1r] Then bringing down the Kereyid people and severally parting [them], he let one spoil [them]. Because of the service of the Suldud Tayai Ba'atur, he gave [unto him] one hundred Ĵirgin. Again, when Činggis Qahan made a decree, [. . .].<sup>1</sup> [1v] [As to] Ĵaqa Gambu, the younger brother of Ong Qan, there were two daughters. When Činggis Qahan himself took Ibaqa Beki, the elder of them, he gave Sorqaytani Beki, the younger, unto Tolui. By that reason, saying that Ĵaqa Gambu and the private slaves and people subject unto him wholly should be [2r] a second shaft [for himself], favouring [him], he did not suffer [one] to spoil [him].

§187 [2v] Again, when Činggis Qahan made a decree, he made a decree, saying, "Because of the service of both Badai and Kišiliy, [I give unto them] the golden tent of Ong Qan such as it sitteth [there],<sup>2</sup> together with the golden flagons, and the people which took care of bowls and basins. Let the Ongqojid Kereyid become their guards. [With my] suffering [you] to carry quivers and suffering [you] to drink the ötög,<sup>3</sup> rejoice [ye] as freemen unto [3r] the seed of the seed.

When [we] haste unto many enemies, when [ye] get spoil, as much as [ye] shall have gotten, take [ye it].<sup>4</sup>

When [we] kill wild beasts, as many as [ye] shall have killed, take [ye them]."

Again, when Činggis Qahan made a decree, he made a decree, saying, "Because both Badai and Kišiliy [3v] made service to come between [my] life [and death], being protected by Everlasting Heaven, bringing down the Kereyid people, [I] have attained unto the throne of height. Long [here]after, [as] to the seed of the seed, let one, sitting on my throne, successively perceive those<sup>6</sup> who have done service [for me] like this." Spoiling the Kereyid [4r] people, they distributed [them] unto one another so that they were not wanting unto even anyone. Distributing the Tümen Tübe'en unto one another, they together took [them] until [the quantity] was enough [for each one]. They suffered one to plunder the many Dongqayid, not suffering [it] to attain unto a whole day.<sup>6</sup> They clave and parted the Ĵirgin ba'atud which had taken the bloody clothing, [but] [4v] were not able to bring [them] for every one.<sup>7</sup> So destroying the Kereyid people, that winter he<sup>8</sup> wintered at Abji'a Ködeger.

§188 [5r] Both Ong Qan and Senggüm, with [nothing other than] their bodies, revolting<sup>9</sup> and going out, being departed, [5v] as Ong Qan, thirsting, began to enter into the Nekün Usun<sup>10</sup> of Didig Saqal, he fell into [the hands of] Qori Sübeči, a watchman of the Naiman. Qori Sübeči seized Ong Qan. When he said, "I am Ong Qan," not recognizing [him], he believed [him] not and then killed [him]. Senggüm, not entering into the Nekün Usun of Didig Saqal, betaking himself outside, entering into the Čöl,<sup>11</sup> when he sought water, Senggüm, lighting off [his horse], espied wild horses which, being bitten by gadflies, [6r] were standing [there].—The companion of Senggüm, the keeper of geldings, Kököčü, had his wife [with him]. With Senggüm they were three together.—He made his horse to be held by his keeper of geldings, Kököčü. The keeper of geldings, Kököčü, having led his gelding [by the tether], trotted back [home]. When his wife spake, saying,

<sup>7</sup> I. e., so quickly that it did not take a whole day in which to finish it.

At the moment when [thou] wast eating [6v] [meats] having savour,

he<sup>12</sup> was wont to say, 'My Kōkōcū.' How art thou going, so forsaking and abandoning Senggūm, thy qan?," his wife, halting, stayed behind. When Kōkōcū spake, he said, "Thou art saying [unto thyself], 'I shall take Senggūm as husband.'" At that word, when his wife spake, she said, "I am said [by thee to deserve the saying]: 'A wife hath a dog [7r] face.'" Give [unto him] at least his golden cup. Let him at least draw and drink water." Then, the keeper of geldings, Kōkōcū, having cast behind [him]<sup>14</sup> his golden cup, saying, "Take [it]!", trotted [away]. And so being come, the keeper of geldings, Kōkōcū, coming unto Činggis Qahan, saying, "I am come, [7v] so abandoning Senggūm in the Čöl," then, when he had wholly spoken for [Činggis Qahan] his words which he had spoken [with his wife]—all [of them]—, when Činggis Qahan made a decree, favouring his wife, saying, "The same keeper of geldings, Kōkōcū, is come thus forsaking his proper qan. Such a man now by whom, [8r] if he become a companion, will be trusted?," cut [him] down and abandoned [him].

§189 [9r] When Gürbesü, mother of Tayang Qan of the Naiman, spake, saying, "Ong Qan was an aged, great qan of old. Fetch [ye] his head. If it truly be [his], we shall sacrifice [unto it]," sending a messenger unto Qori Sübeci, making [him], after that he had [it] cut off, to fetch his head, recognizing [it], placing [it] on a white toloy,<sup>15</sup> [9v] making the daughters in law to perform the rites of a daughter in law, making [one] to present the ötög, making [one] to play the qu'ur,<sup>16</sup> holding a bowl, sacrificed unto [it]. Then when the head was being so sacrificed unto, it laughed. Saying, "It hath laughed," Tayang Qan trampled [it] in pieces.

Then Kögse'ü Sabray spake. The head of the dead qan, [first] ye, indeed, cut off and fetch. Next ye, indeed, [10r] break [it] in pieces. How is it fit? The barking sound of our dogs is become bad."<sup>17</sup> Inanča Bilge Qan spake [beforetime]. He said, "[My] wife [is] young. I, [her] husband, am waxed old. We begot this Tayang by [our] elbesü.<sup>18</sup> Ayi! Can my torluy<sup>19</sup> born son take care of and [10v] hold my törülmiši,<sup>20</sup> many, lowly, bad people? Now, [as to] the sound of the dogs, they bark a bark which signifieth [that evil] is near. The ordinances of Gürbesü, our Qadun, are become severe. Torluy Tayang, my Qan, thou art weak. [Thou art] without thought and ability other than [those of] both falconing and hunting." Then when Tayang Qan spake, he said, "It is said that there are very few<sup>21</sup> Mongyol [in] [11r] this east. Those people by their quivers<sup>22</sup> made the aged, great Ong Qan of old to be afraid, made [him] to revolt, and made [him] to die. Now are those, the same, [not] saying, '[We] shall be qan'?, saying, 'Let there be on the Heaven luminous luminaries, both the sun and the moon.' [We acknowledge it. It is true that] there are [11v] both the sun and the moon. [But] on the earth how can there be two qad? Let us go and bring those Mongyol." At that, when his mother Gürbesü spake, she said, "What wilt thou do with those? The Mongyol people are ones whose scent [is] bad and whose clothing [is] dark. Let them be far apart. Perhaps, making [one] to bring their elegant [12r] daughters in law and daughters and making them to wash their hands, we

<sup>18</sup> The word elbesü-er ("by [our] elbesün") is not glossed, but from the continuous translation (YCPS 7.12v5): 是我禱神生來的 ["(He) is one who was born through our prayers to the divinity"], it would appear to be an instrumentalis in -er of a word elbesü (n) "prayer." See also elbesün in §174 above.

<sup>20</sup> The word törülmiši [= törülmiš] is not glossed. It is Turkish. In a letter dated 19 August 1954, Professor Nicholas POPPE stated: "As for törülmiš, this should be considered as a verbal noun in -miš from törül-, a deverbal (passive) verb in -ü- from törü- 'to bear, to be born.'" might, perhaps, make [them] to milk our cows and sheep." At that, when Tayang Qan spake, he said, "If it be so, they are ones having what?"<sup>23</sup> Let us go unto those Mongyol and, perhaps, bring their quivers."

§190 [13v] At these words, when Kögse'ü Sabray spake, he said, "Ayi! Ye speak great words! Ayi! Torluy<sup>24</sup> Qan, are they fit? Lay [ye them] up." Having been warned by Kögse'ü Sabray, when [Tayang Qan] sent the messenger named Torbi Taši, speaking unto Ala Quš Digid Quri of the Önggüd, he sent, saying, [14r] "It is said that there are very few Mongyol [in] this east. Be thou [my] right hand. I shall join with [thee] from hence and we shall take the quivers of those few Mongyol." At that word, when Ala Quš Digid Quri spake in answer, having sent, saying, "I cannot be [thy] right hand," when Ala Quš Digid Quri sent, speaking unto [14v] Činggis Qahan by his messenger named Yoqunan, he sent, saying, "Tayang Qan of the Naiman cometh for to take thy quiver. He is come, saying that I should become [his] right hand. I am not [so] become. Now I have sent, making [one] to forewarn [this] unto thee. I am afraid that they will come and that thou wilt suffer thy quiver to be taken from thee." Even then, at the moment when Činggis Qahan [15r] was hunting at Teme'en Steppe and was compassing Tülkin Če'üd, the messenger Yoqunan which Ala Quš Digid had sent, came, bringing this message. At this message, as [the Mongyol], on the hunt, then, [15v] said unto one another, "How shall we do?" when many people spake, they said unto one another, "Our geldings are lean. Now what shall we do?" At that, when Oddigin Noyan spake, he said, "How can it be regarded [by us] as pretense, saying, 'The geldings [are] lean?' My geldings are fat. Hearing such words, how can [we] continue to sit?" Again, when Belgütei Noyan spake, he said, "If, when one is [yet] alive, he suffer his quiver to be taken by a 'companion,'<sup>25</sup> what [16r] advantage is it to have lived? For a man that was born, when he dieth, if he also lie with his quiver and [his] bow in one

[and the same place] with [his] bones, is it not good? The Naiman people, saying that [it is] one of which the empire is great and one of which the people are many, is speaking great words. If we, relying on<sup>26</sup> these their great words, setting forth and going [to find them], take their quivers [from them] [16v], would it be [so] difficult? If we go [to find them], would their many herds, halting [to rest], perhaps, not remain behind? Would their ordo tents, becoming empty,<sup>27</sup> perhaps, not remain behind? Would their many people, perhaps, not go out to escape to high places? How can we continue to sit, suffering the same to speak these such big words? Let us, then, set forth!" [17r]

§191 [18r] Approving this word of Belgütei Noyan, Činggis Qahan, being come in from hunting, removing from Abjiya Köteger, pitching at Keltegei Qada of [Mount] Or Nu'u of the Qalqa [River], numbering his number, then dividing [the army] into thousands so as to form thousands, he then appointed the captains of thousands, the captains of hundreds, and the captains of tens. He then also [18v] appointed the stewards. He then appointed these six stewards: Dodai Čerbi, Doqolqu Čerbi, Ögele Čerbi, Tolun Čerbi, Bučaran Čerbi, and Söyiketü Čerbi.<sup>28</sup> Making an end of dividing [the army] into thousands so as to form thousands, dividing [it] into hundreds so as to form hundreds, and dividing [it] into tens, so as to form tens, when he then [19r] chose and enrolled as guards eighty nightguards and seventy dayguards, when he enrolled the sons and the younger brethren of the captains of thousands and of hundreds and the sons and the younger brethren of only simple people,<sup>29</sup> he chose and enrolled those which had ability and whose body and appearance [were] good. Then, favouring Arqai Qasar, he made a decree, saying, "Let him choose ba'atud and make [of them a band of] a thousand. On days of battle, [19v] let them join battle, standing in front of me. On the many<sup>30</sup> days, let §192 [20r] Again, when Činggis Qahan made a decree, he made a decree, saying, "Let the quiverbearers, [20v] the guards [which are] dayguards, the cooks, the keepers of doors, and the keepers of geldings take [their] turn [in] the day[time] and, before that the sun setteth, retire for the nightguards and, going out to their geldings, pass the night. Let the nightguards, at night, make to lie [those of] their [men] that shall lie round about the tent and make to stand in turn [those of] their [men] that shall stand at the door. Let the quiverbearers and the dayguards, [21r] the next day, when We take broth, tell unto the nightguards [that they are come] and [then] let the quiverbearers, the dayguards, the cooks, and the keepers of doors go each unto his [daily] task. Let them sit upon their seats. Let them,"<sup>21</sup> completing their days of turn of three nights and three days and passing the three nights in the very same manner, [21v] changing [places with those who relieve them], be nightguards the night [which followeth their being relieved]. Let them pass the night lying round about." And so, making an end of dividing [the army] into thousands so as to form thousands, appointing stewards, enrolling eighty nightguards and seventy guards [which are] dayguards, choosing ba'atud for Qasar, when, from Keltegei Qada of [Mount] Or Nu'u of the Qalqa [River], he set forth [22r] against the Naiman people, —one which had a white horse and a rather bad saddle—was taken by the watchmen of the Naiman. When the watchmen [23r] of the Naiman, taking that horse, spake unto one another, they said unto one another, "The geldings of the Mongyol are lean." When ours, reaching the Sa'ari Steppe and halting there, said unto one another, "How shall we do?" then, when Dodai Čerbi gave advice unto Činggis Qahan, when he gave advice, saying, "We are, indeed, few [in number]. [Over and] above [the fact that we are] few [in number] we are come, [23v] being exhausted. Thus, indeed, halting, until our geldings be satiated, pitching, spreading ourselves in this Sa'ari Steppe, every person [be he] but alive lighting fires at [the rate of] five places a man, [we] shall terrify [them] by the fire. The Naiman people are said [to be] many. Their qan is called a weakling which is not [yet] come out from in his tent. [24r] While we confuse [them] by fire, our geldings, also will become satiated. Making our geldings to become satiated, having pursued the watchmen of the Naiman, if, following hard upon [them], making [them] to unite themselves at their middle, we join battle in that confusion, will it [not] do?" when, approving this word, Činggis Qahan made a decree, he proclaimed an ordinance unto the soldiers, saying, "So, then, make [ye one] to light [24v] fires." And so, pitching, spreading themselves in the Sa'ari Steppe, one made [every] man [were he] but alive to light fires at five places. At night the watchmen of the Naiman, from the head of [Mount] Qangqarqan, at night seeing the many fires, having sent unto Tayang Qan, [25r] saying, "Was one not saying that the Mongyol [are] very few [in number]? They have fires [which are] more than the stars,"<sup>24</sup> giving [unto him] the little white horse which had the rather bad saddle, they sent, saying, "The soldiers of the Mongyol have pitched until the Sa'ari Steppe is covered. Are they not increasing on [each] day? They have fires [which are] more than the stars."

<sup>24</sup> Cf., e. g., Deuteronomy I §10: "The LORD your God hath multiplied you, and, behold, ye are this day as the stars of heaven for multitude"; and XXVIII §62: "And ye shall be left few in number, whereas ye were as the stars of heaven for multitude; . . . ." Cf. also Nahum III §16: "Thou hast multiplied thy merchants above the stars of heaven: . . . ."

§194 [26r] Receiving this message of the watchmen, Tayang Qan was at the Qačir Usun<sup>35</sup> of the Qangyai. Having suffered [one] to bring this message, when he sent, telling [it] unto his son Güčülüg Qan, he sent, saying, "The geldings of the Mongyol [26v] are lean. One saith, 'They have fires [which are] more than the stars.' [Hence] the Mongyol are many. Now,

If we join [battle] in earnest,
Will it [not] be difficult to separate ourselves [from them]?
If [we] join [battle] in earnest,
[They] will not wink [with] their black eyes—those.

If we join [battle] [27r]
With the hard Mongyol

Will it do?

The geldings of the Mongyol are said [to be] lean. We, making our people to pass over the Altai and rolling [them] back, removing, reforming our army, marching, enticing them,<sup>36</sup> marching, fighting dogfights,<sup>37</sup> until we arrive [at] the foot of the Altai—our geldings are fat—making the bellies to be pulled up<sup>38</sup> and waiting until [27v] the geldings of the Mongyol be exhausted, we shall pour out [our army] at their faces."<sup>39</sup> At that word, when Güčülüg Qan spake, saying, "The woman Tayang of alway! At this word, Tayang Qan being mentioned [by his son] in such a manner that he himself [28v] was compared unto a woman, when Tayang Qan spake, he said, "Let the mighty, courageous Güčülüg, the day when [the enemy and we] shall encounter one another and [when the enemy and we] shall kill one another, not put away, perhaps, this his courage. When, in earnest, [the enemy and we] shall have encountered one another and shall have joined [battle], to separate ourselves [from them] will, perhaps, be difficult." At that word, when [29r] Qori Sübeči, the great chief which governed under Tayang Qan, spake, having said, "Thy father Inanča Bilge Qan shewed not the back of man or the rump of gelding unto a companion<sup>42</sup> [which was] equal.<sup>43</sup> Now, thou, it having [yet] been the morning early,<sup>44</sup> how faileth [thee] thy heart, thou? If it be so, let us fight," removing from the Qačir Usun, being gone down along the Tamir [River], passing over the Orqon, passing by the eastern skirt of [31v] Naqu Qun, at the moment when, arriving, he was drawing nigh [unto] Čakirma'ud, the watchmen of Činggis Qahan seeing [him], as they brought a message, saying, "The Naiman, arriving, draw nigh," having suffered [them] to bring this message, when Činggis Qahan made a decree, [32r] having said, "[The issue] will be adversities [either which are] more than many or [which are] fewer than few," <sup>47</sup> setting forth against them, having driven away their watchmen, when he set the army in order, he said, "Marching the 'qarayana' march, arraying ourselves in the 'lake' array, let us fight the 'chisel' fight." <sup>48</sup> Having so said, Činggis Qahan, going himself as a spy, made Qasar to set the middle in order. He made Odčigin Noyan to set [32v] the led horses in order. The Naiman, withdrawing themselves from Čakirma'ud, stood along the front of Naqu Qun and the skirt of the mountains. And so, our watchmen having driven before [them] the watchmen of the Naiman, having driven [them] before [them] so that they united themselves at their great middle [at] the front of Naqu Qun, arrived. (2) "To array oneself in the 'lake' array" means to deploy with the troops widely scattered in the manner of the water of a lake which spreads over a large area. He asked, saying, "Those [are] what? [Even] as the wolves pursue the many sheep and come, pursuing [them] unto the folds, these what people, so pursuing, draw nigh?" When Jamuya spake, he said, [33v] "Mine anda, Temüjin, hath been wont to nourish 'four dogs' <sup>50</sup> with the flesh of men and to bind [them], using chains of iron. When he said, "Those 'four dogs,' who are those?" he said, "Both Jebe and Qubilai and both Jelme and Sübe'etei are those four." When Tayang Qan spake, saying, "Let us stand far from those lowly creatures," moving backward, he stood, straddling the mountain [and the plain]. Seeing [those] who, skipping for joy and making circles, were drawing nigh behind them, again Tayang Qan [35r] asked of Jamuya. He asked, saying, "Those are what?  Činggis Qahan, the sun becoming evening, [43r] halted and passed the Naiman began to escape and to remove, tumbling down from on Naqu [Qun], heaping themselves up<sup>65</sup> the one on top of the

And so, when the Merkid people were spoiled, when Dayir Usun of the Qo'as Merkid drew nigh, taking his daughter, Qulan Qatun, saying, "I shall present her unto Činggis Qahan," being hindered by soldiers on the way, encountering Nayā Noyan<sup>68</sup> the Ba'arid, [46r] when Dayir Usun spake, he said, "I draw nigh, saying, 'I shall present this my daughter unto Činggis Qahan.'" Then, when Nayā Noyan spake, he detained [him], saying, "We shall present thy daughter together." When he detained [him], saying, "If thou go alone, on the way the soldiers will not suffer even thee to live in [this] time of trouble and [46v] thy daughter also will suffer trouble," he detained Dayir Usun three days and three nights. Then, with Qulan Qadun, having taken Dayir Usun, Nayā Noyan brought [them] together unto Činggis Qahan. Then, Činggis Qahan being greatly wroth, saying, "Why hast thou [47r] detained [her]?", at the moment when he was asking, saying, "Asking in a hard manner and in a minute manner, I shall make [it a matter of] ordinance,"<sup>69</sup> when Qulan Qadun spake, she made [one] to report, saying, "Nayā spake. He warned [us], saying, 'I am a great chief of Činggis Qahan. We shall together present thy daughter unto the Qahan. On the way the soldiers will make trouble.' Now, if we had encountered soldiers other than [those of] Naya'a, would we [not] be entered into being gendered in trouble?"<sup>70</sup> Peradventure our encountering this Naya'a was good. Now, instead of asking of Naya'a, if the Qahan favour [me], if he ask of the flesh<sup>71</sup> which, by the destiny of Heaven, [my] father and mother did beget, [he will find that it is perfect and entire]. When Naya'a was asked, he said, "A face of me other than [that devoted unto] the Qahan there is not. If I encounter

Činggis Qahan, approving the report of Qulan Qadun, when, on the same day, then, examining [her], he tried [her], finding [it] to be like [unto] the report of Qulan Qadun, Činggis Qahan was pleased to love Qulan Qadun. Finding [it] to be like [unto] the words of Naya'a, approving, saying, "He is [a man] which hath true words," he favoured [him], saying, "I shall commit great matters [unto him]."

CHAPTER VIII

§198 [1r] Spoiling the Merkid people, from both Tügei and Döregene, qadund of Qudu, the eldest son of Toyto'a Beki, [Činggis Qahan] then gave Döregene unto Ögödei Qahan. Half the people of the Merkid [1v] revolted and fortified a fortress on the top of a mountain.<sup>1</sup> Then, when Činggis Qahan made a decree, he sent Čimbai, son of Sorqan Šira, to be chief, making [him] to attack by [means of] the troops of the left hand the Merkid which had fortified. Činggis Qahan pursuing [2r] Toyto'a, which, together with his sons Qudu and Čila'un, few [in number and with nothing other than their] bodies, was gone out, revolting, [Činggis Qahan] wintering at the front of the Altai, as, in the spring of the year of the ox [1205], he went, passing by the Arai,<sup>2</sup> Güčülüg Qan of the Naiman suffering [Činggis Qahan] to take his people, since, revolting, he was gone out—few [2v] persons [in number]—both [he and] Toyto'a of the Merkid, joining [forces], uniting themselves at the Buydurma Fountain of the Erdis,<sup>3</sup> were setting their soldiers in order. As Činggis Qahan, arriving, stood in array, Toyto'a, being shot there by a stray arrow, is fallen. His sons, not being able to take his bones in hand,<sup>4</sup> not being able [3r] to take his body away, cut off his head and, taking [it], departed. Then, when the Naiman and the Merkid, uniting themselves together, not being able to stand in array, removed, escaping, when they

crossed the Erdiš [River], sinking [therein], they suffered their more part to die in the water. The Naiman and [3v] the Merkid which were gone out few [in number], after passing over the Erdis, removed, separating themselves. Güčülüg Qan of the Naiman, passing the Ui'urtai and the Qarlu'ud, went to join himself unto the Gür Qan of the Qara Kidad which were at the Čui River in the land of the Sarta'ul.<sup>5</sup> The Merkid [4r] having at their head Qudu, Qal,<sup>6</sup> and Čila'un, sons of Toyto'a of the Merkid, departed, passing [by] the Qanglin and the Kimča'ud. Then Činggis Qahan, returning, passing by the Arai,<sup>7</sup> pitched at the a'uru'ud. Čimbai destroyed the Merkid which had fortified a fortress on the top of a mountain.<sup>8</sup> Then, [as to] the Merkid, when Činggis Qahan made a decree, suffering one to kill [those] of them [4v] whom one should kill, he suffered [those] of them who were left to be spoiled by the soldiers. Again the Merkid which aforetime had submitted themselves, revolting, arose from the a'uru'ud. Our servants which were in the a'uru'ud overcame those [which had so revolted]. Then, [5r] when Činggis Qahan made a decree, saying, "[We] had said, 'Let us suffer [them] to live as [an] entire [tribe].'" But the same [Merkid] have revolted," he made one to part the Merkid, [distributing them] unto every quarter, to the point that he extinguished [them as an entire tribe].

§199 [6r] In the same year of the ox [1205], when Činggis Qahan made a decree, when he sent Sübe'etei—[him] with an iron cart<sup>9</sup>—making [him] to pursue the sons of Toyto'a having at their head Qudu, Qal, and Čila'un, when Činggis Qahan, making a decree, caused [one] to bear [6v] a message unto Sübe'etei, he made a decree, saying, "The sons of Toyto'a having at their head Qudu, Qal, and Čila'un, departing, being affrighted, returning, shooting, departed as [if] they were wild horses [each] having a pole with a noose [over his neck] or deer [each] having an arrow [in his body]. If those, becoming winged, flying, ascend unto Heaven, shalt thou,

Sübe'etei, [7r] becoming a gerfalcon, flying, not seize them? If, becoming marmots, digging with their nails, they enter into the Earth, shalt thou, becoming an iron rod, boring, seeking [them], not overtake [them]? If, becoming fishes, they enter into the Tenggis Sea, shalt thou, Sübe'etei, becoming a net which is cast or a net which is dragged, catching and [7v] taking [them] up, not take [them]? Again, I have sent thee to pass high passes and to pass over broad rivers. Being mindful of the far [distances] of the land, spare [ye them], at the moment when the horses of the army are not yet wasted away. Husband [ye them], at the moment when [ye] have not yet finished your provision. If a gelding be [already] wholly wasted away, if [ye] spare [him], it will [8r] not do.<sup>10</sup> If [ye] have [already] wholly finished the provision, if [ye] husband [him], it will not do. The wild beasts on your way are many. At the moment when ye go, mindful of that which is beyond, suffer [ye] not the men of the army to gallop unto the wild beasts. Hunt [ye] not without limit. If [ye] hunt, saying, [8v] 'Let there be increase and addition in provision for the men of the army,' hunt [ye], limiting [the hunting]. Suffer [thou one] not to crupper the crupper of the saddle of a man of the army apart from limited<sup>11</sup> huntings. Let one, not putting on the bridle, go [forward], leaving the bit out of the mouth.<sup>12</sup> If, so ordering themselves, they go [forward], how will the men of the army be able to gallop?<sup>13</sup> [9r] Thus making [it a matter of] ordinance, then, let one seize and beat [those] who shall have transgressed the ordinance. Come [ye], giving unto Us those who shall have transgressed Our decree—the ones which are such as to be known by

"Činggis means that in this manner the soldiers will not be able to gallop their horses, because, if they gallop their horses without having shackled the mouth with the bit, the horses can not be directed or mastered, and if they gallop their horses without having put on the crupper, they will not be able to go down a slope on the gallop, because the saddle being no longer held at the back will slip forward and the rider will fall from his mount. The aim of Činggis is to render all galloping impossible while the soldiers are en route, in order that they do not uselessly fatigue their mounts."

Us. Cause [ye], then, [one] to behead even there [in the field] the many [ones] which are not [such as] to be known by Us.

Beyond the rivers

Ye will separate yourselves.

Go [ye, then,] [9v] in the same manner.

Beyond the mountains

Ye will divide yourselves.

Think [ye, then,] not of [aught] apart [from] and other [than your task].<sup>14</sup>

If, might and power being increased by Everlasting Heaven, [ye] make to enter into your hands the sons of Toyto'a, [to go] so far as to bring [them], what is it?<sup>15</sup> Forsake ye<sup>16</sup> [them] there." Again when Činggis Qahan spake [10r] unto Sübe'etei, saying, "When I make thee [now] to go a warfare, [I do so because] in my childhood by the Uduyid of the Three Merkid which made [me] thrice to go round about Burqan Qaldun<sup>17</sup> I was made to be afraid. Such hating<sup>18</sup> people—now again, loosing mouth and tongue<sup>19</sup> [not to submit themselves unto me], they are departed—may [thou] meet at the extremity of [that which is] [10v] long and at the bottom of [that which is] deep,"<sup>20</sup> making [him] to pursue [them], making [him] to go to the extremity, beating out an iron cart,<sup>21</sup> he made him to go a warfare in the year of the ox [1205]. He made a decree, saying, "If [ye] go, thinking that, even if We be out of [your] sight, [it will be] as if [We were] visible and, even

He said, "The sons of whom, [12v] killing this day a moufflon, eat thus [as ye]?"<sup>22</sup> Whilst they were eating the flesh of that moufflon, his five companions, laying hand upon Jamuḡa, seized and brought [him] unto Činggis Qahan. As Jamuḡa, being come unto and seized by his companions, spake, saying, "Say unto [mine] anda, the Qahan,

In the presence of [14r] the same Jamuḡa he made [one] to behead for [him] the people which had laid hand upon him. When Činggis Qahan spake, saying, "Speak unto Jamuḡa," as he spake, saying, "Now we twain have united ourselves. Let us be companions. As we are together becoming [each of us] one of two shafts of a cart, thou thinkest of severing thyself and [14v] [of] separating thyself [from me]. Now, being together in one [and the same place], §203 When, together with the sons in law—when again Činggis Qahan [27v] made a decree—he had [thus] appointed [over] a thousand [each of] these captains of the ninety five thousands which he had named, when, [concerning the men which were] within that [number], Činggis Qahan made a decree, saying, "I shall grant favours unto those who have [done] service," at the moment when he was saying that the captains having at their head Bo'orču and Muqali should come, Šigi Qutuqu was within the tent. As he spake unto Šigi Qutuqu, saying, "Go [28r] for to call [them]," when Šigi Qutuqu spake, he said, "Bo'orču, Muqali, and others have done more service than who? They have given more might than who?"<sup>57</sup> In [respect of] being given favours, [as to] what[soever], I did not service which was too little. [As to] what[soever], I gave not might which was too little.

From [the time when I] was [28v] in the cradle,
At thy high threshold,
Growing,
Until there grew

<sup>56</sup> Cf. the catalogue of the captains of the ships in the second book of the Iliad.

<sup>57</sup> I. e., "They have devoted themselves to thee more than who?"

So much beard [as thou now seest]
On [my] chin,
I have not thought otherwise.<sup>58</sup>
From [the time when I had] the urinal at [my] crotch,<sup>59</sup>
Being at thy golden threshold,
Growing,
Until the beard at the mouth
Grew so much [as thou now seest],
I have not trodden in error. [29r]
Making me to lie at her feet,
[She] hath made me to grow as a son [of her].
Making me to lie at her side,
[She] hath made me to grow as a younger brother
[of thee].<sup>60</sup>

Now what favour givest [thou] unto me?" At that word, [29v] when Činggis Qahan spake unto Šigi Qutuqu, he made a decree, saying, "Art thou not the sixth younger brother? For thee, Our late[-born] younger brother, [let one] part<sup>61</sup> favours according to the part of younger brethren. Again, because of thy services, let one not punish [thee] unto nine transgressions." He made a decree, saying, "At the moment when [I am] being protected by Everlasting Heaven and [30r] am rectifying<sup>62</sup> the entire people, becoming [Mine] eyes for seeing,

[Mine] ears for hearing,<sup>63</sup>

the entire people part thou and give [as] parts unto [Our] Mother, unto Us, unto [Our] younger brethren, and unto [Our] sons, according to the names of the people,

Dividing

Those who have skirts of felt [which cover their tents as outward walls],

Making to separate themselves

Those who have doors of boards [on their tents]. [29v]

Let not anyone violate thy word." Again saying that Šigi Qutuqu, of the entire people,

Making thieves to beware,

Making lies to be vain, should make to die [those] for whom holdeth the custom that they should be made to die and should make to punish [those] for whom holdeth the custom that they should be made to be punished, he committed [unto him] the judgments of over all [the people]. Again he made a decree, saying, "Let him, writing writing [in] the blue register, make into registers the fact that, of the entire people,

He shall have parted parts and the fact that

He shall have judged judgments and, unto the seed of the seed, let one not alter the blue writing which Šigi Qutuqu, [after] taking counsel with me, shall, [after] deciding [it], have made into registers on white paper. Let the people which shall alter [aught] be [31v] guilty." When Šigi Qutuqu spake, he petitioned, saying, "How shall a late[-born] younger brother like me, take a part alike and equally? If he favour me, let the favour of the Qahan know [how] he may give [unto me] from the cities having walls of earth." [32r] At this word, [Činggis Qahan] said, "Thine own person, thou hast determined [thy part]. Know thou [what it shall be]." Šigi Qutuqu, making an end of causing [him] so to favour himself, going out, calling the chiefs Bo'orču, Muqali and others, made [them] to enter.

§204 [33r] Then when Činggis Qahan, making a decree, spake unto Father Münglig, he made a decree, saying, "Thou, fortunate and happy,

Which wast born together with [my] being born,
Which didst grow together with [my] growing,"<sup>64</sup>

[33v] thy services and protection, how many were they [not in number]? Among those, at the moment when the twain, Father Ong Qan and Anda Senggüm, beguiling, called me, when I drew nigh, as, on the way, I passed the night at the tent of Father Münglig, if thou, Father Münglig, hadst not stayed [me],<sup>65</sup> [I] fear that [I] would be entered

Into water that was whirling, [34r]

Into fire that was red.

Only being mindful of that service, how could it be forgotten unto the seed of the seed? Being mindful of that service, now causing [thee] to sit [on] a seat at the base of this corner, consulting [thee] in [each] year or in [each] moon, I shall give gifts and favours unto thee. I shall be serving [thee]. Unto the seed [34v] of the seed!"

§205 Again, when Činggis Qahan spake unto Bo'orču, he made a decree, saying, "[35r] At the time when [I was] little, the eight horses—the isabella geldings—being stolen, at the moment when, on the way, passing three nights, pursuing [them], I was drawing nigh, we encountered each other. Then, when thou didst speak, saying, 'I shall together be a companion unto a companion which, being in distress,'<sup>66</sup> draweth nigh,' without a message even unto thy father in the tent, when thou wast milking thy mares, concealing thy [35v] leathern bucket and leathern milkpail in the steppe, making [me] to loose my strawyellow<sup>67</sup> [horse] with the hairless tail, causing a grayish white horse with a black stripe along the backbone<sup>68</sup> to be ridden by me, thou, riding [thine] own horses, hasting, from the steppe, then, being a companion with me, again, pursuing [for] three days and nights, when we arrived at the güre'en which had stolen [the eight horses]—[36r] the isabella geldings—, stealing [them] as they were standing at the edge of the güre'en, driving [them] out, fleeing away, we twain brought [them] back.<sup>69</sup> Thy father is Naqu Bayan. Thou, his only son,<sup>70</sup> knowing what [in respect of me], [36v] art become a companion unto me? Thou art become a companion by the courage of [thy] heart. After that, when, continually thinking [on thee], I sent Belgütei and said, 'Let us be companions,' when thou,

Riding a strawyellow [horse] with a curved back, Tying behind the saddle thy gray mantle of felt, art come as a companion,<sup>71</sup> the Three Merkid coming against Us, at the moment when they made [me] thrice to go round about [37r] [Mount] Burqan, thou wentest round about with [me].<sup>72</sup> Again, after that, when, [being so close to them that we were as] propped over against the Tatar people at Dalan Nemürge, we passed the night, at the moment when, day and night, the rain continually fell, saying that I should be asleep at night, [37v] having continued to cover [me with] thy [rain] covering, not suffering the rain to fall upon me, standing [there] until the night was spent, thou wast only once shifting one of thy two feet.<sup>73</sup> It was a sign of the courage of thee. What [signs of] courage of thee other than that could I finish telling? Both Bo'orču and Muqali,

Drawing my [38r] right so that it went forward, Staying my wrong so that it halted,<sup>74</sup> have [thus] made [me] to attain unto this throne.<sup>75</sup> Now, [let §206 [39r] Again, when Činggis Qahan spake unto Muqali, he made a decree, saying, "When we pitched at the Branching Tree of [39v] Qorqonay Valley, under which Qutula Qan danced,<sup>77</sup> because of [the fact that] the words which the foretoken of Heaven had [fore]told unto Muqali [were] clear, I, then thinking on [his father] Gü'ün Qo'a,<sup>78</sup> did pledge [my] word unto Muqali. According to that, saying, 'Let one sit on a seat and, [40r] unto the seed of the seed of Muqali, let one be gui ong of all the people,' [I] have given [unto him] the title gui ong. Let Muqali Gui Ong govern the ten thousand of [those] of the left hand who take Qara'un Jidun as [their] pillow."<sup>79</sup>

§207 [40v] When Činggis Qahan spake unto Qorči, he made a decree, saying, "[Thou] didst [once] prophesy [unto me]<sup>80</sup> and, from [the time when] I was little until now, for a long time,

Suffering the wet with [me],
Suffering the cold with [me],<sup>81</sup>

thou [41r] hast been conducting thyself as a god which bringeth happiness. When, at that time, Qorči, [thou] didst speak, thou didst say, 'If the prophecy be fulfilled and if, by Heaven, it be made to come to pass [according] to [thy] desires, suffer me to have thirty women.' Now, because [it hath been] fulfilled, I shall favour [thee]. [41v] See [for thyself which are] the best women and the best maidens of these peoples which have submitted and choose thirty women." Again he made a decree, saying, "Over [and above the fact] that Qorči [hath] three thousand Ba'arin, with both Tayai and Ašiy, there being the Činos, Tö'ölös, and Telenggüd of the Adarkin, the ten thousand being [thus] full, Qorči governing [them], encamping as a freeman [in] an encampment [42r] unto the People of the Forest along the Erdiš [River], and, making [them] to hold in subjection the People of the Forest, let Qorči govern the ten thousand." He made a decree, saying, "Let the People of the Forest not act on this manner or on that manner without leave from Qorči. Why [on the part of Qorči] should there be any doubt as to [the manner on which he should deal with one] who acteth without [his] leave?"<sup>82</sup>

§208 [43r] Again, when Činggis Qahan spake unto Jürčedei, [he made a decree, saying], "[As for] thy weighty service, at the moment when [we were] fighting at the Qalaqaljid Sands with the Kereyid and when I was anxious [concerning the outcome of the battle], Anda Quyardar [then] sware an oath.<sup>83</sup> [Howbeit], his work, Jürčedei, thou didst perform. When thou didst perform [it], Jürčedei, because, thou, rushing against [them], overcoming the Jirgin, [43v] the Tübegen, the Dongqayid, the Quri Šilemün, the thousand dayguards, the weighty troops—all [of them]—arriving at the great middle, didst shoot the red cheek of Senggüm with an učumay [arrow], by Everlasting Heaven 'the door and the reins were opened.'<sup>84</sup> If Senggüm had not been wounded, [44r] how, indeed, might we have been? As for Jürčedei, the weighty, great service was that. When that [one] separated himself [from me], journeying down along the Qalqa [River], I was continually thinking on Jürčedei as [if he were] the shelter of a high mountain. When that [one] was departed, we arrived for to water [our beasts at] Lake Baljuna.<sup>85</sup> Moreover, when we set forth from [44v] Lake Baljuna, sending Jürčedei as a spy,<sup>86</sup> setting forth against the Kereyid, [our] might being increased by Heaven and Earth, we destroyed and spoiled the Kereyid people. In the strife in which [45r] the Merkid and the Naiman dispersed themselves, Jaqa Gambu of the Kereyid, by reason of his two daughters,<sup>88</sup> had been with his own subject peoples as [an] entire [tribe]. Jürčedei, enticing [him] who had separated himself [from us], becoming an enemy a second time, by a device [45v] laying hand upon [him], seized and made an end of Jaqa Gambu which had wholly separated himself [from us]. Destroying a second time the people of that Jaqa Gambu, we spoiled it. This was the second service of Jürčedei."<sup>89</sup>

The day when [in the field] the one killed the other,
Because he [could have] cast away his life;
The day when [in the field] the one died with the other,
Because he [could have] fought unto death,

when Činggis Qahan, favouring [him], gave Ibaqa Beki unto [46r] Jürčedei, when he spake unto Ibaqa, saying, "I have not said [unto myself] that thou [art] without thine *ülig*e and bosom<sup>90</sup> and that [thou art] bad [as to thy] beauty and appearance. When I present unto Jürčedei thee who art 'entered into [my] breast and into [my] legs'<sup>91</sup> and who art 'descended,' taking place in the row,<sup>92</sup> being mindful of the great principle,<sup>93</sup> I have given thee [unto him], being mindful of the principle [of recompense] of his services whereby [46v] Jürčedei

Long [here]after, when my seed shall sit on Our [47r] throne, being mindful of the principle [of recompense unto him who] did service like this, not violating my words, let them not abolish the place<sup>95</sup> of Ibaqa unto the seed of the seed." Again, when Činggis Qahan spake unto Ibaqa, having taken [her], saying, "Thy father Ĵaqa Gambu gave unto thee two hundred ingjes<sup>96</sup> and [gave] unto thee both the cook [47v] Ašiy Temür and the cook Alčiy. Now when thou goest unto the Uru'ud people, go, giving unto me [as] remembrance of thee one hundred from thine ingjes, [together with] thy cook Ašiy Temür," again, when Činggis Qahan spake unto Jürčedei, favouring [him], he made a decree, saying, "I have given mine Ibaqa [48r] unto thee. ## THE SECRET HISTORY OF THE MONGOLS

CHAPTER IX

§209 [1r] Again, when Činggis Qahan spake unto Qubilai, favouring [him], he made a decree, saying, "Thou hast pressed for me

The necks
Of the mighty ones,
The buttocks
Of the strong men.

These, Qubilai, Ĵelme, Ĵebe, and Sübegetei, when [I] sent you, my 'four dogs,' making [you] to betake yourselves unto that which [I] had thought,<sup>1</sup> ye were Shattering the stones,

At the moment when [I] said, [1v] 'Arrive';
Smashing the cliffs,
At the moment when [I] said, 'Assault';
Breaking the bright stones,
Cutting asunder the deep waters.<sup>2</sup>

Sending Qubilai, Ĵelme, Ĵebe, and Sübe'etei, you, my 'four dogs,' unto the place which [I] had pointed out, if Bo'orču, Muqali, Boroyul, and Čila'un Ba'atur, these my 'four [2r] külü'üd,' were at my side, if it was a day of battle, if [I] made both Jürčedei and Quyildar to stand in front of me with their Uru'ud and Mangyud, I was at ease as to all my thoughts.<sup>3</sup> [2v] Wilt thou, Qubilai, not have charge of the affairs of the army—all [of them]? " Again he said, "Because of the stubbornness<sup>4</sup> of Bedü'ün, I have been displeased [with him] and have not given

[unto him] a thousand. Thou wilt be right for him.<sup>5</sup> Let him, commanding a thousand with thee, take counsel [with thee].” Again he said, “[Here]after [3r] We shall observe [how] Bedü’ün [doeth].”<sup>6</sup>

§210 [3v] Again, when Činggis Qahan spake unto Funan of the Geniges—he made a decree, saying, “For you, the chiefs having at their head Bo’orču and Muqali, and for [you,] the stewards Dodai, Doqolqu and others—this Funan, being a male wolf<sup>7</sup> in the black night and a black crow in the bright day,<sup>8</sup>

Tarried not, at the moment when we were journeying,
Journeyed not, [4r] at the moment
when we were tarrying,
Put not on another face
With bosu<sup>9</sup> people,
Put not on a separate face
With hating people—

perform [ye] not without leave from both Funan and Kōkō Čos. Perform [ye, only after] taking counsel with both Funan and Kōkō Čos”—[4v] he made a decree, saying, “The eldest of my sons is Joči. Let Funan be at the head of his Geniges and be a captain of ten thousand under Joči.” Funan, Kōkō Čos, Degei, and Old Man Üsün—these four—

Were not hiding what they had seen,
Were not concealing what they had heard.<sup>10</sup>

[5r] These are the four.

§211 [5v] Again, when Činggis Qahan spake unto Jelme, he made a decree, saying, “When Old Man Jarči’udai, carrying his bellows on his back—from [the moment when] Jelme was [yet] in the cradle—came, descending from Burqan Qaldun, he was giving swaddling clothes of sable at the moment when I was born at Deli’ün Hill of the Onan [River].<sup>11</sup> From the fact of becoming a companion, he<sup>12</sup> is become

A slave
Of [my] threshold,
A private slave [6r]
Of [my] door.<sup>13</sup>

The services of Jelme are many. He

Who was together born with [my] being born,
Who together grew with [my] growing.<sup>14</sup> had as origin [of brotherhood] the swaddling clothes of sable. [6v] Let the fortunate and happy Jelme, if he transgress [but] nine transgressions, not be subject to punishment.”

§212 [7r] Again, when Činggis Qahan spake unto Tolun, he made a decree, saying, “How [is it that ye,] father and son, are to command [each] a separate thousand? Because, [aforetime] together assembling the people, being one of the two wings of [thy] father, [thou] didst together draw<sup>15</sup> and didst together assemble the people, I have given [unto thee] the title of čerbi.<sup>16</sup> Now, with [all the people] which thou hast [7v] found and gathered of thyself, becoming [captain of thine] own thousand, shalt thou not take counsel with Turuqan?<sup>17</sup>”

§213 [8r] Again, when Činggis Qahan spake unto the cook Önggür, as he said, “The three Toyura’ud, the five Taryud, thou, Önggür, son of Mönggetü Kiyan, with the Čangši'ud and the Baya'ud, ye becoming one güre'en for me, thou, Önggür, Thou didst not go astray in the mist.

Thou didst not separate thyself in the revolt. [8v]

Thou wast,

Suffering the wet with [me],

Suffering the cold with [me].<sup>18</sup>

Now what favour wilt thou take?," when Önggür spake, as he said, "If [Činggis Qahan] suffer me to choose a favour, [it is this:] my Baya'ud brethren are scattered and dispersed in each of the divers tribes. If [Činggis Qahan] favour [me], I would collect my Baya'ud [9r] brethren," [Činggis Qahan] made a decree, saying, "Yea! So collecting thy Baya'ud brethren, command thou a thousand!" Again, when Činggis Qahan made a decree, he made a decree, saying, "Both Önggür and Boro'ul, when ye two cooks distribute food [on] the right and the left sides, [9v]

Not suffering [it] to be wanting unto [those] who have stood or have sat

[On] the right side,

Not suffering [it] to be wanting unto [those] who have taken their places in the row or have not

if ye twain so distribute, my gullet not choking, [my] mind will be at ease. Now [10r], both Önggür and Boro'ul, departing, go [ye] and distribute food unto many persons." Saying, "When [ye] sit [on] the seat, sit [ye], overseeing the food [on] the right and the left sides of the great wine table. May ye sit with Tolun and others, setting your faces toward the North," he pointed out the seat for [them].

§214 [11r] Again, when Činggis Qahan spake unto Boro'ul, he made a decree, saying, "My mother getting you four, Šigi Qutuqu, Boro'ul, Güčü, and Kōkōčü, from the encampments of [other] people, from the ground,

In pulling [you] by your shoulders,

Causing [you] to be equal [in stature] with a male,<sup>21</sup>

she would cause [you] to be companions for us her sons, she nourished [you]. As benefit for having nourished you, who knoweth how many benefits and services ye have returned unto my mother? Boro'ul, being a companion unto me, at the moment when [we] were destroying and slaying [12v] the Tatar people, by comparing them unto a linchpin,<sup>23</sup> when they were being killed, Qargil Šira of the Tatar becoming a robber, going out, moreover, being in a strait, hungering, coming in, entering into the tent, saying unto the mother, 'I am one that

In [12r] the swift warfare

Thou didst not suffer [me] to spend the night empty in a night of rain.<sup>22</sup>

seeketh good things,'<sup>24</sup> being told, [13r] 'If [thou] be one that seeketh good things, sit there,' at the moment when [he] was sitting at the extremity—at the back of the door—of the bench on the west side [of the tent], Tolui—which [was] five years old—entered [coming] from the outside, and, at the moment when, in running, he was going out and was departing, Qargil Šira, being arisen, [took and] pressed the child in his armpit, and when, going out, he went forward, at the moment when he was feeling and drawing [13v] his knife, Altani, the wife of Boroyul, was sitting on the east side in the tent of [my] mother. With [my] mother's crying out and saying, '[He] hath made an end of the child!', Altani, following [her], going out with [her], overtaking Qargil Šira, seizing his [14r] braids [of hair]<sup>25</sup> with one hand] and seizing with her other hand his hand which was drawing the knife, with [her] pulling [it from him], he lost his knife. At the moment when both Jetei and Jelme were slaughtering a hornless, black ox north of the tent for food, at the cry of Altani, [14v] both Jetei and Jelme, taking [each] an axe in hand, their fists being red [from blood], came, running, and by axe and by knife slew even there Qargil Šira of the Tatar. As Altani, Jetei, and Jelme—[all] three—disputed with one another the desert for having saved the life of the child, when both Jetei and Jelme spake, they said, [15r] 'If we had been absent, if, quickly running and arriving, we had not slain [him], what would Altani, a woman, have done? [He] would have done harm unto the life of the child. The desert is ours.' When Altani spake, she said, 'If ye had not heard my cry, how [15v] would ye be come? If, when I ran, overtook [him], seized his braids [of hair], and pulled his hand which had drawn the knife, the knife were not fallen, would he not have done harm unto the life of the child, whilst both Jetei and Jelme were arriving?' When she had made an end of speaking, [16r] [it was agreed that] the desert was [that] of Altani. The wife of Boroyul, becoming a second shaft for Boroyul, was a help unto the life of Tolui. Again, Boroyul, at the moment when [we] were fighting with the Kereyid [at] Qalqaljid Eled, as Ögödei had been shot

The benefit for the fact that my mother, in rearing [him], hath suffered, hath been a service unto the lives of my two sons. Boroyul being a companion unto me did not remain behind

§216 Again, when Činggis Qahan spake unto Old Man Üsün, he made a decree, saying, "Üsün, Gunan, Kökō Čos, and Degei—these four—not hiding and concealing, have been wont to declare what they have seen and [19v] what they have heard."<sup>28</sup> They have been wont to tell what they have perceived and what they have thought. [After] the principles of the Mongyol, [as to] the way of chief, there is a custom whereby one may become a beki. [Üsün] is the seed of the Ba'arin Elder Brother."<sup>29</sup> [As to] the way

<sup>27</sup> In the Altan tobči (nova), however, we read: basa ökin uruγ [12-tayan soyurqal öggüy-e kemebe. "Again, he said, '[We] shall grant favours unto Our daughter seed.'" Cf. Altan Tobči, Scripta Mongolica I, Vol. I, p. 145, ll. 11-12. By the words ökin uruγ "daughter seed" Činggis Qahan meant the female members of his family of which the first and the principal ones, of course, were his own daughters.

<sup>29</sup> In a letter dated 1 November 1954 the Reverend Antoine MOSTAERT remarked: "I understand that 'the Ba'arin elder brother' is Ba'aridai of §41, who was, as the of beki, from among and above Us, let [20r] Old Man Üsün become a beki. Having raised [him] up as a beki, [with one's] causing [him], wearing white raiment, to ride [upon] a white gelding,<sup>80</sup> causing [him] to sit upon a seat, and serving [him], and, again [with his] considering the year and the month,<sup>81</sup> let it so be."

§218 Again, when Činggis Qahan spake [21v] unto Narin To'oril, son of Čayan Qo'a, [the same] being told, "Thy father, Čayan Qo'a, being zealous, beginning to fight in behalf of me, at the moment when [we] were fighting at Dalan Baljud, was killed by Jamuya. Now let To'oril for his father's sake take the 'grant of orphans,'" when [22r] To'oril spake, as he said, "If [Činggis Qahan] favour [me]—my Negüs brethren are scattered and dispersed in every tribe—if [Činggis Qahan] favour [me], [I] would gather my Negüs brethren," when Činggis Qahan made a decree, he made a decree, saying, "If it be so, shalt [22v] thou not gather thy Negüs brethren and govern [them] unto the seed of the seed?"

Secr. Hist. says, the eponymous ancestor of the Ba'arin (Ba'arin-u ebüge). This Ba'aridai was son of Bodončar, founder of the family from which Činggis issued, but born of the wife whom Bodončar had carried off, whereas Činggis descended from Bodončar by Qabiči Ba'atur, son of the principal wife of Bodončar. Ba'aridai must have been born before Qabiči Ba'atur; hence the name of aga 'elder brother' by which he is designated. That is the way in which I understand the appellation Ba'arin aga."

§219 [23r] Again, when Činggis Qahan spake unto Sorqan Šira, he said, "At the time when I [was] little, when Taryutai Kirultuy of the Tayiči'ud, [because I] was envied by [his] brethren, seized [me], then ye, Sorqan Šira, with your sons Čila'un and Čimbai, saying, 'He is envied by his [Tayiči'ud] brethren,' "<sup>84</sup> causing your daughter, Qada'an, to care for [me] [23v], hid [me] and releasing [me], sent me [from thence].<sup>85</sup> Being mindful of that your service and goodness, I went, being mindful of [them]

In [my] dreams in the black night,
In [my] bosom in the bright day."<sup>86</sup>

Ye are come lately unto me from the Tayiči'ud. Now, if I favour you, what favour would [24r] ye love?" When Sorqan Šira, being with his sons Čila'un and Čimbai, spake, [he said,] "If [Činggis Qahan] favour [me], I would that I freely choose an encampment. I would that I freely choose [it], counting the country of the Merkid, [the region of] the Selengge [River], as an encampment. Again, [as to] other favours, let Činggis Qahan know [what they might be]." When Činggis Qahan spake, he made a decree, saying, "Counting [24v] the country of the Merkid, [the region of] the Selengge [River], as an encampment, choose [ye] even freely an encampment and be [ye], unto the seed of the seed, freemen, causing [your seed] to be quiverbearers and to drink the ötög. Let them not be subject to punishment unto nine transgressions." Again, when Činggis Qahan favoured both Čila'un and Čimbai, he made a decree, saying, "Being mindful of the words which were spoken aforetime of [25r] both Čila'un and Čimbai, how could I forget "<sup>87</sup> [them]? Ye, Čila'un and Čimbai, ye twain,

<sup>85</sup> See, however, §§84-87, where (§85) it is specifically stated that it was the sons of Sorqan Šira, Čimbai and Čila'un who, "not loving the word [23v] of their father . . . made their younger sister named Qada'an to care for [him], . . ."

<sup>87</sup> The word qandaru (? qandaru) is the nomen futuri in -yu of an unattested verb qanda- (? qanda-). Although glossed by the seemingly unintelligible words 滿立約 (man-li-ti) (? "that which stands full"), it would appear from the continuous translation (YCPS 9.271): 如何忘得 (Ju-ho wang-te) ("How could I forget?") that qanda- (? qanda-) somehow implies the meaning of "to forget."

If [ye] would speak your thoughts,
If [ye] would request your wants, tell [ye them] not unto a person [which is] between. By your own bodies<sup>88</sup> and by [your own] mouths

Tell [ye] unto me what [ye] yourselves shall have thought.
Request [ye] yourselves [of me] your [25v] wants."

Again [26r] he made a decree, saying, "Sorqan Šira, Badai, and Kišiliy, ye freemen, again, when ye are freemen,

Rushing at the many enemies,
If [we] get spoil,
Take [ye] as much as ye can take.
If [we] hunt wild beasts,
Take [ye] as many as ye can kill."

As to Sorqan Šira, he was a bondman of Tödege of the Tayiçi'ud. As to both Badai and Kišiliy, they were the keepers of horses of [Yeke] Čeren. Now, [with my] causing [you], [by] my support, to be quiverbearers and to drink the ötög, rejoice [ye] as freemen."

§220 [27r] Again, when Činggis Qahan spake unto Naya'a he made a decree, saying, "When Old Man Širgötü<sup>89</sup> drew nigh unto us with you, his sons Alay and Naya'a, holding Taryutai [27v] Kiriltuy, on the way arriving at Qutuqul Nu'u, then, when Naya'a spake, saying, 'How shall we go, forsaking and holding our proper qan?' not being able to forsake [him], releasing [him] and sending [him away], Old Man Širgötü, coming with his sons, Alay and Naya'a, then, when [28r] Naya'a Bilji'ur<sup>90</sup> spake, as he said, 'When laying hand upon our proper qan, Taryutai Kiriltuy, we drew nigh, yet not being able to forsake [him], releasing [him], sending [him away], we came to give [our] might<sup>91</sup> unto Činggis Qa'an. As we came, laying hand upon our qan, we said [unto ourselves], [28v] "We shall be said [to deserve the words]: 'People which have laid hand upon their proper qan, [here]after how shall they be trusted, these?' " [Therefore,] [we] were not able to forsake our qan, then, [when I heard these words,] saying [unto myself], '[As to] the reason for which he hath not been able to forsake his proper qan, [it is that] he hath been mindful of the great principle,' approving his words, [I] said, '[I] shall assign [him] unto one affair.'<sup>93</sup> Now, for Bo'orču, let him govern the ten thousand of the right hand. Giving unto Muqali the title gui ong, [I] have made [him] to govern the ten thousand [29r] of the left hand. Now let Naya'a govern the ten thousand of the middle."

§221 [29v] Again he said, "Let the twain, Jebe and Sübe'etei, command as captains of thousands as many [of those] of theirs as they have gotten and gathered themselves."

§222 Again, causing to assemble by the shepherd Degei the concealed people,<sup>94</sup> he caused [him] to govern a thousand.

§223 [30r] Again he said, "As [subject] people are wanting unto the carpenter Gücügür, levying<sup>95</sup> [them] from hence and from thence—from<sup>96</sup> the Jadaran, Mulqalqu hath been a 'companion' in an upright manner—both Gücügür and Mulqalqu, together commanding the thousand, take [ye] counsel with each other."

§224 [30v] Causing to be captains of thousands [those] who had set up the nation with [him] and who had suffered with [him], dividing [the people] into thousands, so as to form thousands, appointing [over them] captains of thousands, of hundreds, and of tens, dividing [the people] into ten thousands, [31r] appointing [over them] captains of ten thousands, to the captains of ten thousands and of thousands, unto those unto whom it seemed to be fit that they be given favour, giving favour, unto those for whom it was fit that he make [for them] decrees of favour, making [decrees of favour], when Činggis Qahan made a decree, he made a decree, saying, "Aforetime [I] was wont to have eighty nightguards and seventy guards [which were] dayguards. Now, in the might of Everlasting Heaven, [31v] [my] might and power being increased by Heaven and Earth, at the moment when I have made straight " the whole nation and have caused [it] to enter into mine only reins, now for me choose [ye] from the divers thousands dayguards [which are] guards and make [them] to enroll. When [ye] shall make [them] to enroll, when [ye] shall make nightguards, quiverbearers, and dayguards to enroll, make [ye them] to enroll, filling ten thousand." [32r] Again, when Činggis Qahan proclaimed unto the divers thousands a decree that one should choose and enroll the guards, he made a decree, saying, "When one shall enroll guards for Us, when the sons of the captains of ten thousands, of thousands, and of hundreds or the sons of ordinary persons shall enter [into Our service], let one enroll those who have ability and [are] good of appearance—who apparently are apt for serving in Our presence. When one shall enroll the sons of captains [32v] of thousands, let them come [each] with ten companions and bringing with them a younger brother. When one shall enroll the sons of captains of hundreds, let them come [each] with five companions and bringing with them a younger brother. When one shall enroll the sons of captains of tens or when one shall enroll the sons of ordinary persons, let them come [each] with three [33r] companions and also bringing with them a younger brother, and, from [their company of] origin, making ready<sup>48</sup> horses [to ride on]. When one shall strengthen [on this wise the number of] those whom one shall make to serve in [Our] presence for Us, let one give the ten companions unto the sons of captains of thousands, levying [them] from the thousands and the hundreds from which they originally come. If there be<sup>49</sup> a part and portion [of goods] given by their fathers, or whatever be the quantity of men and geldings which by [their own] persons [33v] they have gotten and have established [as their own], let one, apart from their personal part [of goods], levy [beasts to ride and men] according to the measure measured of Us, and let one, so levying [men] and making ready [beasts to ride], give [them unto them]. And let one, after the very same manner, apart [34r] from their personal part of goods, and even so levying, give five companions unto the sons of captains of hundreds and unto the sons of captains of tens as well as three companions unto the sons of ordinary persons." [Again,] he made a decree, saying, "The captains of thousands, of hundreds, and of tens, and the many [ordinary] persons having suffered [one] to bring this Our decree [unto them] or having heard [it], let the people which shall transgress [it] be subject to punishment. [As to those] people which shall have been made to enter [into] their turn [of service] for Us, if [among them] people which, avoiding [their turn of service], are [34v] not fit look upon their service in Our presence as [too] difficult, enrolling others, we shall punish those persons and shall send [them] unto a distant place out of eye[sight]." He said, "[35r] Let one not stay people which shall say that they would learn to serve inside in Our presence and [for this purpose] come unto Us."

§225 [35v] According to the fact that Činggis Qa'an had made a decree, [36r] choosing [them] from the thousands, according to the very same decree, choosing the sons of the captains of hundreds and of tens, bringing [them] forth—aforetime there were eighty nightguards<sup>50</sup>—one caused there to be eight hundred [nightguards]. He said, "[Over and] above the eight hundred let one fill [the band so that there be] a thousand." He made a decree, saying, "Let one not stay those who shall enroll themselves in the nightguards." [36v] He made a decree, saying, "Let Yeke Ne'ürin be captain of the nightguards and let him command a thousand." Aforetime he had chosen four hundred quiverbearers.<sup>51</sup> Choosing [them], he said, "Let Yesün Te'e, son of Jelme, be a captain of quiverbearers and let him take counsel with Bugidai, son of Tüge." He made a decree, saying, "When, with the dayguards, [37r] the quiverbearers enroll themselves with [others] within the divers companies, let Yesün Te'e enroll himself, being a captain of one company of quiverbearers. Let Bugidai enroll himself, being a captain of one company of quiverbearers. Let Horquday enroll himself, being a captain of one company of quiverbearers. Let Lablaqa enroll himself, being a captain of one company of quiverbearers. Let [these four], enrolling for to carry quivers [their] divers companies [37v] of dayguards and their quiverbearers, so be [their] captains. Let Yesün Te'e, filling [a band of] the quiverbearers [so that there be] a thousand, be a captain."

§226 [38r] [Over and] above the dayguards which aforetime had enrolled themselves with Ögele Čerbi,<sup>52</sup> filling [a band so that there were] a thousand, he said, "From the family of Bo'orču let [38v] Ögele Čerbi command [them]." He said, "One thousand dayguards, from the family of Muqali let Buqa command one thousand dayguards." He said, "From the family of Ilügei let Alčidai command one thousand dayguards." He said, "Let Dodai Čerbi command one thousand dayguards. Let Doqolqu [39r] Čerbi command one thousand dayguards." He made a decree, saying, "From the family of Jürčedei let Čanai command one thousand dayguards. From the family of Alči let Aqutai command one thousand dayguards. Let Arqai Qasar command one thousand dayguards, one thousand chosen ba'atud, and [39v] let them be dayguards on the many <sup>53</sup> days. On the day of battle let them stand in front and be ba'atud." There were eight thousand dayguards which came, being chosen from the thousands and thousands. There were two thousand with nightguards and quiverbearers. There were [in all] ten thousand guards. When Činggis Qahan made [40r] a decree, he made a decree, saying, "Let one strengthen the ten thousand guards [which remain] in the presence of Us and let them become the great middle [of the army]."

§227 [40v] Again, when Činggis Qahan, making a decree, appointed those who should be the elders of the four companies of the dayguards, saying, "Let Buqa, commanding one company [41r] of guards, dispose the guards and enter [into] service in the guard]. Let Alčidai, commanding one company of guards, dispose the guards and enter [into service in the guard]. Let Dodai Čerbi, commanding one company of guards, dispose the guards and enter [into service in the guard]. Let Doqolqu Čerbi, commanding one company of guards, dispose [41v] the guards and enter [into service in the guard]," he appointed the elders of the four companies.<sup>54</sup> When he proclaimed a decree whereby one should enter [into his] turn [of service], he made a decree, saying, "When one entereth [into his] turn [of service], let the chief of the company, mustering the guards which shall have served [their] turn [of service] with himself, entering [into his] turn [of service,] passing three nights, change [places] with [the company of relief]. [42r] If a man of the company neglect [his] turn [of service], let one instruct by three strokes of the rod that [man] of the company which shall have neglected [his] turn [of service]. If the same guard again, a second time, neglect [his] turn [of service], let one instruct [him] by seven strokes of the rod. If again the same man, without that [his] body be sick and without consultation [beforetime] with the chiefs of the company, again, [if] the same guard thrice neglect [his] turn [of service], having instructed [him] by [42v] thirty seven strokes of the rod—he looketh upon his service at [the side of] Us as [too] difficult—[We] shall send [him] out of sight unto a distant place."<sup>55</sup> He made a decree, saying, "Elders of the companies, cause [ye] this decree to be heard by the guards at every third turn [of service]. If they cause it not to be heard, [43r] let the elders of the companies be subject to punishment. When they shall have heard the decree, if they transgress [it], if, after the principle of the decree, they neglect [their] turn [of service], let the guards be subject to punishment." He said, "Elders of the companies, saying [unto yourselves], 'They have been excelled [by us] in captaincy,' rebuke [ye] not, without leave from me, my guards which have enrolled themselves [in my guard] equal [unto you]. [43v] If one disannul the ordinance, declare [ye it] unto me. If there be those for whom holdeth the rule that they are fit to be beheaded, We shall behead [them]. If there be those for whom holdeth the rule that they are fit to be beaten, making [them] to lie down, [we] shall beat [them]. Saying [unto yourselves], 'We excell [them] in captaincy,' if, laying hand [upon them], ye smite with the rod my guards equal [unto you], let one repay strokes of the rod as repayment of strokes of the rod and [44r] fists as repayment of fists."<sup>66</sup>

§228 [44v] Again, when Činggis Qahan made a decree, he made a decree, saying, "My guards are higher than the outward"<sup>67</sup> captains [45r] of thousands. The companions of my guards are higher than the outward captains of hundreds and of tens. If outward captains of thousands, making themselves equal unto my guards and equalling themselves unto [them], quarrel with [one of] my guard[s], we shall punish the persons which are captains of thousands."

§229 [45v] Again, when Činggis Qahan made a decree, when he proclaimed a decree unto the captains of the divers companies, he made a decree, saying, "Let the quiverbearers, the dayguards, [and the cooks], [46r] entering [into their] turn [of service], severally each in his [own] way, walking the walk of the day,"<sup>68</sup> yielding unto the nightguards at the moment of the sun's having fire,<sup>69</sup> going out, pass the night. Let the nightguards at night pass the night at [the side of] Us. Let the quiverbearers depart, rendering unto the nightguards quivers, and the cooks bowls and vessels. [On the morrow, in the morning] let the quiverbearers, the dayguards, and the cooks which shall have passed the night outside, until We eat [Our] broth, [46v] sitting at the kirü'e<sup>70</sup> and telling [it] unto the nightguards, when [We] finish eating [Our] broth, return, the quiverbearers unto the quivers, the dayguards unto their seats and the cooks unto their bowls and vessels. [47r] He said, "After that the sun hath set, seizing [whatsoever] person shall go athwart at the back side or at the front side of the ordo, the nightguards seizing [him], passing the night, on the morrow, let the nightguards ask his words. When the company shall change [places] with [the company of relief], let the nightguards [of the company of relief] remit their tablets and come in. Let the nightguards which shall change [places with the relief] and [47v] shall go out also remit [them], go out, and depart." He said, "The nightguards lying round about the ordo at night, [ye] nightguards which shall have stood, stopping the door,"<sup>71</sup> cleaving the people which shall enter at night in such a way that their heads are sundered and [cleaving them] so that their shoulders fall, cast [them] away. Let not any one walk at the upper side of the nightguards."<sup>75</sup> [48v] Let one not walk between the nightguards. Let one not ask the number of nightguards. Let the nightguards seize the people which shall walk at the upper side of the nightguards. Let the nightguards seize the people which shall walk between. ## THE SECRET HISTORY OF THE MONGOLS

CHAPTER X

§230 [1r] When Činggis Qahan spake, he made a decree, saying,

“ Mine elder nightguards

Which, [in] the cloudy night,

Lying round about

My tent with a hole at the top,

Making [me] to sleep [in] peace and quiet,

Have [thus] made [me] to attain unto this throne.<sup>1</sup> [1v]

My happy nightguards

Which, [in] the starry night,

Lying round about

My palace tent

Have not made [me] to be affrighted within the coverings

Have [thus] made [me] to attain unto the high throne.

My sincere-hearted nightguards

Which, in the snowstorm which is moving,

In the cold which is making [one] to shiver,

In the rain which is pouring [down],

Standing, not taking [their] rest,

Round about my tent with [a frame of] lattice,

Have caused [my] heart to be at peace

Have [thus] made [me] to attain unto the throne of joy.

My trusty nightguards

Which, in the midst of enemies which are making trouble,

Round about [2r] my tent with a band of felt<sup>2</sup>

Have, not winking an eye,

Stood, staying [their assault].

<sup>2</sup> “In effect, the word irge designates the broad band of felt which protects on the outside the bottom of the tent by encompassing it.” Cf. Antoine MOSTAERT, op. cit., p. [137].

CHAPTER X

My vigilant nightguards

Which, at the moment when the quivers of birch-bark [of the enemy]

Hardly moved,<sup>3</sup>

Stood without delay!

My nightguards of swift gait,

Which, at the moment when the quivers of willow-wood [of the enemy]

Hardly moved,

Stood not too late! [2v]

My happy nightguards,

Call [ye] the seventy dayguards which are entered with Ögöle Čerbi the ‘great dayguards.’ Call [ye] the ba’atud of Arqai the ‘elder ba’atud.’ Call [ye] the quiverbearers such as Yesün Te’e and Bugidai the ‘great quiverbearers.’”

§231 [3v] He said, “Of my ten thousand guards [which are] private servants [which remain] in the presence [of] my person, which are come, being chosen as private servants from the ninety five thousands, [ye, my] sons which long [here]after shall have sat on my throne, unto the seed of my seed, [of] these guards, being mindful [even] as of a remembrance bequeathed [by me] and, not causing [them] to murmur, excellently take [ye] care of [them]. Will these ten thousand guards not be called [4r] my gods which bring happiness?”<sup>4</sup>

§232 Again, when Činggis Qahan spake, he said, “Let the nightguards look to [4v] the maids [which are] stewards of the ordo, the ‘sons of the tent,’<sup>5</sup> the keepers of camels, and the keepers of oxen and let them take care of the tent-carts of the ordo. Let the nightguards collect the spears at the foot of<sup>6</sup> the standards and drums. Let the nightguards also collect the bowls and vessels.<sup>7</sup> Let the nightguards oversee Our drink and food. And let the nightguards oversee and cook the thick flesh<sup>8</sup> [5r] and food. If drink and food be wanting, [We] shall seek [them] from the nightguards which shall have been made to oversee [them].” [5v] He said, “When the quiverbearers distribute drink and food, let them not distribute [them] without leave from the nightguards which shall have been made to oversee [them]. When they distribute food, let them first distribute [it], beginning from the nightguards.” He said, “Let the nightguards order the going in and the coming out at the palace tent. At the door let the doorkeepers of the nightguards stand [in] the tent at hand. Let two from [among] the nightguards enter and hold in hand<sup>9</sup> the great wine table.” He said, “Let the keepers of the encampment from [among] the nightguards go and pitch the palace tent.” He said, “At the moment when We are falconing [6r] or hunting, let the nightguards go, together falconing and hunting with Us. Let them, measuring their half, place [it] at the carts.”<sup>10</sup>

§233 [6v] Again, when Činggis Qahan spake, he said, “If the person of Us do not go [to] war, let the nightguards not go to war apart from Us.” He made a decree, saying, “Having let themselves be told thus [by Us], let the stewards which command soldiers, which, transgressing the decree, [7r] being jealous of the nightguards, make [them] to go [to] war, be subject to punishment.” He said, “Ye say, ‘How is it that the soldiers of the nightguard are not made to go [to war]?’ The nightguards watch over my ‘golden life.’ At the moment when [I] go falconing and hunting, they labour with [me]. Being made to oversee the ordo, [7v] at the moment when it journeyeth or at the moment when [it is] at rest, they take care of the carts. Is it easy to pass the night watching over my person? Is it easy to take care of the tent-carts at the moment when the ‘great a’uruy’ journeyeth or at the moment when it sitteth? Saying [unto Ourselves], ‘[The nightguards] so have double and quite distinct tasks,’ such [8r] is [the reason for which We] say, ‘Let them, apart from Us and separately, not go to war.’”

§234 Again, when he made a decree, he said, “Let [some] from [among] [8v] the nightguards together hear judgments, judgments with Šigi Qutuqu.” He said, “Let [some] from [among] the nightguards take care of the quivers, bows, breast-plates, and weapons and distribute them [unto the others]. Let them, collecting [some] from [among] the geldings, go, lading the nets [for taking prey].” He said, “Let [some] from [among] the nightguards, with the stewards, distribute the satin.” He said, “When the quiverbearers and [9r] the dayguards proclaim the encampment, let the quiverbearers such as Yesün Te’e and Bukidai and the dayguards such as Alčidai, Ögele, and Aqutai go [on] the right side of the ordo.” He said, “Let the dayguards such as Buqa, Dodai Čerbi, Doqolqu Čerbi, and Čanai go [on] the left side of the ordo.” He said, “Let the ba’atud of Arqai go in front [9v] of the ordo.” He said, “Let the nightguards, having taken care of the ordo tent-carts, go in the neighbourhood of the ordo, [on] the left side.” He appointed [him], saying, “Let [10r] Dodai Čerbi constantly watch over all the dayguards which are guards, round about the ordo, the ‘sons of the tent’<sup>11</sup> of the ordo, the keepers of horses, the shepherds, the keepers of camels, and the keepers of oxen, and the ordo.” He made a decree, saying, “Let Dodai Čerbi, being constantly [there], behind the ordo, go,

Burning dried dung [for fuel].”

§235 [10v] He made Qubilai Noyan to go a warfare unto the Qarlu’ud. Arslan Qan of the Qarlu’ud, submitting himself, came unto Qubilai. Qubilai Noyan having taken [11r] Arslan Qan, coming, suffered [him] to present himself unto Činggis Qahan. Saying, “He did not fight,” Činggis Qahan favoured Arslan and made a decree, saying, “I shall give [unto him] a daughter.”

§237 Jebe, pursuing Güčülüg Qan of the Naiman, overtaking [him] at the Sariy Qun,<sup>13</sup> destroyed Güčülüg and came [back].

§238 [12r] The idu'ud<sup>14</sup> of the Ui'ud sent ambassadors unto Činggis Qahan. When he came, petitioning by the two ambassadors, Adkiray and Darbai, he came, petitioning, saying,

“[Even] as having seen Mother Sun,<sup>15</sup>
When the clouds become clear;
[Even] as having found the water of the river,
When the ice becometh clear,

I greatly rejoiced, when I heard [12v] the name and the fame of Činggis Qa'an. If [thou], Činggis Qahan, favour [me], if I get [were it but one]

From the rings of [thy] golden girdle;
[were it but one]

From the shreds of [thy] crimson garment,<sup>16</sup>

I will become thy fifth son and give [my] might [unto thee].” At that word, [13r] when Činggis Qahan, favouring [him], sent, speaking in answer, when he sent, saying, “I shall also give [unto him] my daughter. Let him become my fifth son. Let the idu'ud come, having taken gold, silver, [little] pearls, [big] pearls, brocades, damasks, and silks,” the idu'ud rejoiced, saying, “[I] have been favoured,” and [13v] having taken gold, silver, [little] pearls, [big] pearls, silks, brocades, damasks, and satins, the idu'ud came and presented himself unto Činggis Qahan. Činggis Qahan favoured the idu'ud and gave [unto him] Al Altun.

§239 [14r] In the year of the hare [1207] [Činggis Qahan] made Joči to set forth with the soldiers of the right hand unto the People of the Forest. Buqa went, guiding [him]. Quduqa Beki of the Oyirad, before the ten thousand Oyirad, submitting himself, came in [unto Joči]. Coming, [14v] leading Joči, guiding [him] unto his ten thousand Oyirad, he made [them] to submit themselves at Šiyšid. Joči, having brought into subjection the Oyirad, Buriyad, Baryun, Ursud, Qabqanas, Qangqas, and Tubas, when he arrived at the ten thousand Kirgisud, the chiefs of the Kirgisud, Yedi Inal, Al Di'er, and [15r] Öre Beg Digin, chiefs of the Kirgisud, coming in to submit themselves, coming, having taken white gerfalcons, white geldings,<sup>17</sup> and black sables, presented themselves unto Joči. From the Šibir,<sup>18</sup> Kesdiyim,<sup>19</sup> Bayid, Tuqas, Tenleg,<sup>20</sup> Tö'eles,<sup>21</sup> Tas, and Bajigid<sup>22</sup> hither, Joči, subjugating the People of the Forest, coming, having taken the captains of the ten thousands and of the thousands [15v] of the Kirgisud and the chiefs of the People of the Forest, suffered [them] to present themselves unto Činggis Qahan with the white gerfalcons, with the white geldings, and with the black sables. Going to meet Quduqa Beki of the Oyirad, saying, “He is come, aforetime submitting himself and [16r] leading [hither] his ten thousand Oyirad,” he favoured [him] and gave Čečeyigen unto his son, unto Inalči. He gave Holuiqan, daughter of Joči, unto Törölči, elder brother of Inalči. He gave Alaqa Beki unto the Önggüd. When Činggis Qahan, favouring Joči, spake, he made a decree, saying, “Eldest of my sons, being [16v] but issued from in the tent,<sup>23</sup> thou [hast been] one of whom the way [is] good.<sup>24</sup> Not wounding or not making to suffer men or geldings in the lands in which [thou] art gone, thou art come, having brought into subjection the fortunate<sup>25</sup> People of the Forest. I will give the people unto thee."

§240 [17v] Again he made Boro'ul Noyan to go a warfare unto the Qori Tumad people. As Daiduqul Soqor, chief of the Tumad people had died, his wife Botoqui Taryun [18r] was governing the Tumad people. When Boro'ul Noyan arrived, three men departing from the great army to go in front, at eventide, not perceiving, as they were going along a path in the difficult forest, being robbed in the rearward by their watchmen, stopping the path, [the watchmen] seized and killed Boro'ul Noyan. Knowing that the Tumad [18v] had killed Boro'ul, as Činggis Qahan, being exceeding wroth, was ready to set forth himself, both Bo'orču and Muqali did advise so that Činggis Qa'an halted. Moreover, when he appointed Dörbei Doyšin<sup>26</sup> of the Dörbed, he made a decree, saying, "Setting the army in order with severity, praying Everlasting Heaven, [19r] assay to bring the Tumad people into subjection." When Dörbei set the army in order, first making [one] to spread abroad [something] empty<sup>27</sup> at the ways, paths, and passes along which the army would [be expected to] go and over which the watchmen would [be expected to] keep watch along the ways on which the hula'an buqa<sup>28</sup> went—when he made an ordinance unto the soldiers, as for all the men of the army, if [their] hearts were to fail [them], in [respect of each] man, making [him] to carry ten rods on the back [19] to beat [him, if he refused to go forward], making [one] to prepare axes, bills, saws, chisels, and weapons of war for the men—along the way on which the hula'an buqa went, making [one], felling [them], to hew and to saw the trees which stood at the way, making a way, when he went out upon the mountain, [as one might say,] from on the hole at the top of the tents<sup>29</sup> of the Tumad [20r] people, at the moment when, unawares, they were sitting, feasting, he spoiled [them].

§241 [20v] Beforetime both Qorči Noyan and Quduqa Beki, being seized by the Tumad, were there at [the side of] Botoqui Taryun. As for the manner in which Qorči [21r] had been seized, at the moment when [Činggis Qahan] had made a decree, saying, "Let him take thirty women which are beautiful maidens of the Tumad people,"<sup>30</sup> as he was going, saying, "[I] shall take the maidens of the Tumad," the peoples which formerly had submitted themselves, moreover, made a rebellion and seized Qorči Noyan.<sup>31</sup> When Činggis Qahan knew that Qorči [21b] had been seized by the Tumad, when, saying, "Quduqa knoweth the ways of the People of the Forest," he sent [him], Quduqa Beki also was seized.<sup>32</sup> When he had made an end of bringing the Tumad people into subjection, because of the bones<sup>33</sup> of Boro'ul, he gave [unto his sons] a hundred Tumad. Qorči took thirty maidens. [22r] He gave Botoqui Taryun unto Quduqa Beki.

geri. Those seven Qongqotan made a league with one another and smote Qasar. When Qasar kneeled to Činggis Qa'an, saying, "[I] have been smitten by the seven Qongqotan which made a league with one another," whilst Činggis Qahan was wroth in [respect of] other [things], as he spake, [27v] when Činggis Qahan, in his wrath, spake unto Qasar, being told, "Thou hast been [doing nothing other] than [saying] that [thou] wouldst not be overcome by [any] living thing. How hast thou been overcome?"<sup>41</sup> Qasar, having shed tears, arose and departed. Qasar, being vexed, came not [unto Činggis Qahan] three days. Then when Teb Tenggeri spake unto Činggis Qa'an, being told, "The decree [28r] of Everlasting Heaven, heavenly foretokens concerning the Qan do speak. Once they say, 'Let Temüjin hold the nation.' Once they say, '[Let] Qasar [hold the nation].' If [Činggis Qahan] surprise not Qasar, there is no knowledge [as to what may come to pass]," Činggis Qahan, setting forth the [self]same night, when he went for to seize Qasar, both Güčü and Kōkōčü declared [it] unto the mother, saying, "He is gone [28v] for to seize Qasar." The mother, having [thus] known [it], it having been [yet] night, straightway harnessing a white camel, departed in a black cart, travelling all the night. As, with the rising of the sun, she arrived, at the moment when Činggis Qahan, binding the sleeves of Qasar, taking his hat and girdle,<sup>42</sup> was questioning [29r] his words, being come unto by the mother, Činggis Qahan was terrified and was afraid of the mother. The mother, being furious, arriving, being lighted from the cart, the mother herself having undone and loosed the sleeves of Qasar which had been bound [by Činggis Qahan], giving unto Qasar his hat and girdle, the mother being wroth, not being able [29v] to subdue her fury, sitting with legs crossed, bringing forth her two breasts, making [them] to spill over upon [her] two knees, when she spake, she said, "Have [ye] seen [them]? The breasts which ye have sucked are these. These qadalun da'un,<sup>43</sup> they have bitten their afterbirth<sup>44</sup> and have cut their navel.<sup>45</sup> What hath Qasar done? Now, saying, '[I] have destroyed the people [which are] enemies,' ye are not able to see Qasar." When, after letting the mother appease herself, [31r] Činggis Qahan spake, saying, "Suffering the fact that mother was wroth, and being afraid, [I] have been afraid. And being ashamed, I have been ashamed," and, saying, "We shall withdraw," he withdrew. Not letting [it] be known by the mother, stealthily taking the people of Qasar, he gave unto Qasar [only] a thousand four hundred people. Such [was] the manner in which the mother, [thus] knowing [it], [31v] in that thought went straightway [unto old age].<sup>50</sup> Jebke of the Jalayir then, going out in fright, fled away into Baryujin.<sup>51</sup> of Činggis Qa'an many went so far as to assemble themselves in [the service of] Teb Tenggeri. At [their] so assembling, the peoples subject to Temüge Odčigin [also] went unto Teb Tenggeri. Odčigin Noyan sent his messenger named Soqor [33v] for to request his people which was gone. When Te[b] Tenggeri spake unto the messenger Soqor, saying, "Odčigin and ye, [ye] twain, are [ones] having a benefit,"<sup>53</sup> smiting his messenger Soqor, made [him] to return on foot, making [him] to carry his saddle on [his] back. Odčigin, [forasmuch as] he had suffered the fact that his messenger Soqor, [after Teb Tenggeri] had smitten [him], was come [back] [34r] on foot, on the morrow when Odčigin himself, going unto Teb Tenggeri, spake, being told, "When I sent my messenger Soqor, smiting [him, ye] did send [him back] on foot. Now I am come for to request my people," the seven Qongqotan, compassing Odčigin from hence and from thence, saying, "Thy sending thy [34v] messenger Soqor is right," when he was being [so] done unto, [apart] from seizing [him] and [apart] from smiting [him], being afraid, when Odčigin Noyan spake, he said, "My sending the messenger [was] wrong." When the seven Qongyotan spake, saying, "If [it be] wrong, kneel, repenting," they made [him] to [35r] kneel behind Teb Tenggeri. And his people being not yet given [unto him], when Odčigin, on the morrow early, entering at the <sup>53</sup> The words Odčigin ta jirin elčiten bolju'ui, as they stand, mean "Odčigin and ye, [ye] twain, are [ones] having messengers." Such a statement, however, is not in consonance with the context of the rest of the passage.

In a letter dated 2 December 1954 the Reverend Antoine MOSTAERT proposed the following solution:

"Elčiten must be a textual error. The Altan tobči (nova) has the reading ačitan instead of elčiten. Cf. Altan Tobči, A Brief History of the Mongols, Vol. II, p. 40, ll. 6-7. Ačitan means 'having a benefit (= conferring a benefit)'. There is a great chance that ačitan is the original reading. Then it must be understood that Teb Tenggeri scoffs at Odčigin and at Soqor, just as he will the next day at Odčigin alone, when he will say in irony to the latter: Soqor elčiten ilegü činu jöb bui 'Thou hast been right to send thy messenger Soqor.' He confiscates the horse ridden by Soqor and, feigning to consider it as a gift or a present which Soqor had come to present to him, he said: Odčigin ta jirin ačitan bolju'ui. 'Odčigin and ye, both of you, ye are benefactors' (= Odčigin and thou, I thank you for the gift).

"Ačitu kümün is still what is said today for 'benefactor'."

"I incline very much toward this solution, not only because it is the reading which the Altan tobči (nova) presents, but also because an error elčiten for ačitan is rather easily explained. Ačitan and elčiten resemble each other graphically."

moment when Činggis Qa'an was not yet risen up, at the moment when he was yet in bed, having wailed, kneeled and spake, and having said, "The people of the nine tongues having assembled themselves in [the service of] Teb Tenggeri, I did send a messenger named Soqor [35v] for to request from Teb Tenggeri my people subject to me. Suffering the fact that they had smitten my messenger Soqor, had made [him] to carry the saddle on [his] back, and had sent [him back] on foot, when I myself am gone for to request [my people], by the seven Qongqotan compassing [me] from hence and from thence and making [me] to repent, I was made to kneel behind Teb Tenggeri," [36r] he wailed. At the moment when Činggis Qa'an had not yet uttered [his voice], Börte Üjin, rising up and sitting in the bed, covering her breast with the edge of the covering, see that Odčikin was wailing, having shed tears, when she spake, having said, "[They are] Qongqotan which have done what, those?"<sup>54</sup> Lately they made league with one another and [36v] smote Qasar. Now, again, why make they this Odčigin to kneel behind them? What manner of behaviour is it? They thus secretly harm even these thy younger brethren [which are] like [unto] cypresses and pines. And verily, afterward, by whom will those let govern?

When thy body like [unto] an old tree

Thy peoples like [unto] entangled hemp<sup>55</sup>

When thy body like [unto] the base of a pillar

Thy peoples like [unto] a flock of birds<sup>56</sup> by whom will those let govern? Peoples which thus secretly harm thy younger brethren like [unto] cypresses and pines, [37v] how will [those] suffer that my three [or] four little 'bad [ones]'<sup>57</sup> govern whilst they grow up? Those are Qongqotan which have done what, those?<sup>58</sup> Letting it so be done unto thy younger brethren by those, how art thou seeing [that]?," Börte Üjin shed tears. At this word of Börte Üjin, when Činggis Qahan spake unto Odčigin, he said, "Teb Tenggeri cometh now. [38r] Howsoever thou may perform, so well as thou art able, decide thou [how thou shouldst perform]." At that, Odčigin being risen up, having wiped his tears, going out, stood [at hand], with three strong men in readiness. While it was [yet but] a moment, Father Münglig, coming with his seven sons, the seven each entering, with Teb Tenggeri sitting on the [38v] right side of the wine table, Odčigin seizing the collar of Teb Tenggeri, saying, "Thou wast making me to repent yesterday. Let us prove ourselves [at wrestling]," holding his collar, drew him toward the door. Teb Tenggeri, in the face of Odčikin, seizing the collar, wrestled with [him]. The hat [39r] of Teb Tenggeri, at the moment when he wrestled with [him], fell at the head of the firepan. Father Münglig, taking his hat, scenting<sup>59</sup> [it], placed it in his bosom. When Činggis Qahan spake, he said, "Going out, dispute [ye] with each other the might of the strongman." When Odčigin, pulling Teb Tenggeri, went out, the three strongmen which beforetime had been ready between<sup>60</sup> [39v] the threshold of the door having, in the face of [him], seized Teb Tenggeri, pulling [him], going out, breaking his back asunder, casting [him] unto the extremity [of the row] of carts of the left side, when, Odčigin entering, spake, as he said, "Teb Tenggeri was making me to repent. As I said, 'Let us prove ourselves [at wrestling],' not being willing, [40r] making a device, he lieth down. He was a companion which had a measure,"<sup>61</sup> Father Münglig understanding, having shed tears, when he spake, with [his] saying, "I have been a companion

Činggis Qahan seeing that, having broken [his] backbone, [41r] one had cast Teb Tenggeri unto the extremity [of the row] of carts, making [one] to bring a gray tent from behind, making one to place [it] over Teb Tenggeri, saying, "Harness the harnessings. We shall journey," he journeyed from thence.

§246 [42v] When, having covered the hole at the top of the tent in which one had placed Teb and [43r] having stopped [its] door, one had caused people to watch over [it], the third night, at [the moment when the brightness of] day [was] yellow,<sup>62</sup> he opened the hole at the top of the tent and came out together with [his] body. When one examined, it was established that verily [it was] Teb [at] its<sup>63</sup> [place] there.<sup>64</sup> When Činggis Qahan spake, he said, "Because Teb Tenggeri had laid hand upon my younger brethren and because [to sow discord among them] he had uttered among my younger brethren a slander without [43v] fundament, he was no more loved by Heaven, and his life, together with his body, was carried away." When Činggis Qahan then reviled Father Münglig, saying, "Not staying the nature of your sons, as [ye and your sons] are begun to think to equal [me], [44r] ye have attained unto the head of Teb Tenggeri.<sup>65</sup> If [I] had perceived such a nature of you, ye would have been caused to be ones having the manner [of punishment] of Jamuḡa, Altan, Qučar, and others," [so] reviling Father Münglig, making an end of reviling [him], furthermore, saying, "If one undo at eventide that which one hath said in the morning and [44v] if one undo in the morning that which one hath said at eventide, certainly one may be talked of to his shame. Aforetime [my] word was pledged. Yea! That [sufficeth]!", he favoured [him] and, furthermore, [his] anger was abated. He said, "If [ye] had stayed your nature [which is] beyond [measure], who in the seed of Father Münglig would have equalled [me]?" ## THE SECRET HISTORY OF THE MONGOLS

CHAPTER XI

§247 [1r] After that, Činggis Qahan in the year of the sheep [1211] set forth against the Kitad people. Taking Wujiu,<sup>1</sup> passing by Hünegen Daba'an,<sup>2</sup> taking Söndiiwu,<sup>3</sup> he sent the twain, Ĵebe and Güyigüneg Ba'atur, as vanguards. [1v] Arriving [at] Čabčiyal,<sup>4</sup> the Čabčiyal pass being defended, then when Ĵebe spake, saying, "When, enticing them and making [them] to remove, I shall make [them] to come, then I shall try [them]," he returned. It being returned [by him], the soldiers of the Kitad, saying, "Let us pursue [him]," draw nigh in pursuit till the valleys and the mountains become full [of them]. Arriving at the spur of Söndiiwu [2r] Ĵebe turned about backward, rushed upon [them], and overcame the enemies which were drawing nigh in succession. Činggis Qahan—[his] middle army following hard after [Ĵebe]—making the Kitad to remove, crushing the bold and courageous soldiers of the Jüyin of the Qara Kidad and of the Jürčed, slaying [them] until Čabčiyal, till they stood like rotten trees,<sup>5</sup> Ĵebe, taking [2v] the gate of Čabčiyal, wresting the passes, passing by [them], Činggis Qahan pitched [at] Šira Degtür.<sup>6</sup> Assaulting Jungdu<sup>7</sup> and, sending troops unto divers towns and [unto] cities, he made [them] to assault. He sent Ĵebe, making [him] to assault the city of Dungčang.<sup>8</sup> Ĵebe, arriving at the city of Dungčang, [3r] assaulting [it], [but,] not being able to take [it], returning, arriving at a place [at a distance] of six days [of marching], causing [the enemy] to be unaware, moreover, turning about, [his soldiers] having [each] a hand led horse, at night marching all night, arriving, at the moment when [the enemy] was unaware, he took the city of Dungčang.

§248 [4r] Jebe, taking the city of Dungčang, returning, coming [back], joined himself unto Činggis Qahan. When Jungdu was attacked, when Ongging Čingsang,<sup>9</sup> the great chief of the Altan Qan, recommended unto the Altan Qan, when he recommended, saying, "[It is] the destiny and the time of Heaven and Earth."<sup>10</sup> Is the time when one shall exchange the great throne arrived? The Mongyol [4v] coming exceeding mightily, overcoming our bold and courageous weighty soldiers of the Jüyin of the Qara Kitad and of the Jürčed, have slain till they have destroyed [them]. And they have wrested and taken the trusty Čabčiyal. Now, if we, again setting [our] troops in order, send [them] forth and if again they be overcome by the Mongyol, they will certainly disperse themselves [5r] unto their divers cities, those. Moreover, if they suffer themselves to be gathered by us, not being willing, becoming enemies against us, they will not be companions, those. If the Altan Qan favour [us], we shall, in the present time, submitting ourselves, take counsel<sup>11</sup> with the qan of the Mongyol. If, entering into counsel, the Mongyol withdraw themselves, [5v] after that [we] have made [them] to withdraw themselves, again we shall then counsel other thoughts. And, it is said, 'The men and the geldings of the Mongyol, finding the country not fit [for themselves], are consumed by pestilence.' Let us give a maiden unto their qan. Let us heavily send out and give unto the men of [their] army gold, silver, satins, and goods. How may it be known whether they will [6r] not enter into this our counsel?" The Altan Qan, approving these words of Ongging Čingsang, saying, "Let it, then, be thus," submitting himself, sending out to Činggis Qa'an a daughter named Gungju,<sup>12</sup> sending out from Jungdu for the men of the army gold, silver, satin, goods, and possessions, [6v] letting be decided by the might [of each of them how much] and as much as [their beasts] could carry, he came, sending Ongging Čingsang unto Činggis Qahan. Being come unto [by them] to submit themselves, Činggis Qahan, entering into their counsel, made the soldiers which, assaulting, were descended unto the divers towns to return and he withdrew. Ongging Čingsang, accompanying Činggis Qa'an until [7r] the spurs named Mojiu<sup>13</sup> and Wujiu, returned. Our soldiers lading [their beasts with] satins and goods as many as they could carry, tied their burdens with silks and went their way.

§249 [8r] By that fact of having set forth,<sup>14</sup> he departed unto the Qašin people. As, betaking himself unto [them], he arrived, Burqan [Qan] of the Qašin people, saying, "Submitting myself, becoming thy right hand, [I] shall give [my] might<sup>15</sup> [unto thee]," brought forth and gave unto Činggis Qa'an his daughter named Čaqa. Again, when Burqan Qan spake, he petitioned, saying, [8v] "Hearing the name and the fame of Činggis Qa'an, we have been afraid. Now, thy majestic person arriving, being come unto [by thee], we have been afraid of [thy] majesty. Being afraid, we Tang'ud people, have said, 'Becoming thy right hand, [we] shall give [our] might [unto thee].' When [we] give [our] might,

Teaching birds<sup>19</sup> which one may cast [aloft], assembling [them], [we] shall cause [one] to send the best of them [unto him].” Speaking, keeping to his word, levying camels from his Tang’ud people, bringing [so many of them] that one was not able to drive [any more of them], he gave [them unto Činggis Qa’an].

§250 [10v] Činggis Qahan, at that fact of having set forth,<sup>20</sup> making the Altan Qa’an of the Kitad people to submit himself, took many satins; making Burqan of the Qašin people to submit himself, he took many camels; Činggis Qahan, at that fact of having set forth, in the year of the sheep [1211], making [11r] the Altan Qan of the Kitad people, named Aqutai, to submit himself and making Iluqu Burqan of the Tang’ud people to submit himself, returning, pitched [on] the Sa’ari Steppe.

§251 [11v] Again, after that, his many ambassadors having Jubqan at their head, [ambassadors] which he had sent to make peace with Jau Gon,<sup>21</sup> being hindered by the Altan Qa’an, [named] Aqutai, of the Kitad people, Činggis Qahan in the year of the dog [1214] again set forth against the Kitad people. When he set forth, saying, “After having submitted themselves, how [12r] may they hinder the ambassadors which [I] have sent unto Jau Gon?” Činggis Qahan, betaking himself [unto] the Tunggon<sup>22</sup> Pass, made Jebe [to betake himself] by [the way of] Čabčiyal. When [Činggis Qahan] arrived at the Tunggon Pass, the soldiers of the Kitad, saying, “[Let us defend our] soil,” came to stay [his] passage. Činggis Qahan, joining battle with Ile, Qada, Höbögetür—[all] three—, made [13r] Ile and Qada to remove.<sup>24</sup> Both Tolui and Čügü Gürigen, rushing upon [them] from athwart, making the Hula’an Degelen to withdraw themselves, arriving, making Ile and Qada to remove, overcoming [them], slew the Kitad till they stood [as] rotten trees.<sup>25</sup> Altan Qan, knowing that his Kitad troops had suffered [their] slaying and making an end of [them], [13v] going out from Jungdu, fleeing, entered the city of Namging.<sup>26</sup> When their soldiers which remained grew lean and died, among themselves they together ate the flesh of men. Saying, “Both Tolui and Čügü Gürigen have done well,” Činggis Qahan exceedingly favoured both Tolui and Čügü Gürigen.

§252 [14v] Činggis Qahan being come down Qosiwu,<sup>27</sup> pitched [on] the Šira Ke’er<sup>28</sup> of Jungdu. Jebe, breaking down the gate of Čabčiyal, making the soldiers which were holding Čabčiyal to remove, came and joined himself unto Činggis Qahan. Činggis Qahan made [one] to count the gold, silver, goods, satins, and goods and things of Jungdu, he sent the cook Önggür, Arqai Qasar, and Šigi Qutuqu—[all] three. Saying that these three are drawing nigh, Qada, going to meet [them] face to face, having taken in hand satins having gold and having patterns, [15v] going out from within Jungdu, came face to face. When Šigi Qutuqu spake unto Qada, [16r] saying, "Beforetime the goods of this Jungdu and the [self]same Jungdu were [the possessions] of the Altan Qan. Now Jungdu is [the possession] of Činggis Qa'an. The goods and satins of Činggis Qa'an, behind [his] back, how, stealing and bringing [them], givest thou [them]? I shall not take [them]," Šigi Qutuqu took [them] not. Both the cook Önggür and Arqai took [them]. These three counted the goods and the things of Jungdu and came [back]. Then Činggis Qahan asked of Önggür, Arqai, and Qutuqu—[all] three—saying, "What hath Qada given?" When Šigi Qutuqu spake, he said, "He hath brought and given [16v] satins having gold and having patterns. When I spake, saying, 'Beforetime this Jungdu was [the possession] of the Altan Qan. Now it is become [the possession] of Činggis Qa'an. Thou, Qada, stealing the goods of Činggis Qa'an behind [his] back, how givest thou [them]?' I did not take [them]. Both Önggür and Arqai took the [goods] which [17r] he gave [unto them]." Činggis Qahan then exceedingly rebuked both Önggür and Arqai. He sent with Qasar from the chiefs, Jürčedei, Alči, and Tolun Čerbi—[all] three. Qasar, bringing into subjection the city of Buiging, making Wuqanu of the Jürčed to submit himself, having brought into subjection the cities which were on the way, Qasar, coming up along the Ta'ur River, came to pitch at [19v] the "great a'uruy."

Not lying down in his covering, attested, cf. Antoine MOSTAERT, op. cit., pp. [185]-[187], n. 167. That they probably mean "bastard, son of the Merkid" (cf. Antoine MOSTAERT, op. cit., p. [196]) is suggested by the vigorous defense of the honor of Börte by Kōkō Čos (see below) in reply to Ča'adai who, in calling Joči a čul (?čül) ulja'ar, not only evidenced disbelief of his elder brother's legitimacy, but also indirectly insulted his own mother, Börte.

<sup>44</sup> I.e., "Among the sons it was of thee that thy father the qan had conceived hopes." Cf. Antoine MOSTAERT, op. cit., p. [206].

<sup>45</sup> Cf. II. Samuel XIX §9: "And all the people were at strife throughout all the tribes of Israel, . . ."

The one was assaulting the other.<sup>46</sup>

At such a time,<sup>47</sup>

She<sup>48</sup> did not desire [it].

It was come to pass at the moment when [24v] the one encountered the other [with weapons in hand].

She did not steal away, [fleeing away from home].

It was come to pass at the moment when the one was fighting the other.

She was not in love [with another man].

It was come to pass at the moment when the one was killing the other.

Thou speakest so as to harden the 'butter affection'<sup>49</sup> and so as to sour the 'milk heart'<sup>50</sup> of thy mother, the holy Qadun.

From the warm [womb]

Suddenly [issuing] were [25r] ye [—thou and Joči—] not born from the [self]same belly?

From the hot [womb]

Suddenly [springing] are ye [—thou and Joči—] not issued from an only womb?

If [thou] cause to rebuke [thee]

Thy mother which hath borne [thee] from her heart,

Her affection [for thee]

Waxing cold,

[Even] if [thou] appease [her], it will not do.

<sup>46</sup> Such was the anarchy which had preceded the birth of the sons of Činggis Qahan. In this connection, Antoine MOSTAERT, op. cit., p. [192], remarked: "By the words hodutai tenggeri hörčiju büle'e; körisütei etügen körbeju büle'e 'the starry heaven was turning on itself'; 'the earth with epidermis was turning and returning,' Kökö-čos means that the country was full of troubles and that, even the most stable of everything, heaven and earth, was in movement, that is to say, that all was upside down and that there were no longer government nor laws."

If [thou] cause to murmur [against thee]

Thy mother which hath borne [thee] from [her] belly,

Her murmuring [against thee],

[Even] if [thou] make [it] to cease, it will not do.

When your father the Qan

Established the whole nation,

at the time when,

Tying his black head to [his] saddle,

Pouring his black blood into a great leathern bucket,<sup>51</sup>

Not winking his black eyes,

Not putting his flat ear at a pillow,

Making a pillow of his sleeve,

Spreading the skirt of his garment [for a mattress],

Quenching his thirst with his spittle,

Eating the flesh betwixt his teeth for supper,

he was pressing forward till the sweat of [his] forehead attained unto the soles [of his feet] and till the sweat of [26r] the soles [of his feet] ascended unto [his] forehead and was diligently applying himself, when your mother, together [with him], toiled and when,

Putting [her] boyta [on her head] so as to make [it] fast,

Girding herself so as to tuck up her skirt,<sup>52</sup>

Putting [her] boyta [on her head] so as to make [it] firm,

Girding herself so as to tighten her waist,

She raised you up, hers,

While she swallowed [her food],

Giving [unto you] her half [of it],

And, as [having compassion] she was obstructed as to the gullet,<sup>53</sup>

<sup>51</sup> "Kökö-čos means that, in founding the empire, Činggis lived continually in danger of death: 'His head was no longer found on his neck, but he had attached it to his saddle as he did with his baggage, and he could lose it at any instant; his blood no longer flowed in his veins, but he had poured it into a bucket, and it risked being shed at any moment.'" Antoine MOSTAERT, op. cit., p. [200].

She gave [unto you] [26v] her all
 And she [herself] went empty.
 Pulling you by the shoulders,
 [Saying unto herself,] 'How shall I make [them] to be equal [in stature] with males?',
 Pulling you by the neck, Saying [unto herself], 'How shall I make [them] to be equal [in] stature with men?',<sup>54</sup>
 Cleansing your buyi,<sup>55</sup> Making you to lift up your heels [whilst teaching you how to walk],

she made [you] to attain

Unto the shoulders of the males,
 Unto the cruppers of the geldings,

[27r] and [yet] now thinketh she not [unto herself], saying, 'I shall see the happiness of you, mine?' The holy Qadun of us [in raising you up] had a heart

Bright like the sun,
 Wide like a lake."

§255 [28r] Then, when Činggis Qan spake, he made a decree, saying, "How say ye so [concerning] Joči? [28v] The eldest of my sons, is it not Joči? [Here]after say [ye] not so." At this word, when Ča'adai, smiling, spake, he said, "Not speaking [concerning] Joči's [being] mighty nor the answer [to give in respect] of [his supposed] ability [I shall but say]:

That [prey] which one hath killed
 [But] with [his] mouth,

If one [wish to] lay it [on his beast], it will not do.

That [prey] which one hath made to die

<sup>55</sup> This word, not glossed, is not elsewhere attested.

If one [wish to] pluck off [its] skin, it will not do.<sup>56</sup>

The eldest [29r] of the sons are the twain, Joči and we.<sup>57</sup> We shall, associating ourselves, give [our] might<sup>58</sup> unto the father the Qan.
 We shall cleave asunder the one of us which shall have avoided [his duty]. We shall cleave in twain our heels of the one of us which shall be fallen behind. Ögödei is honest. Let us say Ögödei.
 Ögödei being at the side of the father the Qan, if [the latter] make [him] to recognize the precepts of the hat<sup>59</sup> of which [29v] the appearance<sup>60</sup> [is] great, it will do."<sup>61</sup> At this word, when Činggis Qahan spake, he said, "Joči, what sayest [thou]. Speak!"
 When Joči spake, [30r] he said, "Ča'adai hath spoken [it]. The twain, Ča'adai and we,<sup>62</sup> shall together give [our] might [unto him].
 Let us say Ögödei." When Činggis Qahan made a decree, having said, "[To go] so far as to associate yourselves, what is it?"<sup>63</sup> Mother Earth is broad. The rivers and waters are many. Making broad the encampments [which are] like [such as easily] separate themselves and making [you each] to rule over a realm, we shall separate you," having said, "Both Joči and Ča'adai, keep to your word.

Suffer yourselves not to be derided

By people.

Suffer yourselves not to be laughed

[to scorn] [30v]

By men.

<sup>56</sup> See §196 above. In quoting this saying, Ča'adai answers the boastful words of Joči in §254 above: "If, in striving to shoot farther, I am excelled by thee, I shall cut off and cast away my thumb. If, in wrestling, I am defeated by thee, I shall not arise from the ground where [I] shall be fallen." Ča'adai means that Joči's boasting is in vain so long as Joči has not vanquished him in reality, just as to be able to load game on a beast or to skin it, it is not adequate merely to say that one has killed, for one must have killed it in reality. Cf. also Antoine MOSTAERT, op. cit. p. [123].

<sup>63</sup> I. e., "What reason would there be for you to cooperate, by staying here to govern the people?"

Formerly both Altan and Qučar pledged [their] word like this,<sup>64</sup> but, because they did not keep to their word, how were they done unto? How were they made to be? <sup>65</sup> Now, [some] from [among] the seed of both Altan and Qučar, together with you, we shall separate. [31r] Seeing those, how will ye be negligent?,<sup>66</sup> he said, "Ögödei, what sayest [thou]? Tell!" When Ögödei spake, he said, "If, the father the Qahan favouring [me], I am told, 'Speak,' I shall speak my what? How shall [I] speak, saying, '[I] cannot.' I shall say, 'I shall be diligent according to [mine] ability.' Long [here]after [31v], indeed, if, among my seed, there be born [those so void of valour that],

If one wrap [them] in green grass,
They will not be eaten by an ox;
If one wrap [them] in fat,
They will not be eaten by a dog,<sup>67</sup> will they [not] miss an elk [which appeareth] breadthwise [as well as] a rat [which appeareth] lengthwise?<sup>68</sup> I say so much as this of mine. What else shall I speak?" [32r] At this word, when Činggis Qahan made a decree, he said, "If Ögödei would speak such words, it will do." Again he said, "Tolui, what sayest [thou]? Tell!" When Tolui spake, as he spake, saying, "I, being in the presence of mine elder brother which the father the Qahan hath named,

Making [him] to remember that which he shall have forgotten, [32v]
Making to awake [him] which shall be fallen asleep,<sup>69</sup>

Becoming

A 'companion of the [word] "yea,"'<sup>70</sup>
A 'whip of the chestnut [coloured] horse,'<sup>71</sup>
Falling not behind from the 'yea,'<sup>72</sup>
Missing not from the rank,

[I] shall for [him]

Campaign a long campaign, Fight a short fight,"

when Činggis Qahan, approving, made a decree, having made a decree, saying, "Seed of Qasar, make one of you to govern. [33r] Seed of Alčidai, make one of you to govern. Seed of Odčigin, make one of you to govern. Seed of Belgütei, make one of you to govern. So thinking, making one of my seed to govern, not violating my decree, if ye destroy [it] not, ye will not err and ye will not miss. If the seed of Ögödei be born [so void of valour that], [33v]

If one wrap [it] in green grass,
It be not eaten by an ox;
If one wrap [it] in fat,
It be not eaten by a dog,<sup>73</sup> will there not be born among my seed [even] one [which may be] good?"

§256 [35r] When Činggis Qahan set forth and when he sent ambassadors unto Burqan of the Tang'ud people, as he sent, saying,

<sup>70</sup> I. e., "a companion of the word by which one expresses his consent." In other words, "I shall keep to the promise which I promised." See Chapter III, note 16.

<sup>71</sup> I. e., "I shall be the whip by which the chestnut-colored horse will be made to advance." See Chapter III, note 17.

<sup>72</sup> I. e., "Once I shall have said, 'Yea,' I shall keep to my word."

<sup>73</sup> As remarked by Antoine MOSTAERT, op. cit. p. [168], n. 154: "This saying quoted by Činggis still lives in the dialects. The Ülemji ügen-ü ögedesü, a collection of sayings and proverbs collected by Oyunbilig of the Čaqar in collaboration with Nasundalai of the Jasar banner of the Ordos and published in 1948 in Nanking, gives it on page 9 under the following form: Ebesün-dü boyobaču üker singsikü ügei, ögekün-dü boyobaču noqai singsikü ügei. 'One envelops it in grass in vain, an ox does not [even] scent it; one envelops it in fat in vain, a dog does not [even] scent it.'"

"Thou hast said, 'I shall be [thy] right hand.' My 'golden tether' being broken by the Sarta'ul people," I have set forth to take account of [him]. Set [thou] forth, being [my] right hand," [35v] before that Burqan had uttered [his voice], first, when Aša Gambu spake, saying, "Since [his] might is not able [to overcome others], why [go] so far as to become qan?" not adding troops [unto those of Činggis Qahan], speaking great words, he sent [back the ambassadors]. Then, when Činggis Qahan spake, saying, "How could [we] have been thus spoken [unto] by Aša Gambu?" saying, "[As for the best] of the [divers] devices [considered], [36r] if [we] sent unto them, then betaking ourselves circuitously, [we] would have what difficulty? [But,] at the moment, indeed, when we betake ourselves unto other people, yea, that [sufficeth]! If I be protected by Everlasting Heaven, if I come [back], strongly pulling [in] the 'golden reins,'<sup>75</sup> then, indeed, let that be [done]."

§257 [36v] In the year of the hare [1219], when, passing by Arai,<sup>76</sup> he set forth against the Sarta'ul people, when Činggis Qahan, taking Qulan Qatun<sup>77</sup> from the qatun, [37r] went a warfare, from the younger brethren he assigned Odčigin Noyan unto the "great a'uruy" and set forth. He sent Jebe as vanguard. He sent Sübe'etei as succourer of Jebe. He sent Toqučar as succourer of Sübe'etei. When he sent these three, he sent, saying, "Go outside. Go out to the yonder side of the Sultan,<sup>78</sup> and, [37v] waiting until We arrive, assault [him] from your side." Jebe—that [one]—going out, passing the cities of Qan Melig,<sup>79</sup> not touching [them], passed by outside. Behind him, Sübe'etei after the same manner, not touching [them], passed by. Behind him, Toqučar robbed the frontier cities of Qan Melig and [38r] spoiled his husbandmen. Qan Melig, saying, "My cities have been robbed," removing in revolt, joined himself unto Jalalding Soltan.<sup>80</sup> Both Jalalding Soltan and Qan

Melig set forth against Činggis Qa'an. In front of Činggis Qa'an, Šigi Qutuqu went as vanguard. [38v] Standing in array with Šigi Qutuqu, both Jalalding Soltan and Qan Melig overcame Šigi Qutuqu and, at the moment when, overcoming [him] until they arrived at Činggis Qahan, they were going forward, Jebe, Sübe'etei, and Toqučar—[all] three—entering behind both Jalalding Soltan and Qan Melig, moreover, overcoming [them], having slain [them], overcoming them, not suffering [them] to join forces in the cities of Buqar,<sup>81</sup> Semisgab,<sup>82</sup> and [39r] Udarar,<sup>83</sup> when, pursuing [them], they suffered the fact that they went unto the Šin River,<sup>84</sup> as they began to enter, hurling themselves into the Šin River, their many Sarta'ul perished there in the Šin River. Both Jalalding Soltan and Qan Melig, saving their lives, fled away [39v] up along the Šin River. Činggis Qahan departing up along the Šin River, going, spoiling Badkesen,<sup>85</sup> reaching the Eke Stream<sup>86</sup> and the Ge'un Stream,<sup>87</sup> pitched [on] the Baru'an Plain.<sup>88</sup> Sending Bala the Jaliyar,<sup>89</sup> making [him] to pursue both Jalalding Soltan and Qan Melig, exceedingly favouring both Jebe and Sübe'etei, saying, "Jebe, thou [40r] hadst the name Jiryo'adai. Coming from the Tayiči'ud, thou art become Jebe."<sup>90</sup> Toqučar, by his own will, robbing the frontier cities of Qan Melig, made Qan Melig to revolt. Making [this a matter of] ordinance, [we] shall behead [him]," making an end of [so] saying, moreover, not beheading [him], exceedingly rebuking [him], punishing [him], made [him] to descend from his [40v] commanding an army.

§260 [44r] The three sons, Joči, Ča'adai, and Ögödei, bringing into subjection the city of Örünggeči, parting the one unto the other the peoples of the cities all three, did not bring forth a part for Činggis Qa'an. When these three [44v] sons came to pitch, Činggis Qahan, rebuking the three sons, Joči, Ča'adai, and Ögödei, for three days did not suffer [them] to present themselves. Then, when Bo'orču, Muqali, and Šigi Qutuqu—[all] three—petitioned, as they petitioned, saying, "Making the soltan of the Sarta'ul people which had not submitted themselves to stoop down, we have taken their cities and [45r] people. The city of Örünggeči which, being parted, is taken and the sons which part and take [it] all are [possessions] of Činggis Qa'an. Our might being increased by Heaven and Earth, at the moment when we have made the Sarta'ul people to stoop down so much as this, we, thy many men and geldings, [45v] are rejoicing and ...? ...<sup>105</sup> Why is the Qahan thus wroth? ## THE SECRET HISTORY OF THE MONGOLS

CHAPTER XII

§265 [1r] Wintering that winter, saying, "I shall set forth against the Tang'ud people," newly numbering the number,<sup>1</sup> in the autumn of the year of the dog [1226] Činggis Qahan set forth against the Tang'ud people. From the qadund, taking [with him] Yesüi Qadun, he departed. As, on the way, in the winter, he hunted the many wild horses of [1v] Arbuqa, Činggis Qahan was riding Josotu Boro.<sup>2</sup> When the wild horses came, passing by, Josotu Boro being terrified, when Činggis Qahan fell from the horse, his flesh paining exceedingly, he pitched [at] Čo'orqad. As he passed that night, when, on the morrow, [2r] Yesüi Qadun spake, she said, "Princes and chiefs, talk [ye] unto one another. The Qahan, at night, hath passed the night, [his] flesh [being] hot." Then when the princes and chiefs assembled themselves, when Tolun Čerbi of the Qongqotad spake, advising [them], as he said, "The Tang'ud people are

Ones which have pounded city walls;

Ones which have a stable encampment.<sup>3</sup>

They [2v] will not depart, carrying their pounded city walls, those.

They will not depart, forsaking their stable encampment, those.

If then, sending ambassadors, [while] trying the sickness<sup>4</sup> at this [self]same Čo'or-

When Aša Gambu spake, he sent, saying, "I spake words [4v] of derision. And, as to now, if ye, Mongyol, being accustomed to battle, say, 'Let us join battle,'—as for me, I have an Alašai encampment, terme<sup>12</sup> tents, and camels' burden<sup>13</sup>—betaking yourselves [unto] Alašai, come [ye] unto me. Let us there join battle. If [ye] [5r] need gold, silver, satins, and possessions, betake [ye] yourselves to Eriyaya or Erije'ü." When they brought this word unto Činggis Qahan, when Činggis Qahan—when [his] flesh was [yet] hot—spake, he said, "Yea! That [sufficeth]! relying upon the great words," and, saying, "Everlasting [5v] Heaven, decide thou [which of us is right]," Činggis Qahan, betaking himself [unto] Alašai, arriving [there], joining battle with Aša Gambu, overcoming Aša Gambu, causing [him] to fortress himself on Alašai, taking Aša Gambu, caused [one] to spoil his people which had terme tents and which had camels' burden, till they blew away after the manner of the ashes [of the hearth]. He made a decree, saying, "Slaying the bold and the courageous, the male and the good Tang'udud, take [ye] for the men of the armies such and such Tang'udud as many as ye can hold in hand and as many as ye can get."

§266 [7r] Činggis Qahan, summering on [Mount] Časutu, sent soldiers and caused [them] to spoil till they wholly<sup>15</sup> destroyed the Tang'udud having terme tents and having camels' burden, [7v] which with Aša Gembü<sup>16</sup> had gotten them to the mountain and had rebelled. Then, when he shewed favour unto the twain, Bo'orču and Muqali, he made a decree, saying, "Let them take till they know by [their] might [how much of it they shall take]. Again, when Činggis Qahan made a decree, when he gave favours unto the twain, [8r] Bo'orču and Muqali, he made a decree, saying, "Saying [unto myself,] '[I] have not given [unto you a part] from the Kitad people,' ye twain, equally parting [them], take the Jüyin of the Kitad people. Making their good sons to hold your falcons in hand, go [ye], making [them] to follow [you]. Raising up their good daughters, [8v] make [ye them] to order the skirts [of the garments] of your wives. The trusty favourites of the Altan Qan' of the Kitad people are the Qara Kitad Jüyin people which made an end of the grandfathers and fathers of the Mongyol. Now my trusty favourites are ye twain, Bo'orču and Muqali."

§267 [9r] Činggis Qahan, removing from [Mount] Časutu, [9v]

<sup>15</sup> In an oral communication of 10 September 1953, confirmed by a written communication of 17 September 1953, the Reverend Antoine MOSTAERT interpreted the word onoyša'ar "according to the fact of having counted" to signify "totally" or "entirely."

pitching [at] the city of Uraqai, removing from the city of Uraqai, at the moment when he was breaking the city of Dörmegei, Burqan came for to present himself unto Činggis Qahan. Then, when Burqan presented himself, at the moment when he presented himself with [gifts consisting] first [in] golden images of Buddha,<sup>17</sup> [and, besides those, in] bowls and [other] vessels of gold and of silver, nine and nine, [in] boys and girls, nine and nine, [in] geldings and camels, nine and nine, and [in yet] every kind of [other] things, having distributed [them] after their colours and forms, nine and nine, [Činggis Qahan] made Burqan to present himself [at the outside of the tent] in [a manner in which] the door [was] closed. At that presenting himself, within Činggis Qahan the heart revolted. On the third day, when Činggis Qahan made a decree—giving unto Iluqu Burqan the name Šiduryu<sup>18</sup> and [10v] suffering the fact that Iluqu Burqan Šiduryu was come—then Činggis Qahan, saying, “Cause [ye] Iluqu to pass away,” made a decree, saying, “Let Tolun Čerbi lay hand [upon him] and cause [him] to pass away.” Then, as Tolun Čerbi made [one] to report, saying, “[I] have laid hand upon Iluqu and have accomplished [the deed],” when Činggis Qahan made a decree, he made a decree, saying, “At the moment when I was drawing nigh unto the Tang’ud people to verify the words [of Iluqu Burqan], he who, when, [11r] on the way, I had hunted the wild horses of Arbuqa, dealing sparingly with my life and body advised [me] words [of advice], saying [concerning] my flesh which ached, ‘Let it heal,’ was Tolun. At the word of poison of a “companion,”<sup>19</sup> coming, [Our] might being increased by Everlasting Heaven, making [him] to enter into Our hands, We have taken Our vengeance. Let Tolun take [11v] this journeying palace which Iluqu hath brought, together with the bowls and the vessels.”

fathers of the Tang’ud people, unto the seed of the seed, to vanish muquli musquli,<sup>21</sup> he made a decree, saying, “While [I] eat [12v] food, saying, ‘[They are] vanished muquli musquli,’ making [them] to die and destroying [them], be [ye], saying [this].” Because the Tang’ud people, [after] speaking a word, kept not to the word, Činggis Qahan going a warfare a second time against the Tang’ud people, destroying the Tang’ud people, [13r] coming [back], in the year of the pig [1227] Činggis Qahan is ascended to Heaven. After that he was ascended, one gave exceedingly unto Yesüi Qadun from the Tang’ud people.

§270 [15r] Ögödei Qahan suffering himself to be raised up as qan, after suffering [one] to cause the ten thousand guards which walk within and the people of the middle to be for himself, first [of all] taking counsel with Elder Brother Ča’adai, made to go a warfare

Having made a decree, saying, "As to these who go a warfare, let the princes which govern peoples make to go a warfare the eldest sons of their sons. When Ögödei Qahan spake, saying, "At that word, and by the prudent might of Our Elder Brother Ča'adai let us send out the eldest of the sons," proclaiming [it unto] every quarter, such was the manner in which he made to go a warfare the princes having at their head [18v] Batu, Büri, Güyüg, and Möngge.

<sup>46</sup> This word is glossed 淮馬 (Huai ma) "Huai horses," but, as asserted by Dr. William Hung on 19 August 1955, the character 淮 (Huai) is erroneous. As for alašas, it is a plural in -s of alaša, a word of Turkish origin, meaning "horse" or "gelding." Cf. Nicholas POPPE, "The Turkic Loan Words in Middle Mongolian," Central Asiatic Journal 1 (1955) 36-42 (p. 38).

Spoiling and making the people of the cities having at their head Asud,<sup>59</sup> Sesüd,<sup>60</sup> Bolar,<sup>61</sup> Mankerman,<sup>62</sup> and Kiwa, placing daruyāčîn and tammačîn, they returned. [28r] He made to go a warfare Yesüder Qorči, the succourer of Jalayirtai Qorči which aforetime had gone a warfare against the Jürčed and the Solangyas.<sup>63</sup> He made a decree, saying, "Let him sit [there] as tamma."

§275 [28v] When Batu, from on the Kibčay warfare, petitioned, by messengers, unto Ögödei Qahan, he sent, petitioning, saying "In the might of Everlasting Heaven and [29r] in the fortune of [mine] uncle the Qahan, breaking the city of Meged, spoiling the Orusud people, making to submit themselves in an upright manner eleven realms of people, withdrawing ourselves, pulling the 'golden reins,' saying unto one another, 'Let us feast a feast at which we shall separate ourselves from one another,' pitching a great tent, at the moment when we are feasting, I, saying, [29v] 'As [I] am somewhat the eldest of all these princes, [I] have first drunk one or two bowls of the ötög,' both Büri and Güyüg being

<sup>59</sup> Asud, glossed "city name," unquestionably is out of place in a list of city names. Cf. also PELLIEROT, op. cit., p. 130, n. 2.

<sup>60</sup> Sesüd, glossed "city name," may also be out of place in a list of city names. Cf. also PELLIEROT, op. cit., p. 130, n. 2.

displeased with me, [I] suffered the fact that, not feasting the feast, they set forth. When, setting forth, Būri spake, he said, 'As Batu, then, is equal [unto us], why should he have drunk first?

When Güyüg spake, he said, 'Those women with quivers, let us, thou and we, smite their bosoms with a stick of firewood—those!' When Haryasun,<sup>66</sup> son of Eljigidei, spake, he said, 'Let us join a wooden tail—[unto] those!' <sup>66</sup> As for us, [30v] being made to set forth unto a rebellious people with a different liver,<sup>67</sup> at the moment when [we] were saying, 'Is it become being right? fit?,' <sup>68</sup> having been so told by both Būri and Güyüg, we were separated without mutual agreement. Now let the decree of [our] uncle the Qahan decide [how we shall do]."

§276 [31v] When, at this word of Batu, the Qahan was exceeding wroth and, not suffering Güyüg to present himself, spake, he said, "This inferior one, hearkening unto the words of whom, speaketh, the mouth full, [against] a person [which is his] elder brother? Let the only egg rot!" <sup>69</sup> He is rebelling at the bosom of the same person [which is his] elder brother.

<sup>69</sup> In the continuous translation (YCPS, Hsü 2.33r1-2) this is rendered: "To abandon thee is like casting away a bird's egg." I am deeply indebted to Dr. William HUNG for the excellent suggestion made on 31 December 1954 that the character 鳥 (niao) ("bird") is a graphic error for 臭 (ch'ou) ("rotten"). With this emendation the passage would read: "To abandon thee is like casting away a rotten egg." With the aid of the interpretative continuous translation we may understand the words "Let the only egg rot!" to mean "Let the only Güyüg rot as an egg!"

<sup>76</sup> In his letter of 13 February 1955 the Reverend Antoine MOSTAERT commented on this passage as follows: "Here Ögödei follows the yorun. Güyüg is his son; he can then punish him as seems good to him. Haryasun is a simple subject; he could have him decapitated, but he does not do it, because he could be accused of partiality. As to Būri, he does not take any decision, because Būri is the grandson of Ča'adai aqa. He says then that Batu must send Būri to Ča'adai in order that the latter punish Būri. In §277 the chronicler recounts how Ögödei takes another decision, after Menggei, Alčidai and others have recalled to him the principle posed by Činggis: ke'er-ün ügile ke'er-e gü noyalaru büle'e, etc."

It is a matter of the steppe—if, charging [him with it], we send [it] unto Batu, [34r] will it [not] do?," when the Qahan, approving this word, mollifying himself, suffering Güyüg to present himself, uttered words of admonishment, saying, "When [thou] goest, going a warfare, on the way,"<sup>77</sup> thou art said [to deserve the words]:

If these matters which are spoken of [in Our message to him] are fit, if he approve [them], let [the decision] be from [the part of] Elder Brother Ča’adai.’” Elder Brother Ča’adai came [in the person of a messenger], saying, “[As] I approve [50r] these very matters concerning which [Ye] have sent, inquiring—all [of them]—let one, then, so do!” Again when Elder Brother Ča’adai came [in the person of a messenger], speaking, having said, “From hence I would cause post stations to join themselves over against [yours]. Again from hence I would send messengers unto Batu. And let Batu [50v] cause his post stations to join themselves over against [mine],” again, when he came [in the person of a messenger], speaking, he came, saying, “Of all [matters, it is] the matter of making [one] to establish post stations [which Čanai and Bolqadar] recommended [in a manner] more fitting than fit.”

having Odčigin Noyan and Yegü at their head, all princes, daughters and sons in law of the middle, and captains of ten thousands, of thousands, of hundreds, and of tens have all together approved. When they approved, if for the broth of the Qahan of the Sea <sup>109</sup> in one year they bring forth one [52v] wether of two years old of [every] herd, what is it? <sup>110</sup> To bring forth one [sheep] of one year old from a hundred sheep and to give [it] unto the poor and the needy is good. If, making [one] to establish post stations, [we] bring forth keepers of the post stations and keepers of the post horses, it is peaceful for the many people and convenient for the messengers to go," all together, saying that they approved, the decree of the Qahan, [53r] [the Qahan] consulting with Elder Brother Ča'adai, being approved by Elder Brother Ča'adai, from all the people, from the divers thousands of the divers quarters, by the decree of the Qahan, [one] made to bring forth in year after year for broth one wether of two years old from [every] flock and one sheep of one year old from a hundred sheep. Making to bring forth mares, [one] made keepers of mares to sit [over them]. [One] made to bring forth keepers of mares, [53v] keepers of storehouses, and keepers of grains. Making to bring forth keepers of post stations and keepers of post horses, making to measure [the distance of] the place of seat after seat, when [one] made to establish post stations, making both Arasen and Toqučar to set [them] in order, [one] caused there to be twenty keepers of post horses at the one seat of [every] post station. At every seat, [one] made there to be twenty keepers of post horses each. [The Qahan] made a decree, saying, "[As for] the geldings [performing the service] of post horses, the sheep [54r] [brought forth for the purpose] of provisions, the milch mares, the oxen which one putteth to carts, and carts, from the limit limited from Us from hence,

If they make a short cord to be wanting, line passing] along the (?) hinder part of the neck.'

If they make a spoke of a wheel in the form of a spoon to be wanting,
Let them be condemned to [what is called]
'cleavage [following a straight line passing along] the nose.' <sup>111</sup>

§281 [54v] When Ögödei Qahan spake, he said, "[After] sitting on the great throne of my father, [as to] that which I did after my [55r] father the Qahan, going a warfare unto the people of the Jaqud, <sup>112</sup> I destroyed the Jaqud people. [As to] my second deed, [I] made one to establish post stations for that Our messengers, hasting on the way, make speed, and again for that [We] make [them] to convey our needs and necessities. [As to] yet another deed, making [one] to dig [55v] wells in places without water, making [one] to bring [them] forth, [I] made [one] to bring the nation and the people unto water and grass. Again placing spies and tammačin unto the people of cities in the divers quarters, of the nation and the people, causing [them] to set [them], I caused

The feet to be
On the ground
The hands [to be]
On the earth. <sup>113</sup>

<sup>111</sup> In his explanation of these difficult lines, Antoine MOSTAERT, op. cit., p. [148], n. 144, remarked: "I consider the expressions orqol-iyar qayras, qabar qayras as manners of speaking fixed by usage, kinds of technical terms which designate a legal confiscation affecting the goods of an individual condemned for a misdemeanour, in virtue of which his goods having been parted into two equal parts, the one is assigned to the Treasury while the other rests in his possession. The figure seems to be drawn from a man of whom the body has been split down the middle following a vertical line passing, from behind, by the nape of the neck and, in front, by the nose."

"Ögödei means that no matter what negligence affecting the service of the postal relays, were it as trifling as that in consequence of which there would come to lack a piece of cord, or more grave, as that which would be cause that there lack a spoke for a wheel, will be punished in the same manner, namely by the confiscation of half of the goods of the culprit." Antoine MOSTAERT, op. cit., p. [149], n. 144.

After my father the Qahan [I] added [these] four deeds [to all those done by him]. [56r] And, again, being made to sit [on] the great throne by my father the Qahan, being gone, carrying [as a burden] upon myself my many people, then, to be conquered by grape wine was my wrong. This was one of my wrongs. [As to] my second wrong, to hearken unto the word of a woman without principle and to cause [one] to bring the daughters of the [56v] ulus of Uncle Odčigin were [mine] errors. Although I be the Qahan, Lord of the Nation, to deliver myself unto deeds [which were] errors without principle, this was one of my wrongs. Again secretly to harm Doqolqu [was] one wrong. If one say, 'How [was it] a wrong?' [57r] secretly to harm Doqolqu which, in the service of his proper [lord], my father the Qan, pressed forward was a wrong and an error. Now, in the service of me, who will so press forward for [me]? I myself have declared as wrong the fact that, not comprehending, I secretly harmed a man which, in the service of my father the Qahan and [of] all, was prudent [in] principle. Again, being covetous, [57v] saying, 'I fear lest the wild beasts which were born having [their] destiny from Heaven and Earth will go toward [my] brethren,' making one to build in beaten earth fences and walls [to contain the prey], as I was [thus] staying [them], I heard words of murmuring from the brethren. It, also, was a wrong. After my father the Qahan, I added four [good] deeds [to all those done by him] and four deeds were wrongs."<sup>114</sup>

§282 [58r] [We] finished writing at the moment when the Great Assembly was assembled and [when], in the year of the rat [1228], in the moon of the dam,<sup>115</sup> the palaces were pitched at Dolo'an Bolday of Köde'e Aral of the Kelüren, between both Šilgin Čeg and. . . .<sup>116</sup>

INDEX NOMINUM

[N.B. The names in this index are given, insofar as is practicable, in the forms in which they occur in the original text, although the case suffixes, as a rule, are dropped. Inasmuch as names in the genitive case, however, constitute complements of nouns and postpositions, it has seemed preferable to register the complexes as such, thus retaining the names in their genitive form. The numbers after the names refer to the sections of the text in which they occur. The numbers in parentheses indicate the number of occurrences within a section. The English equivalents of accompanying titles, epithets, or terms designating natural features, whether used in the translation or not, are, for the most part, included in parentheses. Where possible, the names of persons are briefly identified. The following abbreviations are used: acc. = accusative, cl. = clan, ct. = city, des. = desert, is. = isle, lk. = lake, mt. = mountain, peop. = people, pers. = person, pl. = place, plur. = plural, rv. = river, and tr. = tribe.]

INDEX VERBORUM

[N. B. This index consists of all the Mongolian words which appear in the translation, but which, for a variety of reasons, have been left untranslated. Some of them are ἀπαξ λεγόμενα of unknown meaning. Others are technical terms for which there is no precise English equivalent. Still others such as ba'atur, qan, etc., are already so well established, albeit under diverse transcriptions, in occidental languages that it has seemed preferable to leave them without translation. The English translations of the Chinese glosses on all words (except those of unknown meaning) have been inserted in brackets. As in the case of the "Index Nominum," the numbers after the words refer to the sections of the text in which they occur. The numbers in parentheses indicate the number of occurrences within a section. The abbreviations are the same as those used in the "Index Nominum."]
